Trudeau Marries B.C. Girl In Super-Surprise Wedding

By DAVE STOCKAND

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a private man with a flair for the dramatic, is honeymooning today with his 22-year-old bride after a wedding that caught an entire country by surprise.

Canada's 51-year-old leader, one of North America's most eligible bachelors, took as his bride Thursday Margaret Sinclair, a leggy, almond-eyed beauty — and a university graduate in political science and sociology.

The marriage of the millionaire, swinger-thinker and the auburn-haired beauty took place Thursday evening in St. Stephen's Roman Catholic church, a modest one-storey establishment with an austere modern interior.

Only immediate family attended — and there was no announcement until the ceremony was over.

The wedding plans were kept so secret that two of the bride's four sisters didn't know of the wedding until they arrived at the church. They thought they had been called home for a family party marking their father's 60th anniversary of his arrival in Canada from Scotland.

The newly-marrieds — who met three years ago while both were vacationing in Tahiti — will have a honeymoon in the dramatically beautiful ski country in the Garibaldi Park area north of Vancouver and will head for Ottawa next week to set up housekeeping at the prime minister's official residence on Sussex Drive.

Here is the sequence that led up to and followed the thunderbolt announcement that Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the kissing campaigner and dater of entertainer Barbra Streisand, among many others, had settled into the marriage fold.

Earlier Thursday, Mr. Trudeau was reported to be in the Vancouver area on a skiing holiday — expected by all but the most intimate insiders to be just another of the prime minister's attempts to gain a little hard-won privacy and get away briefly from his recent impish interjections in parliamentary debate.

Mr. Trudeau arrived in the afternoon aboard a transport department jet plane which was late arriving, it was understood, because of storm conditions in the east.

Nothing more was heard until Trudeau aide Gordon Gibson called The Canadian Press with his bombshell announcement in the form of a "statement on behalf of James Sinclair and Mrs. Sinclair."

I knew all along that some folks w'd say "I knew all along."

How lib kin a woman git?

Namin' Mister Barrett is one thing — describin' him w'd be somethin' else.

QUEBEC STORM KILLS AT LEAST 11 PERSONS

(Times News Services)

MONTREAL — At least 11 persons are dead from heart attacks and carbon monoxide poisoning and this city has been brought to a standstill by a record 20-inch snowfall.

The swirling, driving storm which set a 24-hour record in Montreal swung into the Maritimes today dumping up to 20 inches in northern New Brunswick and piling up huge drifts with the help of 75-mile-an-hour winds.

Belfast Riot Follows Kidnap

BELFAST (AP) — A major riot swept through Roman Catholic Falls Road district of this Northern Irish capital today during an army search for two Protestants kidnapped at gunpoint.

Roaming mobs of teenagers hijacked buses for use as barricades and hurled waves of gasoline bombs and missiles at army riot squads. The riot broke out after soldiers searched the Long Bar on Leeson Street, an unofficial headquarters for many Irish nationalists.

Soldiers arrested several men. Women of the neighborhood hurled missiles and thumped ash can lids.

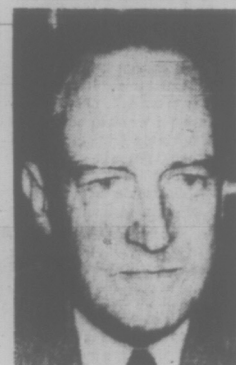

Detectives from Scotland Yard began investigating the kidnapping of the Protestants, believed a reprisal for the alleged Protestant theft of Roman Catholic arms recently.

Three masked, armed men drove up to a house in the Protestant Sandy Row area and forced three Protestant men into a car at gunpoint.

ONE RELEASED

One later was dumped unharmed in the same area later. With him was a message that the other two men would be shot dead unless the arms were returned.

A barrage of gasoline bombs and paving stones met army riot squads on long stretches of the Falls Road. The barrage came from behind blazing barricades of overturned trucks. Troops in riot gear scrambled from armored cars under strong attack and sealed off areas in a methodical search for rioters.

Consultation On Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers has agreed to consult the Canadian government before approving an oil pipeline across Alaska linked to a shipping route down the British Columbia coast to Washington State, the Commons was told today.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Rogers' agreement indicated that the U.S. government has not reached a decision on the pipeline-tanker route.

He expected the talks to start "very soon."

She Has Talent and Brains And Shares PM's Pastimes

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, the fourth of James Sinclair's five bright and beautiful daughters, grew up in an atmosphere of politics.

Her father is a Privy Councillor and a former Liberal Fisheries minister, with a record of 17 years as a Liberal member of Parliament.

Margaret, 22, has all the attributes of a beauty: she's a blue-eyed, auburn-haired and a slim five-foot-six but she has talent and brains as well.

She is a graduate of Simon Fraser University where she studied political science and sociology, and worked for a time last year with Canada Manpower in Ottawa as a sociologist.

She's an ardent skier and skin diver—two of her husband's favorite pastimes—but she's also at home in the kitchen or sewing room. She made her own wedding gown and three-tier wedding cake.

The wedding gown she designed and made was of a loose-weave Finnish wool with long sleeves and a hood.

"It's quite a joke that I was a John Turner man at the time, but my wife and daughters were all for Trudeau," he said Thursday night.

MET TRUDEAU'S MOTHER — The prime minister invited Margaret to Ottawa to meet his mother at Christmas, 1969. The following Easter, Mr. Trudeau came to West about the upcoming battle for leadership of the Liberal party.

"It's quite a joke that I was a John Turner man at the time, but my wife and daughters were all for Trudeau," he said Thursday night.

MET TRUDEAU'S MOTHER — The prime minister invited Margaret to Ottawa to meet his mother at Christmas, 1969. The following Easter, Mr. Trudeau came to West

Vancouver to "meet" her parents.

"We've more or less known since then that they'd get married," Mrs. Sinclair said.

Pierre and Margaret saw each other often last year while she worked in Ottawa. In the past six months, with Margaret living at home in the exclusive British Properties district of West Vancouver, their meetings have been secret.

"She's really been preparing for this day all the time," her mother said. "She's been learning French and it has been a lot of fun having her at home."

KEPT DATES SECRET

Margaret has always kept her outings with the prime minister secret, as he had requested, and even two of her own sisters and her grandmothers thought they were coming to an anniversary party Thursday instead of to a wedding reception.

Margaret's 25-year-old sister, Rosalind, a radio technician, was bridesmaid and she

NDP Chief Defied Speaker Ruling

By PETER McNELLY and BRUCE YEMEN

A young widow's fight for a compassionate grant of insurance benefits was pushed to the breaking point early today when Opposition Leader Dave Barrett was "named" and barred from the legislature for a week.

The suspension for defiance of supply committee chairman Herb Bruch climaxed a test of political wills in which Barrett asked the same question 67 times in 90 minutes to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

Peterson Moved Motion

Peterson refused to say he would write to insurance companies, asking them to consider granting compassionate payment of $12,000 in death benefits for a widow.

Bruch "named" Barrett for defiance of his ruling to stop asking the same question and Peterson followed it up with a motion to bar Barrett from the house for a week.

Liberal MLAs in the house voted against the Speaker's motion along with New Democrats as the 29 government members voted to suspend Barrett at 1:40 a.m.

On two previous occasions MLAs have been suspended from the B.C. legislature.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) was censured for breach of parliamentary privilege and suspended in the final moments of the 1969 legislative session.

The motion was based on allegations by Speaker Herb Capozza that partners of Dowding's law firm earned fees three years previously for passage of a bill through the legislature setting up an insurance company.

Dowding said he had declared his firm's interest and refrained from voting on dealing with the bill as an MLA.

Gordon Gibson, Liberal member for Lillooet in 1955, was expelled from the legislature for refusing to withdraw his "money talks and has talked" remarks in connection with the issuing of forest management licences.

Eileen Daily Interim Leader

Deputy NDP leader Eileen Daily will be the leader of the opposition until Barrett returns to the house a week from today.

Barrett, announcing the decision this morning, said Mrs. Daily is "very capable."

In reply to a question, he said he believes it is the first time in the history of the Commonwealth that a woman has been leader of the opposition.

Barrett expressed no regrets over his suspension early this morning and said he would do it all over again. Barrett said he does not know if he can sit in the public galleries during his suspension.

The climax of the political battle came amid silence in the house.

It started about 3½ hours

'Had Bad Driving Record'

He pointed out that the victim, according to his information, had a "bad driving record which had resulted in his being insured by the 'facility,' an insurance industry arrangement to cover high risks. About $1,800 in insurance payments had been made to the woman, he said.

The New Democrats said they were not satisfied with the answer.

Barrett made an impassioned appeal for the attorney-general to show some compassion in the case as he felt sure that Premier Bennett would have shown in the same circumstances Bennett was out of the house at the time.

Peterson sat silently as Hartley resumed questioning in an effort to get a commitment from Peterson on the case.

Bruch finally called Speaker William Murray in to the chamber after Hartley persisted in his efforts in spite of warnings about "tedious repetition" being against the rules.

Hartley said he had a "moral duty" to fight for the woman in question.

Murray told Hartley he must obey the chairman, and the supply committee resumed with Hartley persisting.

Over a period of several minutes, the now-retired Premier Bennett coughed out angry "Secrets" who were calling for Bruch to take action against Hartley.

At 11:45 p.m., Barrett took the floor and began to read, for the fourth time, a letter to "Continued on Page 2"

SERVICE CHARGE HIKE ANNOUNCED BY BANKS

TORONTO (CP) — Three of Canada's five major charter banks have begun notifying customers that service charges for personal chequing and business accounts will be increased effective April 1.

The banks are Toronto Dominion, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The charge for personal chequing accounts goes to 14 cents, a cheque from 11 cents and the charge per cheque for business accounts will be increased to 20 cents from 15.

and the photographer, and anyone else connected with the arrangements, thought the man who was going to marry Margaret Sinclair was a "Pierre Mercier."

It was not until the last minute that they learned the bridegroom was Pierre Trudeau.

When reporters converged on the church after word of the wedding was flashed, all they found was a dozen members of a folk choir strumming guitars and practising beside the altar.

"We got here about 8:30 p.m. and I'm sure none of us took part in any wedding," said one member of the choir with a wide grin.

A swinging era — or at least one with that aura — is over. It began even before Mr. Trudeau was sworn in as prime minister on April 28, 1968.

HIS ASSIGNMENT HARDLY ORDINARY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Photographer Fred Schiffer had had secretive assignments before, so he didn't pay much attention to another "quiet family wedding" planned for Thursday.

But he had been given several different stories before he finally learned the truth: That Prime Minister Trudeau was the groom and 22-year-old Margaret Sinclair of West Vancouver the bride.

It was Feb. 15 when the Hon. James Sinclair, member of the privy council and former Liberal federal fisheries minister in the St. Laurent cabinet, approached the Vancouver photographer to take wedding pictures.

"I was told it was for another daughter and another gentleman," Mr. Schiffer said. "Then just yesterday he told me it was Margaret and Mr. Trudeau."

"He asked me not to let it leak out, that a Sinclair daughter was getting married, that it was strictly a family affair."

"They said the groom was a gentleman from France, who would be there with no family."

Instead, Mr. Trudeau arrived at St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church in North Vancouver with his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trudeau, and two plainclothes policemen; his bride-to-be with her immediate family.

The double-ring ceremony, with full mass, was "very relaxed, very comfortable," Mr. Schiffer said.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Swinkels.

—Anderson

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — David Anderson this morning wished Prime Minister Trudeau well but said he has no intention of following his leader into a state of matrimony even if he has to lock his door now.

The 33-year-old backbencher has been widely described as Parliament's most eligible bachelor next to Trudeau — until now.

"It looked as though he needed a wife to nag him to getting his hair cut," Anderson mused when told the news.

When asked if he was planning marriage, Anderson chuckled.

"No, of course not. After all, I have to console all these... I guess I better lock my door now."

"I foresee no change in my status but I wish the prime minister and his wife all the very best."

PM's PICK PLEASES BENNETT

Premier Bennett Thursday congratulated Prime Minister Trudeau on his marriage by saying he was pleased Trudeau had chosen a bride from British Columbia.

"As premier of British Columbia, I want to congratulate the Prime Minister on his marriage," Bennett said.

"I'm sure all citizens of British Columbia are pleased that he has chosen a B.C. bride. At all the federal-provincial conferences we've attended, I've always told the Prime Minister about all the good things in British Columbia, and I'm glad he's come to B.C. to choose his bride."

"Great things are happening in British Columbia and this is one of them."

Bennett said he had met Miss Sinclair, though he didn't know her well. But he said he knew her well enough to tell the prime minister he was a lucky man.

The legislature also unanimously approved a resolution congratulating Trudeau and his bride.

Questions Jail Sentence

Vancouver MLA Herb Capozzi questioned in the legislature Thursday whether a jail term given a woman in a Victoria court the day before would serve as a deterrent.

He was commenting on the case of Donna Lynn Gorse of 1438 Brooke who was sent to jail for four months Wednesday after earlier pleading guilty to one charge of theft involving more than $50 and one 22-count charge of theft involving less than $50.

The money, totalling $543, was stolen from David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates, where Miss Gorse had worked as a secretary-cashier for about two years.

NOT JUSTIFIED

In passing sentence Judge William Ostler said there must be some sort of deterrent to this kind of crime. He added that a recommendation from a probation officer for leniency was not justified.

Capozzi said Thursday he did not feel a four-month prison term would be a deterrent. The real sentence in such a case was receiving a criminal record.

The Social Credit member for Vancouver Centre urged Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to look into the sentence and Peterson said he would.

Opposition members told Capozzi his position was contrary to his support of the death sentence for killers of police and jail guards.

He replied that it wasn't capital punishment was the "final deterrent," he said. A four-month jail term did not deter others.

... BARRETT EXPELLED

Hartley from Mrs. Taylor's friends.

Barrett read the letter to the end. Then he said, "Mr. Chairman, I ask the attorney-general of this province if he's prepared to write the insurance companies on behalf of this widow."

Peterson sat silently with his legs crossed.

During the next 90 minutes, Barrett asked his question 67 times. Peterson answered, saying, "I told you the whole matter is under study."

Just before midnight, acting chairman James Chabot (SC-Columbia River) tried to recognize Robert Wenman (SC-Delta), but Barrett refused to yield. A few minutes later, Bruch replaced Chabot. Bruch told Barrett he was abusing the rules of the house by being repetitious. Barrett kept repeating his question, standing before the silent house for as long as two minutes waiting for an answer.

At one point Bruch again called Murray back to his chair for a ruling on whether Barrett was violating the rules of the house.

But Murray upheld Barrett's right to stand and ask questions unless he was ordered to stop by the chairman.

At 12:15 a.m., Bruch told Barrett he was "grossly abusing the privileges of this house," and asked him to take his seat. Barrett refused. "You're acting like a Commie tonight," Chabot shouted from his seat.

Eileen Daily (NDP — Burnaby-North) rose to ask that the statement be withdrawn, but Barrett told her not to press the point. He remained standing.

Shortly after 12:30 a.m., the house adjourned for 25 minutes. On resumption, Barrett continued to ask his question.

Bruch, still chairman, finally ordered Barrett to take his seat because he had been repetitious.

Barrett refused.

"Are you defying the chairman's order?" Bruch asked.

"Yes, I am, Mr. Chairman," Barrett said.

It was now 1:10 a.m. Bruch said he had no choice but to "name" Barrett.

Barrett said, "If that is your ruling, Mr. Chairman, then I will abide by it."

Murray returned to the speaker's chair, and Bruch reported that Barrett had been named for being "tediously repetitious," abusing the privileges of the house and failing to obey his ruling.

Peterson then moved, seconded by Education Minister Donald Brothers, that Barrett be expelled from the legislature for one week, to March 12. Barrett listened to the terms of his suspension with surprise.

The motion passed by a vote of 29 to 12, the Liberals voting with the NDP against the government.

Barrett said in an interview outside the house following his banishment that there was no pre-arranged plan to force the issue to a conclusion because the party had expected Peterson to take a sympathetic line.

"I did my duty," he said. "I was prepared to pursue it to get a compassionate answer."

In the house later, Robert Strachan (NDP — Cowichan-Malahat) in the most belligerent statement from any New Democrat, told the Socreds:

"You named him for dirty, low, political reasons. You should be thoroughly ashamed of yourself for this miserable affair."

Brief On Recreation

Members of Oak Bay's Recreation Action Group presented a brief to Mayor Frances Eiford Thursday urging the construction of a major recreation centre.

The brief, copies of which will be received by each alderman, will be considered at Monday's meeting.

Along with the brief was a petition containing signatures of close to 4,000 homeowners supporting RAG's push for a centre, and letters from individuals.

Logging Company Wants Lake Bottom Tax Refund

A suit against the provincial government to recover taxes on about 35,000 acres of lake bottom land on Vancouver Island has been filed by Pacific Logging Co., Canadian Pacific Railway's subsidiary that manages the former Esquimalt and Nanaimo land grant.

Filed in B.C. Supreme Court, the claim lists 77 lakes, or fractions of lakes, on which the provincial government assessed taxes in 1970. The attorney-general's department has not responded with a statement of defence. Pacific Logging's claim was entered Feb. 23.

If asserts that the lake beds are exempt from taxation on the same basis as public roads. It also claims the lake waters are owned by the Crown in the right of the province, that the water is navigable, and open to the public by boat.

Provincial government assessors claim the lake beds are owned by the company.

WANTS DECLARATION

Pacific Logging is asking the B.C. Supreme Court to order refunded $18,499.46 in taxes, plus $65.52 in interest that it allegedly paid on the lake bottoms.

The claim asks the court to declare lake bottoms not assessable or taxable under the provincial Taxation Act. The company also wants a declaration that it is not liable for either such taxation or penalties.

Some of the lakes taxed by the provincial government are:

- Part of Sprout Lake (1,937 acres), part of Great Central (135 acres), Elsie (537 acres), Cowichan (13,986 acres), Brannen (268 acres), Comox (5,676 acres), Upper Campbell (1,184 acres), part of Buttle (11,210 acres), Horlie (1,980 acres), Sooke (1,102 acres), Shawnigan (1,299 acres).

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

Bird watching is a game. You can play for fun or take it seriously. This is not to say that taking it seriously can't be fun, it just means you have to play by the rules.

A lone bird-watcher going his rounds of the good bird spots is a bit like a lone golfer pitting himself against the course; both can mark up just about any score they like. Only their respective consciences, and the suspicious questioning of their pals, holds them in check.

Golf — professional golf at any rate — has its umpires to rule on the game. Southern Vancouver Island's bird fraternity has its umpire too — the Records Committee of the Victoria Natural History Society, which sits in judgment of records and reports of rare or unusual birds seen in this area.

JUDGE REPORTS

Under chairman, Dr. Jeremy Tatum, the 7-man committee — which includes some of the top birders in this area — has the "unenviable task of judging and deciding on the validity of rare bird reports that come to them. They are quick to admit fallibility but "without fear or favour" they strive to be objective, making their decisions on the basis of the evidence at hand. Evidence in this case, is the information contained in the report.

But why the need for judges? Why not take all the reports as they come — no questions asked?

Sitting in on one of the Records Committee meetings the other night, answers to these questions soon became apparent to me. First was the obvious need to improve the quality of observations by requiring reporters to give detailed descriptions of the birds they see. More important, though, was something inherent in this quest for accuracy.

SHOOTING QUESTIONED

The traditional method of confirming a rare bird sighting has been to shoot the bird and add its prepared carcass to the collections of a museum or university. Acceptable as it has been for generations, the "shoot first, ask questions later" school has been coming under criticism of late, mainly because of a general change in the public's attitude to killing wildlife.

Victoria's Records Committee is working toward the day when sight records, backed by photographs and even sound recordings, will constitute valid evidence of a rare bird sighting just as the collected specimen has for many years.

To this end, more than 30 reports of rare birds were examined recently, and except for a couple which need further study by the committee the score for 1970 looks something like this: Six new species for Vancouver Island — one of these new to British Columbia, and three new nesting species for the Victoria-Duncan area — two of these new to Vancouver Island.

FIRST NEST SEEN

Through some diligent and tireless sleuthing on the part of John Comer and his group of naturalists at Duncan, the Rock Wren became a breeding bird for Vancouver Island when a nest was found in a talus slope near Duncan in June. While the Rock Wren had been seen once or twice before on Vancouver Island, the Duncan nest is the first breeding record.

The Duncan group were responsible for another important find, a Hammond's Flycatcher's nest, a first for southern Vancouver Island. Hammond's Flycatcher is a member of a clan of tiny, olive or greyish flycatchers which, except for their calls, are difficult to tell apart. Another of this group is a familiar bird of the aspen groves of the prairies, the Least Flycatcher. Last year, the Least Flycatcher attained a bona fide place on the Vancouver Island bird list when a nest was found in June on Mount Tolmie by Keith Taylor.

NEW BIRDS

Moving to the new species for the Island again, the tireless efforts of Duncan naturalists added the Long-eared Owl in October. About the same time, farther south in a wooded swamp in Metcalpin, Keith Taylor and Ralph Fryer added a Rusty Blackbird.

October was a busy month for area naturalists because a Wheatear — from "God-knows-where" chose to move into Pat Bay Airport to become a new species not just for Vancouver Island but for the whole of British Columbia.

Earlier in the year, February to be exact, at Tsehum Harbor near Swartz Bay, a Common Teal came in for close scrutiny by the binocular and camera clan.

Deliberations on the status of this species may be purely academic if reports from a "higher" authority. A American Ornithologists Union, prove true. Apparently the A.O.U. is moving to lump the Common Teal with the Green-winged Teal — a familiar winter bird of this area. So what we gained in '70 may be lost at some future date.

INVESTIGATIONS

Another record, Bullock's Oriole, which goes back to 1969 and which through this year's deliberations was elevated to a place on the Vancouver Island list, may be the way of the Common Teal. Bullock's Oriole and the Baltimore Oriole of farther east are also being investigated by the A.O.U. and rumor has it they too will become one.

In which case no one knows quite what we'll call our Bullock's Oriole. No matter, it'll still be a new bird for the Island.

A River's Life at Stake

THE WORDS OF FEDERAL Fisheries Minister Jack Davis in Vancouver earlier this week should be noted by all British Columbians. He said, discussing proposals to construct a huge power dam on the Fraser River at Moran: "We have a confrontation looming up here . . . not only between environmentalists on the one hand and B.C. Hydro on the other but also between the Minister of Fisheries for Canada and the Province of B.C. if it insists on going ahead with this project."

That confrontation would be more than a head-on collision between those who favor hydro power and those who favor preservation of one of the country's greatest fisheries resources. Damming of the Fraser below the mouth of the Chilcotin tributary would cut off nearly 70 per cent of the total salmon-rearing capacity of the Fraser and end hopes of the great increase in yield which is promised in the future. But it would precipitate a vast ecological catastrophe as well. As Mr. Davis puts it, "It's the Skagit River controversy twenty times over."

A pertinent comparison is the Nile River, on which the great Aswan Dam has created a large power source. But in doing so, the dam has also wrought havoc with many centuries-old natural processes down-stream. Many ecologists agree that the net effect is disastrous. It has driven fish from the eastern Mediterranean, killed the herring industry at the mouth of the Nile by cutting off river-borne nourishment for the animal life on which the herring fed; it has robbed the river of the silt that continually enriched the delta lands, threatened millions of acres with salinity, increased river area diseases, and created untold environmental changes in specific areas.

Damming the Fraser might have less comprehensive effects but they could be very serious. Mr. Davis says: "I hate to think of the scars, the slides, the cutbanks (the dam) will leave on 170 miles of canyon reaching as far north as Quesnel." Sediment which now enriches the Fraser delta would be retained as an enormous "plug of mud" behind the Moran dam. Its nourishment would be lost to agriculture as well as to the food chain of plant and fish life in the river and at sea.

That would be a terrible cost to pay for additional hydro power so long as any possible alternative — such as nuclear or coal plants — remains. Where do we stop at wrecking one aspect of our environment in order to increase the industrial output of another resource?

Premier Bennett has voiced opposition to damming the Fraser, although more recently he has wavered in this stand. Fortunately, no dam can be built without the agreement of the federal Department of Transport, because the river is navigable, or without the consent of the federal Minister of Fisheries. That should provide us with protection for a number of years. But a threat exists against which an alert public awareness is the only real safeguard.

A Country at Work

AUSTRIA'S FIGURES FOR UNemployment are at the lowest level for any January since the Second World War and the causes of this and the country's prosperity are worth considering.

Is the nationalization of some Austrian industries the cause? These industries, under the administration of the Austrian Industrial Corporation, "operate largely in the fashion of private business," according to one source. There has been controversy over the degree of control the Industrial Corporation should be allowed to exercise over nationalized industries, the Socialists arguing that increased control is a prelude to the sale of the enterprises. They say that greater autonomy for the Corporation would bring the nationalized enterprises more closely into line with private business practice and so could facilitate transfer to private hands. This confrontation has apparently not interfered with economic stability.

Austria is highly industrialized, about half of the Gross National Product coming from manufacturing and construction. The output includes iron and steel products, chemicals and consumer goods. The country is almost self-sufficient agriculturally.

Austria is highly dependent on foreign markets for sale of its products, and on foreign countries to supply vital raw materials and fuels. Trade with the European Common Market accounts for more than 40 per cent of exports; the EFTA group (of which it is a member) takes 25 per cent. About 15 per cent of Austrian exports go to eastern Europe. Imports come from numerous trading areas. This feature of the Austrian trading pattern points up the value of diversity in customers and sources.

Austria's trading position seems complemented by the country's official neutrality. What may originally have been in Austria's political interests — an ability to remain neutral as between East and West — has taken on a financial complexion, although it should be noted that Austria is in favor of closer association with the Common Market (and has tried to convince Russia of the benefits Austrian entry would have for the Soviets).

Diversification, nationalization, industrialization and neutrality are the principal factors which go into the changing equation which portrays Austria's prosperity. Other countries may study which Austrian methods could be applied to them. Yet Austria's success seems to be based largely on an enterprising adaptation to changing conditions, and that is an asset which cannot be exported.

'The Evil That Men Do . . .'

THE FORTHCOMING 24TH CON-gress of the Soviet Communist Party in Moscow, due to open on March 30, will largely revolve around the issue of Stalin's "place" in Soviet Communist history. Although a full-scale rehabilitation of the former dictator would, no doubt, bode ill for Russia's relations with the West there are many ways to effect a change in Stalin's status without completely exonerating him.

It is perhaps not easy to fathom the excessively theoretical nature of the struggle here but it is enough to say that the Stalin problem is a pivot upon which a great deal of substantive Russian policy will turn: relations with China and eastern Europe (notably Yugoslavia) are involved as well as with the West.

Reports from Moscow indicate that the solution to the problem may be resolved by turning on Khrushchev, the man who turned on his former master at the 20th Party Congress in 1956. To make a scapegoat of the volcanic Mr. K. would be a way to satisfy many Party members without alienating those who harbor fears of a return to harsh repression in the Stalin vein.

It is with such equations that careers are made in the Soviet Union — the greatest satisfaction of the greatest number of Party members.

"... Congratulations . . . and uh . . . thanks for the four million votes . . ."

Letters to the Editor

"Murder"

There is a great need in Canada today for people with convictions and morals to do something to stop the demands put before our government. We must not allow our country to erase abortion from our Criminal Code.

Abortion is not a religious issue — it is not a legislative issue — it is not a medical issue — it is a very basic human issue. There is not one shred of scientific evidence that life does not begin at conception. At the time the ovum and the sperm unite, these two cells form one cell — distinct, separate, individual and containing the genetic material for a completely separate human being. At this moment the new human being already has the color of his hair, of his eyes, his stature, many of his appetites, his likes and dislikes and perhaps even his vocation.

Even the illnesses he will be susceptible to, and his possible length of life, are decided. To destroy this life because someone made a "mistake" or any other reason is murder.

Write your federal and provincial representatives and Prime Minister Trudeau — no postage necessary. Insist they keep abortion in the Criminal Code. — J. Moreau, 2028 Runnymede.

'Right to Be Wanted'

On March 1, 1971, you printed a letter on behalf of the Abortion Reform Committee and also a letter from Mrs. Elizabeth D. Brown stating that "limitless space has been given to the pro-abortionists."

I agree with Mrs. Brown and would like to see the same privilege accorded to the anti-abortionists.

The pro-abortionists claim that every child has a right to be wanted. I would be interested to know just when this value judgment is made — at the time of conception, two months later when the mother is vomiting and two other children are ill, or at the moment of birth when the child is placed in its mother's arms?

How can anyone decide whether the child would ever be "wanted" if its basic right to life is destroyed by abortion?

Seven weeks after conception the fetus has all the familiar features and internal organs of an adult. It has an obviously human face, its sex is discernible and the buds of its milk teeth are in its gums. About this time the baby even has distinctive fingerprints. When all forms of killing have been considered a concern of the state in Canada for the past 100 years, how can the destruction of this tiny life now be considered a matter of conscience? How can it be considered a matter between consenting adults when a child's life is at stake?

Albert Schweitzer has said "We cannot respect any human life, unless we respect all human life."

The Vanier Institute for the Family helped prepare the "Declaration of the Rights of the Child" which was adopted by the General Assembly of the UN in 1959. This document reads that the child "needs special safeguards and care, including appropriate legal protection, before as well as after birth."

According to recent reports there were 16 abortions performed in hospital during the first six months of 1970, in Victoria, and 125 during the last six months. How broadly is the "health" clause in our Criminal Code as amended in 1969 already being interpreted?

Undoubtedly we must concern ourselves with the pregnant woman and her problems. But should our concern for her mean contempt for the life of her unborn child?

I would like to appeal to your readers who are against the removal of abortion from the Criminal Code to write to their MP, Prime Minister Trudeau, and Justice Minister John Turner to express their views. — Lois Handley, 1995 Casa Maria.

Inconceivable but True

It is almost inconceivable, at this time of unemployment misery, for so many families, but it is true — the plumbers' union and the millworkers (cabinet carpenters) union are demanding a huge increase in rates.

Mr. Bennett is the only one apparently with courage enough to resist the labor union monopoly's assault on the public purse.

Surely union members themselves must know better than to ask the public for increases when the current rates, already out of proportion to the average earnings, render it impossible for the average person to hire work from union construction workers, with the resultant huge loss of jobs which otherwise would be available.

When, in the name of common sense, are these people going to learn ordinary simple economic facts and end the sheer misery of the unemployed? — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Beautiful, but . . .

A line to state that Victoria is the most beautiful city I have found in all my travels. Nowhere else will you find grass so green in the winter months and flowers so pretty. Victoria is a very clean city compared to others from coast to coast, and the people are swell.

But Victoria has the worst transit-bus service in Canada. This is not good for a beautiful city like this, with so many visitors coming and going. I have heard people pass remarks in other cities about the Victoria bus service, not because of the 25 cent fare, but the service they give.

Other cities give old age people a pass for a dollar a year. Here it is five dollars per year. — A Traveler.

Thinking Week

As we celebrate Thinking Week, in honor of Lord and Lady Baden Powell, founders of the Girl Guide-Boy Scout Movement, we would like to express our appreciation to the Victoria Daily Times, also the radio stations, the merchants and all people of Victoria who support the work of the Girl Guides of Canada. — Greater Victoria Area, Girl Guides of Canada, Mrs. Marguerite L. Jickling.

No Solutions

The Regional Planning Boards meeting on Saturna Island February 26, solved nothing. Miss Purchase and her high-priced aide did their best to sugar coat the pill, but failed to tell us how to pay 1971 taxes and how to keep our people fed.

We did not get the answers to the real problems.

Is the Planning Board prepared to take over the waterworks on Saturna, the garbage dump and provide a freight service?

What are the salaries of the 18 planners, and what useful function do they perform for Saturna? Come out to the open and give us the facts. So far Mr. Dan Campbell and the Planning Board have brought stagnation to Saturna by putting every stumbling block in the way of those men who are trying to do something for themselves. — J. E. Money, Saturna Island.

Most Grateful

We wish through your paper to thank the friends of the late Miss Norma Ross who sent donations in lieu of flowers, in her memory, to help in the research work being carried out by The Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The Victoria Chapter is most grateful to them for their generosity. — E. Frances Conquest, president; Margaret H. Sanson, treasurer.

'Saving' Loon Bay

I wish to answer some comments attributed to Dr. Charles Forward in the March 2 edition of the Times in which he cast disparaging reflections upon the proposed breakwater construction at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. In part, he claimed that the breakwater and resulting activities could be detrimental to the "recreational use of Loon Bay," and the "irreparable deterioration of the environment in terms of beach recreational activities," due to such things as "gasoline and oil pollution, and assorted debris."

It is unfortunate to observe that Dr. Forward would run the risk of possibly sullying his reputation as a geographer by making such questionable statements in support of "saving" Loon Bay, which at best must be regarded a marginal recreation area.

To my knowledge the club has never received any complaints regarding oil and gasoline pollution of the area. A good many boats have oil sumps in their motors, and subsequently pose no oil pollution threat. Most outboard powered boats are sailboats, and use their engines minimally. Several years ago the R.V.Y.C. had gas docks completely removed from the Cadboro Bay area, eliminating the possibility of gas spillage. Further, during the past few years, club members have made special efforts to keep debris out of the water. If Dr. Forward is really concerned about pollution, he should get after the Oak Bay Council which allows sewage outfalls to pour into the bay — sewage, incidentally, from the Uplands area of which he is a resident.

Loon Bay has little to offer in recreational facilities unless substantial sums are spent upon improvement. It has only limited roadside parking, no picnic tables, and very little sand, most of which is covered at high tide. By far the greater part of Loon Bay is composed of mud, surely unsuitable for bathers. I have been around the club for many years and have rarely seen anyone in bathing because it's too cold. The municipality has applied for a foreshore lease to extend municipal jurisdiction to include Loon Bay below the high tide

Concert Criticism

Within the last few weeks your papers have been publishing most unfavorable reviews of concerts sponsored by the Victoria Symphony Society.

Although constructive criticism helps musicians and public alike in the development of taste and music appreciation, harsh criticism administered mercilessly may discourage artists and people involved in arranging these concerts and will ultimately deprive the public of this pleasant and worthwhile recreation.

I am a subscriber to these concerts and have enjoyed them tremendously over the years. Victoria is removed from the path of visiting theatre ensembles and cultural events so active in Eastern Canada, or even Vancouver. We ought to be grateful to those citizens who give of their time and effort to offer cultural pursuits and the possibility of enjoying outstanding artists.

Mr. Laszlo Gati and other members of the Symphony committee spend months in arranging visits of prominent virtuosos who would not come to Victoria without their initiative and talent for organization. A basic sense of good manners and hospitality should move us to welcome them and give them a warm reception.

Instead, on the pages of your papers they receive scathing criticism and undeserved derogatory comments. Who are these critics who set themselves up to run down internationally acclaimed musicians, who record their performances with the best of recording firms and who fill concert halls on both continents? What credits do these critics possess to call the genius of Brahms "cold suet pudding"? People are entitled to their opinions but semi-professionals have no right to impose their opinions on the rest of us through their so-called "reviews."

For example the beautiful Brahms No. 1 Concerto so movingly rendered by the excellent pianist Mr. Klien from Austria was described as "poor" and it was suggested to us that the artist did not "get through" to the audience. Having attended this concert I can attest to the fact that Mr. Klien so electrified the audience that there was enthusiastic response and a standing ovation. The recital of Canadian modern compositions was called "trubish" — fine encouragement to Canadian composers! And now Mr. Zabaleta's performance was judged "boring." The latter criticism is particularly mean because it was written before the Sunday and Monday recitals, thus influencing ticket sales adversely.

I am not a music critic but I do possess an average ability of music appreciation and I had the privilege of attending concerts by great musicians on both sides of the Atlantic. I am favourably impressed by Victoria's concert seasons and grateful for the opportunity to attend concerts for a nominal fee. We have concerts of the highest calibre during the dull winter months and we should offer co-operation to those who help them come about.

I am sure many people in this community share my feelings and appreciate Mr. Gati and his excellent orchestra as well as the guest artists. Let us not ruin this by irresponsible outbursts from venomous pens. — Sophia Preisman.

That Breakwater

mark, but has no plans for its development.

But Dr. Forward is to be commended for his spirited attack on behalf of environmental preservation, even if, as some of us feel, the cause is dubious. Hopefully, it would be just as vigorous were he resident in Esquimalt or Saanich, rather than in Uplands across the street from Loon Bay. — D. N. Taylor, M.A., 1915 Crescent Road.

Beaches of the Future

There are several fundamental considerations regarding the Royal Victoria Yacht Club proposed breakwater that ought to be stated. It is recognized that boating is a laudable recreational activity and should be given due consideration in planning future use of the metropolitan area coastline.

But recreational activities that focus on sandy beach areas also are worthy and should be provided for. Boating requires protected mooring, but cleanliness of the water is definitely of secondary importance. Swimming and enjoyment of the beach environment require clean water as a primary demand. Both direct and indirect effects of the proposed breakwater would cause increased water pollution in Loon Bay.

There are many miles of coastline in greater Victoria where boats can be moored with natural or breakwater protection. Sandy beach frontage on the other hand, is much more limited. If we have 400,000 people in 1991, how much more sandy beach frontage are we likely to get? Only an improvident people would squander the limited sandy beach recreational resources that now exist in public hands. If we allow the construction of a breakwater that would in any way downgrade Loon Bay Park we are squandering an irreplaceable natural resource.

There is no good reason why adequate facilities for boat mooring cannot be established north of the mouth of Loon Bay. In this manner, both recreational activities are catered to and a limited resource is preserved unimpaired. — C. N. Forward, Department of Geography, University of Victoria.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"LET'S GO IN. IT'S BEEN TWO WEEKS SINCE THEY TOLD US NEVER TO COME BACK."

Looking Back

From the Times of March 5, 1911:

Perhaps the best promise for the future of Victoria is the faith of the people who are investing their money in Jamie sites; and that the promise will be a pregnant one is proved by the ever increasing loyalty to that faith. The past few weeks have been most productive for the city's development. The present has been laying up assets for the future with remarkable insistence and unwavering enthusiasm. The realty market has experienced a boom that would almost justify the dreams of the old discredited prophets of the city.

WE'RE SKIMPING ON RESEARCH

The True North—Rich, Unknown

When it comes to the North, Canadians are schizophrenic. Most of us identify with the mythology of the North though few of us have been there.

We resent people of other countries associating us with dog sleds and igloos, yet we feel a secret attachment to these symbols.

The North is our frontier and a large part of our national ethos. It is part of the nostalgia Canadians feel for their country and a large part of our future. It is also a place where few of us want to go.

Canadian ambivalence to the North is perhaps best illustrated by the contradictory ideas most of us have about it.

Sharing Needed

The North, we believe, exceeds individual self-sufficiency and is one of the few places left in the world where survival of the fittest still applies to man himself. But we also believe that human survival in the North depends on co-operation, on a highly developed sense of community and sharing.

We think of the North as a vast wilderness where a man can roam free from the restrictions of southern cities. And there is the other side of the coin, the idea of the isolation of the North, the lonely outpost, the solitary cabin as the refuge of civilization in the face of desolation.

Another conventional wisdom has it that any young man set on making his fortune should pack up and head north. But we also say the North is for the person looking for solitude and peace.

Even disinterested Canadians now share the notion that the North will somehow play a special and perhaps dominant role in Canada's destiny. Slowly we are beginning to realize that ours is a Northern country even though we may not yet see ourselves as a Northern people.

The Canadian Arctic, the area roughly north of 60 degrees, is larger than Mantoba, Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces combined. It makes up 40 per cent of the country. The geographic centre of Canada is some 250 miles north of Churchill, an area as remote to most Canadians as Uganda.

Canada and the rest of the world virtually ignored the North until construction of the Distant Early Warning Line in the early years of the Cold War. This was the first introduction of technology to the North on a concerted scale. Though the DEW line was obsolete before it was finished, it proved that industrial man can function in the North.

What has made us aware of the North is recent interest in the development of natural resources. Canada's Mackenzie Basin holds estimated potential reserves of 20 to 30 billion barrels of crude oil, 100 to 175 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, and three to five billion barrels of natural gas liquids.

Another 80 to 120 billion barrels of crude, 400 to 600 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 12 to 18 billion barrels of natural gas liquids in potential reserves lie beneath the Arctic islands.

By PETER THOMPSON
UBC Reports

according to the most recent figures of J. C. Sproule and Associates of Calgary.

The sum—100 to 150 billion barrels of crude, 500 to 775 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 15 to 23 billion barrels of natural gas liquids—is easily the largest concentration of fossil fuels on the continent.

Billions of Barrels

Proved crude oil reserves at the end of 1968 totalled 120 billion barrels in the U.S., excluding the Prudhoe Bay oil in Alaska, which may increase the total by some 25 billion barrels—and 13 billion barrels in Canada. Proved natural gas reserves at the end of the same year were 640 trillion cubic feet for the U.S. and 65 trillion cubic feet for Canada.

Iron-ore deposits on Baffin Island are placed at one billion tons of 70 per cent ore, the richest in the world. This is not to mention minerals in the northern section of the rich Pre-Cambrian Shield. The southern portion of the Shield has been yielding minerals for decades.

These prospects thrill and frighten many Canadians. Among our fears are pollution of the North, social upheaval of indigenous people and irreversible damage to the area's delicate ecosystems.

Political instability in Middle East petroleum countries and other natural resource areas of the world is accelerating exploration of the North. A casual glance at population projections for the next few decades, even assuming measures to control population increase in North America and the rest of the world, shows a future resource demand which makes resource development of the North virtually inevitable.

Besides, U.S. continental energy reserves are running low. So the question isn't whether the North is going to be developed or whether it's in the best interests of mankind for it to be tapped. The question is how it's going to be developed.

Will it be done without serious ecological mishap? Will Indians and Eskimos come out of it as badly as their ancestors during the westward expansion across Canada more than a century ago, only this time appeased by an advance column of government welfare cheques instead of missionaries?

Canada's reaction to the need for more Arctic research in the face of the big development push has been weak and possibly reflects our ambivalence to the North. The federal Department of Northern Development's total research budget to all Canadian universities was a mere $250,000 in 1969-70. (It was during this period—the fall of 1969—that members of the House of Commons committee on Indian Affairs and Northern Development flew north to meet the American tanker Manhattan, publicly undermining Canada's territorial claims in the North.)

Yet Northern Development cut its research budget to Canadian universities for 1970-71 to $200,000.

Specific Problems

True, the Department has started an Arctic Land Use Research Program and provided some $400,000 for it in 1970-71. Its research is mission-oriented and is designed to solve specific, immediate problems. It won't touch basic research.

Perhaps half, or $100,000 of the $200,000 Northern Development has distributed to the universities this year, will go toward mission research.

This means that roughly $100,000 of the $600,000 the Department will spend on research this year will go to basic research. It is only fair to point out that other federal departments do sponsor research in the North, either by their own employees or through universities.

Mission research is properly, perhaps even desperately, needed in the North. But researchers, including some involved in mission research, say that not only is the total amount for both mission-oriented and basic research too little, but that the mix between the two types of research is wrong.

Ten years from now, they

What damage will be inflicted on the landscape?

say, crucial questions will be asked which can't be answered because the basic research which should begin now is being undertaken.

Without the basic research begun generations ago into permafrost, mineral exploration of the North, let alone development, would be impossible today. And in spite of decades of meagrely financed permafrost research, much more needs to be known on the subject before oil, gas and mining companies can operate efficiently and safely.

Permafrost is ground that has been frozen year-round for some years. If it has a high water content and the surface melts, whatever is on top—airport, oil rig, building or highway—sinks. Half of Canada is covered by permafrost.

It seems that only two government scientists, supported by three technicians in the Building Research Division of the National Research Council, are working full-time on permafrost research in Canada. Only about 15 professors and students are doing permafrost research in Canadian universities. Consulting engineers with permafrost expertise are rare.

Permafrost problems dog almost every aspect of Northern development. In the Mackenzie River delta and the North Slope of Alaska, where much drilling is now being done, the amount of ice in the permafrost has a great effect on seismic readings and is a challenge to all construction, temporary or permanent.

This isn't to mention the tremendous technical and ecological challenge of getting the minerals out of the ground and transporting them to southern markets.

A pipeline from the Arctic gas and oil fields to markets in central and eastern North America would cross more than 1,000 miles of permafrost.

Only One Aspect

And this is only one aspect of Northern development. It doesn't take into account sociological, health or general ecological questions.

Because development is dependent on research, neglect of Arctic research today will prevent proper development in the future. One result will be a smaller pool of scientists trained to grapple with Northern problems.

Prof. Ross Mackay of the UBC Department of Geography is one of Canada's leading authorities on permafrost and its problems.

His kind of knowledge is proving vital to Northern development. The type of permafrost present and its distribution is critical to many geophysical operations, construction projects and to an understanding of surface disturbances. Permafrost along the western Arctic coast is at least 1,000 feet deep, he said, and is probably 1,600 to 1,700 feet deep in some areas.

"There is a popular confusion over permafrost and permafrost damage," he said. "Permafrost is defined on a temperature basis and refers to all materials at or below 3 degrees Fahrenheit and not on how much water or ice is present in the ground. Permafrost with a low ice content near the surface presents little difficulty in construction."

"Sand and gravel, for instance, usually have so little associated ice that working with them in the Arctic is not much different from working with them in Vancouver. The same applies to the extensive bedrock area of the Canadian Shield."

"But the ice content of many silts and clays is high, so high that there is an excess of water when they are melted. Such soils are the typical cause of construction problems in the North."

"The worst cases are where there are ice bodies—in places more than 100 feet thick—lying just below the ground surface. The town of Inuvik at the mouth of the Mackenzie River is underlain with a great deal of ground ice about 15 to 20 feet below the surface. But proper construction methods have prevented it from thawing."

Largest concentration of fossil fuels on continent

Britain's Labor Scene Gloomy

LONDON—Labor relations in Britain have grown so troublesome, so impressive in their dimensions and difficulties, that one tends to look at them as if at some great natural wonder like the Grand Canyon, in an attitude of positive awe.

For the first time in recent memory, the unions are facing an absolutely intransigent government. In the past, even Tory administrations have tried to live peacefully with the unions, but now the two sides cannot, or will not, even speak to each other.

The issues of the feud are two: the government wage policy and its labor relations bill. The unions fear of each feeds on the other, making an accommodation on either that much harder to reach.

Wage claims, all of a size that would grossly breach the government's determination to hold pay increases this year to 10 per cent or less, crowd the horizon. Fifty thousand Ford workers have been on strike; so have 200,000 postal workers. Another 50,000 auto workers, 280,000 railwaymen, 343,000 teachers and a host of other groups are coming up to the starting line.

Wage rates rose 14 per cent last year. The government, paymaster in the public sector and, to a degree, in the nationalized industries, is simply having no more of it.

By ALFRED FRIENDLY

But it refuses to institute a wage control system and proposes instead to gain its objective simply by being tough as leather, hard as nails, and pressing private industry to be the same.

Perhaps this economic equivalent of the Verdun stance will succeed, but matters are likely to grow worse before they get better. Some 11 million man-days were lost last year from strikes, or twice that of 1969, itself a 10-year record high. The head of the Trade Union Congress forecasts more days lost from strikes in the first four months of this year than in all of last year.

If the nation can weather the pending wage disputes, it probably faces equal or worse disruption on the passage of the labor relations bill.

But the massive inconvenience and monetary loss the one-day protest mass strikes cause will be trifling compared to what may happen if all of most of the unions in the TUC carry out its call for "non-co-operation" with the law.

The legislation, the first comprehensive labor relations charter and regulation in British history, does not appear by accepted American standards as very punitive or restrictive.

But the British unions see it as...concocted in hell and...immolated by the devil and all his angels.

The inner cabinet approved a strong recommendation to union affiliates not to accept registration under the new law nor enter into legally binding labor agreements.

If that course is followed it would be a deliberate decision by the unions to return to the law of the jungle.

Under the new legislation only a registered union can enjoy the protection of the law in seeking to organize, be recognized, enter into labor contracts and strike for legitimate purposes. If unregistered, it would have something of a status of an American union in the 20-year period between the Clayton and Wagner acts: not illegal, but without legal rights and subject to prosecution under the anti-trust act.

After the new law is enacted here, an employer will be able to haul an unregistered union into court and obtain damages that would bankrupt the union treasury for any of a dozen normal activities, including striking, that are allowed to a registered union.

In choosing the non-registration, non-co-operation route, the unions would be placing their bets entirely on their assessment of their own muscle-power, relying on it to make extra-legal contracts and take strike action when necessary, in the gamble that employers will not dare take them to court.

It is hard to believe that the unions will in fact follow that course. The government and many other observers believe the present TUC stance was to be predicted but is bound to be temporary, and that in due course it will be abandoned in favor of co-operation, for the obvious advantages the new law provides.

But predictions are risky. Given its present inflated attitude and the left-wing leadership of some of its largest unions, organized labor in Britain may be capable of unimaginable destructiveness.

They're Wrapping Up the War

WASHINGTON—The packaging industry and the Pentagon got together for three days recently to talk about how they are getting along in crating bombs for shipment so there is no outward damage to them before they are dropped on people.

The happy results of the conference are perhaps best captured by a blurb in a promotional pamphlet distributed by one of the exhibitors, Package Research Laboratory of Rockaway, N.J., a division of which has crated many a bomb, bullet, rocket and land mine for the defence department.

"Several years of actual shipping experience have proven the ability of the wire-bound container to perform as required. Thousands of bombs have been shipped with excellent results reported."

It was obvious from the rapid attention they bestowed on each other, that the brass of the Defence Supply Agency and the salesmen of the packaging industry were eager to rap.

The military brass distributed a pamphlet entitled How to do Business with the Defence Supply Agency; a Guide to the Businessman in his Constant Search for New Markets. Inside over the signature of the agency's director, Lt. Gen. Carl Hedlund, it said: "Experienced, reliable suppliers vitally important to the Defence Supply Agency—and a valuable asset to our national defence."

The packaging people repaid the director's courtesy by clinging to every word he said in his keynote address about how his agency, which spends $3-billion of the taxpayers' money each year, is looking toward a whole new plateau of packaging brought about by containerized shipping.

The packaging industry—while no one has been paying much, some would say sufficient, attention—has become very big business; its promoters claim it is the fifth largest industry in the United States, so the defence buyers and the industry sellers had lots to talk about.

They did so in the cozy atmosphere of a Washington hotel with nobody else much listening—which didn't seem to bother them at all. No one seemed overjoyed when this reporter showed up.

Gen. Hedlund said that the Vietnam war had brought "a rapid change from peacetime to wartime packaging."

The war pointed up the inadequacy of a wholesale-based supply system versus "retail-type support" and of the drawbacks of horizontal warehouses. "We need to give some thought to vertical facilities, particularly for retail-type support," he said.

By TERRANCE WILLS

The war—or the South-east Asia emergency as the supply agency pamphlet calls it—also brought to light "the problem of incomplete documentation...or in transit cargo visibility," said the director. That is, when they got the boxes over there they didn't know what was inside them.

Next time, said Gen. Hedlund, the agency will set up data processing equipment on the other side to keep tabs on shipments. And next time, he hopes, it will not take 120 days to ship by sea and 15 to ship by air. "That is much too long for any war of the future," he said.

Package Research Laboratory was one of the big exhibitors at the conference. It had literature with photographs such as a bespectacled workman in a lift truck intently approaching a giant napalm bomb cradled in a crate. The caption read: "The wirebound pallet crate, adopted by the air force to ship a 750-pound BLU-27 fire bomb, can be assembled in 15 minutes. Besides exceeding air force test demands for greater protection, each wirebound reduced costs by approximately $50."

The company is proud of its wirebound containers. "Their inherent strength enables them to stand up well under such extreme conditions as beach landings and Arctic service."

The packaging industry is a $35-billion-a-year business, according to the annual report of the Packaging Education Foundation Inc. (Leadership through education).

A pamphlet circulated by the school of packaging at Michigan State University, one of seven institutions of higher learning offering degrees in packaging, said that the industry "is a large user of our natural resources, accounting for approximately 50 per cent of all paper and paperboard, 95 per cent of all glass (except flat glass), and is the third largest user of steel."

The Packaging Education Foundation annual report told of the first annual packaging man of the year award to William May, chairman of the board of American Can Co., in "honor not only of his distinguished career in packaging and his significant contributions to it but also his involvement in ecology."

Some of the Pertinent Facts on Veterans' Affairs

By ELIZABETH FORBES

An interesting capsule report on Veterans' affairs, compiled by Members of Parliament David Groos and David Anderson, has come to my desk. It contains so many pertinent facts, I'm going to pass some of them on to you today.

It points out at the beginning that there are nearly a million veterans in Canada today, survivors of Canadian contingents that fought in South Africa, the two World Wars, in Korea and in other United Nations peace-keeping operations. There are also widows, parents, sons and daughters of those who died.

There are presently 133,212 veterans and 29,100 dependents receiving pensions as a direct result of death and disability arising out of military services; 37,000 of these are attributable to the First World War and 125,000 to the Second.

It is important, especially to these pensioners, that a major bill amending the Pensions Act received House of Commons approval on February 18 after study by the veterans affairs committee.

The two Davids point out that the bill incorporates almost all of the recommendations of the House of Commons committee and the major proposals made by the Woods Committee. They say "it will be immensely beneficial to veterans and their dependents."

Then they summarize some of the main features of the bill, as follows:

- Pensions will be increased 10 per cent to take effect on April 1, the fourth increase in basic pensions in the past seven years.

- War veterans allowances will be increased by 15 per cent and outside income ceilings will be raised to $161 for single and $271 for married veterans.

- A presumption of fitness on enlistment will be established which should assist all veterans applying for pensions.

- The existing "benefit of doubt" clause, which has been intended to give the benefit of the doubt to veterans, has been completely rewritten because in its present form it was unsatisfactory and had not achieved its purpose.

- Between 1,000 and 2,000 pensioners suffer from exceptional incapacity. They include paraplegics and multiple amputees. They will be entitled to extra allowances of between $800 and $2,400 per year in addition to the existing pension and attendant's allowance.

- The law will provide a minimum pension of .50 per cent for all Hong Kong veterans who have any pensionable disability, no matter how small.

David Anderson and David Groos point out that "veterans taken prisoner by the Japanese suffered exceptional rigorous and debilitating conditions beyond those experienced by other Canadian veterans."

The bill also will make Hong Kong veterans' dependents eligible for survivors' pension in the event of their death and will apply also to widows and dependents of veterans who have already died.

The capsule report makes it clear that there will be a new Pensions Review Board to which any veteran can appeal decisions of the Canadian Pensions Commission.

There will also be a new bureau of pension advocates, independent of both the department of veterans affairs and the Canadian Pension Commission.

The two MPs explain that for more than 40 years free legal service has been given to veterans and has been much valued by them.

However, because the old veterans bureau was part of the department of veterans affairs, it was in a difficult position, owing allegiance both to the department and to veterans.

"Establishing an independent position will give it more freedom and veterans greater confidence."

The report ends with the fact that "any veteran may apply for a review of his pension entitlement, regardless of previous decisions of the pension commission."

Iron Curtain Speech Remembered in U.S.

FULTON, Mo. (CP) — Twenty-five years ago today, Winston Churchill told the world: From the gymnasium of this Missouri town's Westminster College:

"From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic an iron curtain has descended across the continent."

"Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of central and eastern Europe—Warsaw, Berlin, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest and Sofia. All these famous cities and the populations around them lie in the Soviet sphere, and all are subject in one form or another not only to Soviet influence but a very high and increasing measure of control from Moscow."

His references to the Iron Curtain were scribbled in pencil almost as an afterthought during a train trip with President Harry Truman from Washington.

The speech, delivered March 5, 1946 in the gymnasium with President Truman seated behind Churchill, sent chills through the audience—and through a world weary of war.

Tonight, Britain's former ambassador, Lord Harlech, will open a three-day commemoration at Westminster of Churchill's appearance on the campus. He will speak in the college's new auditorium, part of the Churchill quadrangle where the war-damaged Christopher Wren Church, St. Mary the Virgin, Aldermanbury, was transported from London and rebuilt stone by stone as a memorial to Churchill.

Surgeon at Fault

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County has agreed to pay $110,000 to the family of a woman who died after six-inch surgical scissors were left in her body following abdominal surgery. A court approved the settlement between a county-owned hospital and the family of Margaret F. Craig.

Mail Wasted

WARSAW (Reuters) — A post office in Lodz in central Poland delivered about 1,500 letters and postcards, including registered mail, to a waste paper depot instead of to their addressees, a Warsaw newspaper reported. A worker discovered the lost mail and all the letters were later delivered.

Creditistes Blast Government For Bill to Extend Surtax

OTTAWA (CP) — The Creditistes led the opposition in lambasting the government Thursday for speaking "with forked tongues" and supporting campaign contributors with a bill to extend the three-per-cent surtax on corporate and personal income taxes.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste-Roberval) accused the government of deception. It had introduced the surtax in 1968 calling it a temporary measure to fight inflation.

Roland Godin (Creditiste-Portneuf) said the government always supported the wealthy firms who fill Liberal campaign coffers.

The bill would also provide a capital cost allowance to businesses buying certain kinds of machinery, equipment and buildings.

They could value such purchases at 115 per cent of their actual price in writing them off against income taxes.

Both measures were proposed in the government's Dec. 3 budget.

Mr. Godin offered a motion that would delay second reading of the bill six months, in effect killing it.

MOTION DEFEATED

The motion was defeated 91 to 49, with the three opposition parties siding against the Liberals.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 152, Conservative 72, New Democrat 23, Creditiste 13, Independent 1, vacant 3.

Today the House is to debate

a bill setting new mining regulations in the Yukon.

In Thursday's debate, Creditiste Rene Matte (Champlain) accused the government of "thinly veiled arrogance" in continuing the surtax.

Government policies were resulting in "unemployment, social deterioration and anarchy," He said buying power should be increased with no-interest loans and lower taxes.

Fellow Creditiste Adrien Lambert (Bellechasse) said the government should make the same kind of low-interest loans to Canadian firms that it grants underdeveloped countries.

VALADE ASTOUNDED

Georges Valade (PC—Montreal Ste. Marie) said he was "astounded to hear these pseudo-defenders of the working class" attack the surtax.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette had supported the minority Liberal government when it was defeated in a vote on the original surtax in 1968.

But Mr. Valade added that he too opposed the extension of the surtax for another year.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) said the capital cost allowance favors industries exporting raw materials.

If raw-material exporters continued to be favored "we are exporting jobs," Mr. Saltsman said.

William Skoreyko (PC—Edmonton East) expressed support for such measures as the capital cost allowance, "particularly if it benefits business in any way at all."

West Outdrinks East

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western Canadians are drinking Eastern Canadian coffee under their coffee mugs, Peter R. Culos of Vancouver, director of marketing for Nabors Foods Ltd., said in an interview here. He said Canadians in Western Canada drink 60 per cent of the regular coffee consumed in Canada each year. He admitted that Eastern Canadians have an edge in consumption of instant coffee.

NDP 'Drifting'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cy Gonick, NDP member of the Manitoba legislature for Crescentwood, says his party has drifted towards "a kind of wishy-washy Liberalism" and must steer a socialist course if it wants to survive. Gonick, a member of the NDP's waffle group, which is supporting James Laxer for the national leadership, said in a television interview that four of the five candidates spend most of their time denying they're socialists.

Wheat Chief Named

REGINA (CP) — Agriculture Minister D. T. McFarlane announced in the Saskatchewan legislature Thursday that G. N. Vogel has been appointed chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board. Vogel succeeds W. C. McNamara who resigned last fall and subsequently appointed to the senate.

Tire Studs Hit

WINNIPEG (CP) — There is overwhelming evidence to show studded tires are more of a safety hazard than a safety bonus, Dean Muncester of Toronto, president of Canadian Tire Corp., said in an interview here Wednesday.

He said studded tires should be banned from all Canadian roads, maintaining they chew up roads making ruts in which ice forms and that they destroy lane markings.

Drug Effective

EDMONTON (CP) — The new drug L-Dopa is showing excellent results in the treatment of Parkinson's disease, Dr. H. M. Toupin of Edmonton said Wednesday. The neurologist said the drug results in improvement in 75 per cent of patients compared with 25 per cent for drugs used previously. Parkinson's disease affects the central nervous system causing shaking and increasing rigidity.

Buffalo Get Hay

CALGARY (CP) — About 500 tons of hay is being distributed daily to help feed buffalo at Elk Island National Park east of Edmonton, the regional director of the Canadian Wildlife Service reports.

Poor Complainers

THOMPSON, Man. (CP) — Canadian consumers are generally poor complainers, says Mrs. Tannis Yankowicz of Winnipeg, Prairie region consumer consultant for the federal department of consumer affairs. She adds that when complaints are registered they usually come from men.

Summer Jobs

EDMONTON (CP) — Summer jobs could be created for students by constructing more airstrips in the North. Jack Moar, chairman of the Alberta division, Community Planning Association, said Thursday. He said the airstrips would also serve a safety function.

THE WEATHER

Skies cleared briefly over the province Thursday night but by early morning almost all stations were reporting cloud. A few snow flurries occurred in the interior and temperatures dropped to the twenties and even lower at a few isolated points.

Along the coast temperatures held near thirty because of the cloud cover and a gentle stirring of the unsettled air. A developing storm centre southeast of the weather ship indicates an end to the long cold snap by Saturday.

Arson Suspected

RICHMOND (CP) — Arson was suspected in a fire which interrupted classes at Cambie Junior Secondary School for about 20 minutes Thursday. Pupils were evacuated from the school after a fire broke out in a steam pipe. Meanwhile, pupils returned to William Cook elementary school Thursday, after it was damaged by fire Saturday night. Police were still investigating that fire in which the school gymnasium was destroyed.

Body Found

KELOWNA (CP) — RCMP reported Thursday they had recovered the body of P. A. Maundrell, 56, in about 100 feet of water on the west side of Okanagan Lake where his car apparently went over a cliff into the water. He was reported missing from his Kelowna home Monday night.

Mishap Fatal

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Alvin Pitre of Prince George was pronounced dead on arrival at Prince George hospital Thursday following an industrial accident at Mackenzie, 120 miles north of here. He was injured in a fall at a construction project.

Assault Costly

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aeneas G. Murphy, 37, of North Vancouver was awarded $5,375 damages in county court here against William Messieris, 19, of Vancouver. Court was told that Murphy was assaulted on Davie Street in Vancouver in April 1969 after being harassed by a group of teenagers. Judge W. A. Schultz commented that "any person has the right to walk on any street in the city without interference."

Woman Killed

KELOWNA (CP) — Mrs. Walter Spencer, 24, of Kelowna died Thursday from injuries sustained Wednesday night in a two-car collision on Highway 97 four miles north of here. Police said Mrs. Spencer was a passenger in one of the two vehicles. An inquest has been ordered.

MLA PROPOSES TRACK TAKEOVER

A Sacred MLA Thursday asked the government to study the feasibility of taking over all railway tracks in British Columbia.

Burt Campbell (SC—Revelstoke-Slocan) put notice of a motion on the order paper asking the house committee on mining and railways to undertake the study.

Campbell's idea is for the government to own the railways' rights-of-way, signal systems, tracks and fixed facilities but to leave operation of the railways to existing companies.

He said the move would be economical because it would ensure full development of provincial mineral resources and stimulate bidding for hauling of raw materials.

Incorporation of Unorganized Areas 'Inevitable'

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell indicated Thursday that some form of legislation requiring unorganized areas to incorporate is inevitable.

Campbell told the legislative committee on municipal matters that the growth of population in some non-municipal areas in British Columbia has reached the point where the question of incorporation must seriously be considered.

But he said no immediate legislation is required. At the meeting again were members of the executive of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

The committee, to put the matter simply, is studying what conditions should exist where an unorganized district would be forced to incorporate.

In considering what factors might lead an area to incorporate or be annexed to an existing municipality, the committee studied several points prepared by Campbell:

- Population and population density.
- The level of existing services.

The fact that some services in a community are cheaper with incorporation or annexation.

The fact that certain services such as pollution control would be cheaper when provided from a better tax base.

The fact that improvement districts are not legislative bodies and cannot determine zoning, building regulations and so on.

The fact that unorganized areas already deliver some municipal services—water, fire protection and sewers—but cannot provide some of the social services offered by municipalities.

Then Adams of the UBCM told the committee that development of unorganized areas through the administrative power of regional districts might make them less willing to become municipalities and administer their own development.

But Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, also on the UBCM executive, disagreed. He said development may make residents more interested in managing their own affairs.

Curtis nodded in agreement as Campbell enlarged on this theme. Campbell said more highly-developed unorganized areas, such as Colwood, do not receive the per-capita provincial grant.

This means they are paying for services but not receiving the same provincial assistance as municipalities. Campbell also said unorganized areas also continue to pay a provincially-assessed 10-mill levy which stays no matter how great the level of services increases. This levy goes when incorporation takes place.

These financial reasons, he suggested, may be incentives for municipal incorporation.

Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy asked the UBCM if it would be willing to survey the opinions of its members, which include regional district representatives from unorganized areas, at the next UBCM convention.

The delegation said this would be easy to do, and they would be willing. But, said the UBCM, they would not ask the opinions of groups outside their membership.

Campbell said if the UBCM does this, its report would be received and studied by the committee next year.

Equality Lack in Courts Spurring Disrespect—MLA

By BRUCE YEMEN and PETER McNELLY

A Liberal MLA Thursday urged Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to take quick action to counteract a growing public feeling that there is no equality before the courts.

In debate of Peterson's estimates, Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour) said respect for the law, particularly among young people, has been declining at an alarming rate recently because of instances of unequal treatment.

He said he made "no apologies" to the legislature for citing a case involving Einar Gunderson, prominent businessman and Social Credit party supporter.

Differences

Clark compared Gunderson's treatment before the courts with a similar case involving a fisherman in Vancouver arrested about the same time last year as Gunderson. Both were charged with driving while exceeding the .08 alcohol limit.

Clark said Gunderson was involved in an accident while the fisherman was not. Gunderson was originally charged with leaving the scene of the accident, while the fisherman submitted to a breath test and admitted he drank seven beers. By leaving the scene, Gunderson escaped the same circumstances, he said. The fisherman also spent a night in jail, Clark said.

Complaints

Before the court, Gunderson received a $125 fine and no suspension, although the motor vehicles branch later gave an automatic 30-day suspension on reviewing the offence. The fisherman told the judge he needed his car for transporting supplies to his fishboat, but was fined $100 and suspended from driving for six months.

Clark, an open-line radio moderator, said he was besieged with calls about the incident and added he is reaching the point where he finds it almost impossible to defend courts from complaints of unequal treatment.

He asked Peterson if his department had done any research into equality of treatment before the courts and the degree of co-ordination between judges in handing out sentences.

If he has any evidence to counteract the growing concern about inequality, he should make it public, Clark said.

Ernie LeCours (SC—Richmond) complained that a man who defrauded the provincial welfare department and then left the province where he entered a retraining course was hauled back in sentenced to 12 months in jail.

But businessmen who defraud the income tax branch of the federal government of much larger amounts have been getting off with fines and no-jail terms, he said.

Approve Estimates

Peterson's estimates finally were approved at 3:30 a.m. today after more than 16 hours of debate over two days.

Earlier Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) said the government's position that it can't be sued unless it grants permission is "very much like Russia and I think it's lousy."

Gardom also called for a uniform set of administrative procedure rules to be followed when citizens come before government tribunals.

Gardom also said the government does not pay enough for jury duty and pays nothing for people who sit on coroners' juries.

$10 a Day

The stipend for jury duty is $10 a day, Gardom said. The B.C. Bar Association has recommended $25 a day. The problem, he said, is that people on low and moderate incomes cannot afford jury duty for extended periods.

Peterson's reply was that no province in Canada pays for jury duty at coroners' inquiries.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) gently chided Peterson for having used the term "Mafia" earlier this week. (Peterson had used the words "so-called Mafia.")

Extra-Sensitive

"You should use the term 'organized crime,'" Capozzi said, describing himself as "extra-sensitive" to the word "Mafia" because of its Italian origin.

Later, Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin), the only native Indian in the house, suggested the Italian "tribe" isn't the only one with such problems, as anyone could see by watching the average television "western."

William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Elkton) asked Peterson to create a booklet for widows and widowers to help them settle small estates.

Ernie Hall (NDP—Surrey) said B.C. has more Queen's Counsels than Great Britain and none of them are NDP lawyers. Hall said he wondered whether there was a political pattern to appointments of QCs.

Speaking more seriously, Hall noted Peterson does not submit an annual report to the attorney-general's department. He asked him to do this to explain his department's programs and policies.

Act Attacked

Hall also attacked B.C.'s Privacy Act as being "absolutely meaningless." And he urged Peterson to make companies incorporated under private members' bills subject to the restrictions as those incorporated under the Companies Act.

Peterson said it is true that few cases have been heard under the Privacy Act, but he added that B.C. was the first province to introduce such legislation.

Minister Without Portfolio Pat Jordan said lawyers ought to be more responsible to the public. Many people are frightened by the jargon of the courtroom, she said.

Mrs. Jordan proposed legal counsellors to explain the general workings of the law to people who usually cannot afford and may not need lawyers.

Judge Shortage

Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) and Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said a shortage of judges in B.C. has resulted in several months' delay in getting cases to court.

Peterson blamed lawyers who get adjournments to suit their convenience as the reason for delays.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett told Peterson the conduct at a coroners' inquest into the traffic deaths of a family of five in Hancey at Christmas could lead to suspicion that a cover-up had been done for an off-duty policeman involved in the accident, unless a full investigation came from the government.

Peterson said he had asked for a copy of the coroner's report. But Barrett said this would not be sufficient to remove all doubt. If Peterson did not do a proper investigation, Barrett said, he would bring the entire matter before the house at the next session.

Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said the government ought to do something about the $250 fine charged people who don't get automobile insurance.

And Dowding said what should be done is to judge each case on its merits. Macdonald added that fining everyone $250 sounds fair, but actually is a penalty on working people for whom the sum is a lot of money.

Peterson said not everyone is fined, that suspended sentences can be given.

Probation Policy

The NDP also attacked the government's probation policy saying too few officers have been hired to meet expanding needs, and too few people are on probation in proportion to those in jail.

Peterson said 22 new probation officers will be hired this year according to provisions in his estimates. But Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) said it is likely that these men won't be hired because the government doesn't pay enough to make the job attractive. This means existing staff will continue to be overworked, he said.

"Merely the Greatest Sedan in the World."

—Road & Track

When we received our first Mercedes-Benz 300SEL 6.3, we felt it was probably the finest car we had ever driven. Of course we thought our opinion might be a little biased. But then Road & Track called it "Merely the Greatest Sedan in the World." And the reviews from other automotive experts were equally flattering. Motor Trend called the 6.3 "the safest, fastest and most comfortable 4-door sedan made today."

Tom McCall tested the 6.3 for Mechanix Illustrated, and termed it the "world's best car."

But don't take our word for it. Or their word. Stop in and let us give you a thorough test drive. Then draw your own conclusion.

JAIL CARE 'SUB-STANDARD'

Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) told the legislature early today the standard of medical care at Wilkinson Road jail is "well below the standard acceptable to any segment of society."

Wallace expressed concern about "communication" failures in provision of proper medical treatment for prisoners at the jail.

He raised the case of James Oliver Erdman who committed suicide in the jail last year.

He expressed some sympathy for the difficulties faced by Dr. Donald Shorting in providing a part-time medical service at the jail until his recent resignation.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Wallace's assessment of the situation at the jail was a fair one and he expressed hope that arrangement of psychiatric care through the Eric Martin Institute would improve the situation at the jail.

Generally speaking, said Peterson, inmates of B.C. jails get medical care as good as or better than "those of us on the outside."

Playoff Looms For Brier Title

BILL WALKER

Well, it's almost time to stop talking, and start the fighting. Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier have been working themselves up for Monday's meeting at Madison Square Garden, and around the world on closed-circuit television. Will the real champ please stand up?

At least Ali has been working himself into a lather over the bout which besides making each man an instant millionaire will decide who rightfully owns the heavyweight title. The TV news shots of his appearance at the pre-fight physical in New York on Wednesday made certain of that, if there had been any previous doubt.

Ali didn't let the writers down at the question and answer period. Most of them never even got to ask a question, his arrogant monologue was so complete.

"I'll whup him," he said, dropping messages for Frazier, who had preceded him, and wasn't around to hear the remarks. "It will be no contest," he added. "He's easy to hit. Everybody hits him." And so on. Big mouth was at his best.

Frazier had been there earlier, a massive hunk of a man. He was the complete opposite of Ali, low key. When he was asked about problems he may encounter because he has been a notoriously slow starter, he answered: "We'll see how slow I start Monday."

And he gave his own prediction, too, though not in verse, which is Ali's theme, "I'll stop Clay," he said. Asked for a particular round, he countered with "inside of ten."

But if Frazier is a magnificent physical specimen, and the slugger of the party, Ali also is big, man, big. He is beautifully proportioned, and may even be much stronger physically than he was when he originally held the title. He has put on weight, and on him all of it looks good.

He appeared to be in the peak of condition, vocal and physical. And his composure in weight to 214, from the 222 of last week at Miami Beach, means that he's likely to use speed as one of his main weapons against the expected, bullish tactics of the bulky Frazier.

To which suggestion Frazier earlier had replied: "He's only got two hands, and from what I've seen, they ain't so fast as Bob Foster."

It was understandable that both weren't asked to appear at the same time. Frazier would have been the psychological loser. Ali would have had a field day. Frazier wouldn't have been able to hang up as he does in their TV commercial, and who wants to spoil that?

Ali would have told Frazier, too, that actually Frazier had no business being there. After all, it wasn't Frazier's title to defend. It was Ali's.

That was old hat, and over three and one-half years ago, Frazier could have replied, and added: Since then you have been a non person, and a new champ has been elevated to the throne. Frazier didn't get the opportunity, either, to call Ali, to his face, by his slave name, Cassius Clay, which Ali reportedly detests. This was a poor excuse for a psychic job dreamed up by Frazier's manager, Yank Durham. It was designed to make Ali furious, who could tell?

At any rate both men have fine records, have beaten everybody who has stepped into a ring with them, and are what they claim to be — a heavyweight champion. It's only the timing that is in question.

Until he met Jerry Quarry last fall, Ali had been away from the ring wars for a long time. His three and one-half year exile showed in that fight. He beat Quarry, sure, but he got help from Quarry's corner. Someone threw in the towel early.

Then Ali took on Oscar Bonavena. His incredible ego demanded that he beat Bonavena worse than Frazier did. Still he could not take chances that Bonavena may land some heavy blows on him, either. And he bided his time. It was in the 15th round that Bonavena finally succumbed. He was slowed by fatigue.

That Ali had something left at that time, is a credit to the good life, he led, through that long exile. He had never abused his body.

But can he use the same tactics against Frazier? It would seem not, and his best attack obviously will be to keep pumping those jabs into Frazier's face, and attempting to keep him off balance. He does have an edge in reach, and besides, he is a magnificent boxer. Take nothing away from him.

Still, in rebuttal, it could be said that Frazier's answering moves, or lunges, won't come primarily because of panic. Besides Frazier has more artillery than Ali's two most recent foes; it is better concentrated; he knows how to use it and he handled Quarry and Bonavena equally as well as Ali.

A boxer against a slugger to decide who is the real champ? Almost four years later, youth will prevail. Frazier won't be intimidated, or beaten, either, once the real fighting starts.

What's He Gonna Do After I Whup Him?

By The Canadian Press
Odds favor champion Joe Frazier, but Muhammad Ali wonders what he's "gonna do after I whup him" Monday night when the two meet for the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Frazier has been listed as the 13-to-10 favorite by Las Vegas bookies for the title clash.

West Sidelined By Knee Injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry West, injured Tuesday night in a game at Buffalo, will be out of action for the rest of the National Basketball Association season, Los Angeles Lakers said Wednesday.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, team physician, said West suffered a torn ligament in his right knee in the first half of the 131-118 victory through Saturday before moving over the Braves.

Duguid, Tetley Win Again; Pickering Close

Times News Services

QUEBEC — The shadow of a Saturday playoff hung discreetly over the top contenders as both Manitoba and Northern Ontario continued their neck-and-neck pace in the Canadian curling championships today.

Don Duguid's Winnipeg rink, the defending champions, won its seventh game this morning by cruising to an easy 10-6 victory over New Brunswick.

Northern Ontario, skipped by 37-year-old Bill Tetley of Thunder Bay, matched Manitoba's 7-1 won-lost record with an 11-7 romp over Nova Scotia after cracking a five-ender on the first end.

British Columbia, skipped by Prince George's Kevan (Duke) Smale, was idle this morning. Virtually out of the running after losing two games in Thursday's storm-marred schedule, Smale's quartet was to face Ontario this afternoon and Manitoba this evening.

PICKERING WINS

Saskatchewan's Bob Pickering kept alive his hopes by defeating Ontario 10-8 this morning to run his record to 6-2.

In this morning's other games, Alberta's Matt Baldwin came from behind to shade Prince Edward Island 11-0 on an extra end and Newfoundland topped Quebec 11-7.

The violent blizzard that lashed Quebec Thursday made curling history. It forced postponement, for the first time, of a regularly-scheduled draw.

The ninth round was originally scheduled for Thursday evening but set back to this morning. The 10th and 11th rounds subsequently were moved back to this afternoon and evening.

That means that a tie would force the deciding playoff or playoffs, if a three-way split came about would have to be played Saturday.

TWO LOSSES

B.C., upset by lowly New Brunswick 8-7 in the seventh round, suffered its biggest setback in the eighth round. That was when Saskatchewan posted a 10-7 triumph to hand Smale his third setback — and left the Prince George rink with virtually no hope of winning this year.

Standings: Northern Ontario 7-1, Manitoba 6-2, Saskatchewan 6-3, British Columbia 5-3, Alberta 4-4, Ontario 4-5, New Brunswick 3-6, Newfoundland 3-3, Prince Edward Island 3-4, Quebec 2-6, Nova Scotia 1-7.

Remainder draws: Afternoon — N. Ontario vs. Alberta, Manitoba vs. Saskatchewan, B.C. vs. Ontario, New Brunswick vs. Newfoundland, Nova Scotia vs. Quebec. Evening — Manitoba vs. B.C., Ontario vs. P.E.I., Saskatchewan vs. Newfoundland, Nova Scotia vs. New Brunswick.

Ninth round: Saskatchewan 10-7 New Brunswick, Ontario 11-0 Nova Scotia, Quebec 11-7 Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island 11-0 Alberta.

Ten round: Manitoba 11-0 Saskatchewan, Ontario 10-8 Quebec, Nova Scotia 11-0 New Brunswick, P.E.I. 11-0 Alberta.

Eleventh round: Manitoba 10-6 Saskatchewan, Ontario 10-8 Quebec, Nova Scotia 11-0 New Brunswick, P.E.I. 11-0 Alberta.

Wheelers Launch New Bike Season

Members of Victoria Wheelers will launch a new season of bicycle racing Sunday with a 15-mile time trial.

Competition is open to all cyclists, male and female, who must be at the starting point Happy Valley Store on Happy Valley Road 30 minutes prior to the starting time of 10 a.m.

Later, members of Alberta's rink used a snowmobile to take them back to their hotel. Some of the players suffered frost-bitten fingers but "it was not believed it was serious enough to keep them out of competition."

Meanwhile, stones being used in the Brier came in for criticism. It was suggested that any problems the curlers may have with the ice may be the fault of the stones.

Arnie Butterworth of Ottawa, Canadian branch chairman of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club, said reconditioned stones being used could be at fault and that even the slightest flaw could cause the rock to fish-tail as it moves down the ice.

Don Duguid of Winnipeg, the Manitoba skip, showed onlookers a crack in one of the rocks. Earlier, other players had said the stones were not acting as they should. Jim Sargent of Thunder Bay said some of the stones never acted the same way twice.

The ice is considered to be in fair condition by icemaker Dan Brown, an icemaker for over 50 years.

However, he explained that the temperature of 18 degrees didn't help matters because the desired temperature was 24 degrees. One degree can make a difference," he said.

In other happenings, an injury regulation has been written into the rule book. Now a rink will be allowed a sweeper if one member of the rink becomes ill or is injured. The lead will throw four stones.

University of Manitoba Bisons, champions of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association hockey league, failed to place a single player on the all-star lineup selected by eight league coaches.

Bisons had two players in runner-up positions in the poll while members of the trailing University of Victoria Vikings were unable to collect any of the top two places.

University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, who finished second in the league, placed three players — goalie Ian Wilke, defenceman Jack Moore and centre Bob McAnecley — on the all-stars.

McAnecley also won the scoring championship with 30 goals and 22 assists.

Others selected to the squad were defenceman Steve Carlyle and forward Jack Gibson, who finished three points behind McAnecley, from the Alberta Golden Bears and forward Frank Richardson of Calgary Dinosaurs.

Runners-up in voting were goaltender Grant Clay and centre Rod Langquist of Bisons, defenceman Terry Brown, and John Jenkins of Dinosaurs, forward Gerry Hornby of Alberta and forward Barry Wilcox of UBC.

McAnecley also won the scoring championship with 30 goals and 22 assists.

Others selected to the squad were defenceman Steve Carlyle and forward Jack Gibson, who finished three points behind McAnecley, from the Alberta Golden Bears and forward Frank Richardson of Calgary Dinosaurs.

Rams Topple Leading Totes.

Mount Douglas Rams struck swiftly on home boards Thursday and then held off a rally to defeat leading Victoria Totems 51-47 in the final regular-season game for each club in the Inter-High School Boys' Basketball League.

Victory brought Rams a share of second place with Belmont Braves, who now have a chance to collect a share of first place in one of two final games tonight.

Totems could have clinched the title with a win but now must await the result of tonight's encounter between Braves and Reynolds Roadrunners.

Mount View tackles Oak Bay in the other final game. Rams ran up a 34-20 half-time lead and survived 14-9 and 13-8 margins earned by Totems in the third and fourth quarters. Greg Gardner and Jim Duddridge sparked Rams' offence with 13 points each while Pete Grabowski (12) and Ian Scott (11) led Victoria.

The top four teams enter the Island tournament March 12-13 in Victoria.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Setting up fine lesson by capturing Times' Bowler-of-the-Week men's fifteen award is teacher Barrie Foster, who joined list of winners during 18th week of competition. Barrie collected weekly laurels and berth in eighth annual Bowler-of-the-Year rollofs on May 2 with 301-389-347-837 series in Monday Classic League at Gibson's Bowldrome.

Swim Teams In Title Meet

Eight clubs, including five from Greater Vancouver, have entered the sixth annual Vancouver Island synchronized swimming championships, scheduled to start at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at the YM-YWCA. Victoria is represented by the Juan de Fuca, Cochettes and other Island squads are entered from Port Alberni and Campbell River. A total of 78 swimmers will be competing for laurels in five age-class brackets until 8:30 p.m. and admission is free to spectators.

European Soccer Clubs Tangled in Money Mess

By MIKE HUGHES
LONDON (UPI) — Soccer, the world's most popular spectator sport, is in a financial mess in Europe. From Rome to London, Munich to Lisbon, the figures make as dismal reading as a Rolls Royce balance sheet. In Italy, France and Austria, not one club makes money at the gate. Portugal and Belgium each have one club in the black, Holland two, Yugoslavia three and Spain four. The most prosperous centres of European soccer are West Germany and England. In West Germany, however, 60 per cent of league clubs are losing money. In England, where three quarters of the fans pay a ridiculously low admission price of 30 new pence (72 cents), 12 of the 92 clubs are in the black with the 22 first division teams drawing an average crowd of 32,000 per game. Weakness on the part of management in salary negotiations with star players and coaches appears to be the root of the trouble. Figures gathered by United Press International in western Europe, where the game is the major winter spectator sport and plays to vast audiences in the foulest weather, show professional soccer would have gone to the wall years ago but for the generosity of sponsors and individual backers with substantial private means. It's little wonder no Italian club can stand on its own feet when a coach, Helenio Herrera of A. S. Roma, was paid $363,200 for a year and Cagliari's star player, Luigi Riva, earns a reported $144,000 from the club alone; his fringe benefits being another story. Herrera finally agreed to take a cut of $107,208 but still has enough salary left to live like an emperor. Real Madrid, the "Bank of Spain" club in the 1950s and early 1960s, saw the light in time. Foreign players are a thing of the past and salaries as well as bonuses are tied to success and attendance. Marcial Pina of Barcelona, on a reported salary of $21,400, is understood to be the highest paid player. The league average is around $5,720, much the same as the German pros make. In Spain, however, win bonuses help swell salaries and can be as much as $2,400 for a single match. In England, bonuses do not play a major part although some salaries are tied to attendance figures. George Best, at around $72,000 from all sources, is probably the highest paid. The first division average is around $9,600, well below the Italian average of $25,600. AIDED PROBLEM In Iberia, the clubs have an added problem because they must support satellite sports like track and field, basketball, tennis and others that have no mass appeal before they can run a professional soccer club. The French are penalized even further. They must show "no profit" at all under the law and excess funds must go to satellite activities. Television plays little part in league soccer outside of England, Italy and Spain. The Spanish agree to televise matches on the understanding the film company pays the equivalent of five cents for every missing fan. Therefore, there is unlikely to be television unless a sellout game is anticipated. In Italy, television companies pay a sliding scale for filming but the average is around $11,200 a week. The English earn a fixed $480,000 yearly fee from two companies for filmed highlights.

Junior Squad Sets Huddles

Officials of Victoria's new junior football club are hoping to take a couple of important organizational steps during two meetings Sunday at the Ingraham Hotel. Sam Taylor, president of the team that is preparing for its first season of competition against the four mainland squads in the Big Four Junior Football League, has scheduled one session at 2 p.m. to complete the formation of the club executive. That meeting will be open to all non-players interested in the junior program. Prospective players, aged 18 to 21, are invited to attend another meeting at 7:30 p.m. to register for tryouts and discuss plans for the season. Allan Overend of Vancouver, twice Canadian champion, and Gordie Bodnar of Fort St. John, three-time Canadian champion, are among the outstanding array of competitors entered in the B.C. indoor speed skating championships Saturday at Esquimalt Sports Centre. Overend will compete for the senior men's title while Bodnar will be seeking laurels in the juvenile boys' section. Events are scheduled to run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the same ice where 13 meet records fell in the Greater Victoria championships on Wednesday night. CRACK THREE MARKS Don Smith and Susan Boyd led the record-breaking parade by setting three new standards each. Dave Shields, Doug Sneddon and Gayle Cummings set two marks each while Jonie Entzminger snapped one record. Smith captured the intermediate men's title, Sneddon won the junior men's crown, Kevin Kennedy nailed down juvenile boys' laurels, Shields was the midget winner, Jim Michaels dominated the bantam class and Dave Whittaker was the peewee winner. Miss Boyd won the junior women's crown, Miss Cummings was the bantam winner and Miss Entzminger was the peewee titlist. Shields also won the HMCS Yukon trophy as the outstanding skater of the year.

'Ham 'n' Egg' Sport Doesn't Stir Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The executive vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens said Wednesday the Gardens is not interested in being host to any home games of Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association. Harold Ballard said in an interview that the Gardens is not interested in putting out any of the attractions it now houses "for a ham-and-egg sport." He was commenting on a statement earlier in the day by owner Paul Snyder of the Braves who said he was negotiating with the Gardens to play four of the team's home games in Toronto next season and perhaps 20 in 1972-73. Ballard said he had talked with Snyder and told him that the Gardens would have no dates open for any Braves games. The Braves share Memorial Auditorium in Buffalo with the National Hockey League Sabres, and Snyder said he finds the arrangement unsatisfactory.

STEWART LANG Reports on The Outdoors

Some rambling notes along the trail:

An item in the monthly report from the fish and wildlife branch indicates that a sharp eye is being kept on developments at the Utah Mining open-pit site near Port Hardy. . . branch officials held "discussions" with Fleur Utha Ltd., the construction company clearing the site, after examination of a small stream in the area for the second time. . . talks revolved around violations of the Water Act and Fisheries Act as well as the future of the stream. . . seems like Utha applied for a water licence and then went ahead and diverted the creek before permission was granted. . . Charlie Lyons, regional fisheries biologist for Vancouver Island, said: "We then wrote and stated that we wouldn't tolerate this sort of thing in the future. . . prosecution of the company was withheld because of the relatively unimportant nature of the stream and the fact that it would have been at the bottom of the 'pit' had it not been diverted. . . but Lyons stated that any further violations would be dealt with severely.

According to the same report, other streams around the northern end of Vancouver Island were also examined. . . a debris and erosion problem from a recent road construction on the June Landing area is now being corrected as a result. Another interesting feature gleaned from the report was that an attempt will be made to increase the Canada goose population in the Nimpkish Valley. . . hunting and or other predation over the past 20 years has decimated the sizable flock which had existed in the valley. . . a survey of the area will be made this spring to determine the exact number of geese currently nesting in the area and nest-boxes may be built to attract other birds. . . introductions of new birds as either eggs or nestlings, possibly from the Queen Charlotte Islands, is expected to occur during coming years after studies to determine the possible effects of such new introductions. . . introduced birds will be banded with colored collars to determine movements and survival rates. . . the Nimpkish area is expected to be closed to hunting during the period of population build-up. . . once the population is well established it will probably be reopened to hunters.

Statistics released by MacMillan Bloedel Limited show that recreational use of its logging roads is on the increase. . . 81,621 "recreationists" used MB roads in 1970 compared to 76,522 in 1969 and 67,183 in 1968. . . the figures actually represent recreation "days" since some sportsmen might use the roads more than once each year. . . losses to the company also unfortunately increased. . . theft, vandalism and fires (though not all necessarily caused by recreationists) cost the company $38,544 in 1970 compared to $24,749 in 1969. . . more than double. . . theft of equipment cost $32,722, vandalism cost $19,762 and losses due to fires cost $6,660. . . the release goes on to point out the duty of responsible users of the forest land to curb the destructive nature of the minority.

Outdoor Club of Victoria has a good conditioning hike planned for Sunday. . . area to be covered is in the Sooke Hills east of Glinz Lake. . . further information may be obtained from hike leader Joe Truswell at 658-8176. Fishing anywhere on the Island is a cold proposition. . . steelhead fishermen are watching for a melt of snow to bring river levels and attract new runs of the sea-going rainbows. . . fair to good fishing for blues and springs has been reported from Northwest Bay, Nanaimo, Chemainus, Crofton, Sidney, Saanich Inlet, Oak Bay, Victoria waterfront, Pedder Bay, Becher Bay and Secretary Island.

NEWCASTLE, England — The Rolling Stones pop group began a 10-day "farewell to Britain" tour here Thursday before emigrating to the south of France. Leslie Perrin, spokesman for the group, said the Stones, led by Mick Jagger, are not turning their backs on Britain and denied recent press reports that they were moving for tax reasons. "The main reason is that they like France tremendously."

NEW YORK — Mona Van Duyn, responding to poet Allen Ginsberg's criticism of her selection as the National Book Awards winner, Thursday compared their approaches to poetry to two persons reading the writings on rest room walls. She said she liked differences in poetry but apparently Ginsberg did not. Her analogy concerned two persons looking at obscenities and a heart containing the names of lovers written on the wall. "I notice the obscenities but write about the heart and the lovers," she said. "He notices the heart but writes about the obscenities. Both are there and both are valid."

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. — "If he's happy, I'm happy," Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland commented briefly today on Prime Minister Trudeau's marriage.

WINCHESTER, England — A one-legged man told a court here Thursday that two burglars, unable to find any cash at his home, accepted a £250 ($600) cheque and then took away his artificial leg so he could not give chase. Arthur Bellinger said he stopped payment on the cheque and police traced the men through fingerprints.

RIO DE JANEIRO — Canadian-born Tanya Charters Chao and her Spanish-born husband were formally charged before a military court Thursday with subversive activities in Brazil.

SHREWSBURY, England (UPI) — They were drinking at a pub, and Peter Rogers, 21, lifted up a friend's kilt in front of a woman. He did not realize his friend had nothing on underneath.

That was the story he told a Shrewsbury court where he admitted conduct likely to cause a breach of the peace.

'Political Misfit' Not Likely to Run Again

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC-Oak Bay) doesn't expect he will seek re-election into a political system where the goal "seems to be to win rather than to be right."

Describing himself as "a misfit in the political arena," Wallace said in an interview he is "fairly certain" he won't try to hold his Oak Bay seat at the next election.

Wallace said he will continue to attend the Social Credit party caucus and do his best to co-operate within the system of politics that he finds too rigid to accommodate his ideas.

"The goal in politics seems to be to win rather than to be right," he said, adding that he feels the political party system has "a lot to be said for it" but "it doesn't seem capable of attracting and holding people with new ideas and approaches."

He said he expects that a further legislative session under the same "rules" of the political game may well be enough to convince him not to run again.

Wallace was elected under the Social Credit banner in Oak Bay in 1969, ending years of government frustration in its efforts to capture the riding from the Liberals.

He has made no secret of his growing disenchantment about the inability of MLAs to have an impact on government policies and about the standards of political life.

Wallace voted against the government several times during his first legislative session last year and has continued his independent ways this session, joining the opposition in condemning Health Minister Ralph Lofmark this week on a non-confidence motion.

The MLA subsequently did not speak during the two-day debate on estimates of Lofmark's department, an occasion when he would normally be expected to take an active role.

Hearings Scheduled

Public hearings on proposed land use bylaws will be held March 17 at Koksilah Elementary, March 18 at the Cobble Hill community hall, and March 19 at Bench Elementary.

George Braithwaite, Cowichan Valley Regional Board director, said that the bylaws are for Cobble Hill, Cowichan Bay, Cowichan Station, Eagle Heights and Sahtlam districts.

Their purpose, he says, is "to provide a pattern and basic scheme of development encouraging orderly growth."

SMALLWOOD ... when the PM's happy

Mrs. Chao, formerly of Vancouver, and Jose Maria Lopez Chao have been in prison since last August. They are expected to appear at a court hearing April 7 along with four Brazilians said to have been involved with the Brazilian Communist party.

Wrong Guess Disastrous For Mustang

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — One wrong guess wrecked Canada's chances in the fourth race of the classic One-Ton Cup yacht contest off Auckland today. Australia won the contest.

The Canadian entry Mustang, skippered by John Beaton, Toronto, led the 17-yacht field from nine nations at one stage of the 270-mile ocean race.

But a tactical error put her back almost to last and she finally placed 14th.

The ocean race, which counts double points toward the cup, was won by Stormy Petrel of Australia, skippered by Syd Fischer. Wai-Aniwa of New Zealand, under the One-Ton Cup holder Chris Bouzaid, was second. The Victoria of Sweden was third.

IN THE CLEAR

Stormy Petrel has won three of the four races held, which means the fifth and final race cannot affect an Australian victory for the cup.

The Mustang at present rates ninth, equal on a points basis. Beaton said the crew was delighted with the early showing when Mustang led the fleet and remained among the leaders for the whole of the first day.

But relying on a weather report for direction, the yacht then set a course which proved disastrous. The wind, in fact, came from the opposite direction, leaving Mustang and several other yachts which had taken this route trailing the field in light winds which prevailed for the remainder of the race.

The one slip was a poor reward for 67 hours of hard sailing but was typical of the upsets which many yachts have experienced in the series. The final 26-mile race on the Olympic course is expected Sunday.

Weekend Ski Report

Fresh snow during the week has bolstered hopes for an excellent weekend at both Vancouver Island skiing areas.

At Green Mountain, where Peter Gibson of Vancouver made off with the Vancouver Island senior men's title during championship races last weekend, the weather was clear and sunny this morning.

All other titles went to Courtenay skiers. Laura Schultz won the senior women's crown while Glen Isenor and Claudia Jensen captured junior laurels.

Base snow at the top of the T-Bar is now 120 inches with 10 inches of new snow.

Forbidden Plateau reports this morning indicate clear skies, a top base of 120 inches and a bottom base of 80 inches with a temperature of 18 degrees.

Chairs must be carried for both areas.

Other Pacific Northwest points:

WHISTLER MOUNTAIN: Overcast, 18 degrees, 50 new snow, 120-inch total.
 CHOCOMA MOUNTAIN: Clear, 18 degrees, 200 inches new snow, 141-inch total.
 HEMLOCK VALLEY: Overcast, 18 degrees, 50 inches new snow, 160-inch total.
 MOUNT SEYMOUR: High overcast, 20 degrees, four inches new snow.
 MT. BAKER: 20, 100 inches.
 CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN: Overcast, 18 degrees, four inches new snow.
 SNOWBOWL: High overcast, 20 degrees, six inches new snow.
 STEVENS PASS: Snowing, 17 degrees, 12 inches new snow, 140-inch total.
 MT. PILCHUK: Snowing, 20 degrees, 10 inches new snow, 120-inch total.

Bats Revive English Side Against Kiwis

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuter) — A seventh wicket stand of 154 by wicketkeeper Alan Knott and fast bowler Peter Lever steered England to a total of 317 for nine on the opening day of the second test against New Zealand here today.

Knott hit 101 and Lever 64. Earlier, half-centuries by Basil d'Oliveira (58) and Colin Cowdrey, (54) patched up heavy damage done by New Zealand medium-pace bowler Bob Cunis after England had been sent in to bat.

The stocky Cunis uprooted Brian Luckhurst and Jackie Hampshire as England sank to 59 for three.

Despite the resistance of d'Oliveira and Cowdrey, England had only 145 runs on the board at the fall of the sixth wicket. Knott and Lever revived the innings.

Bucks Tie NBA Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Milwaukee Bucks go after their record 19th consecutive victory tonight in National Basketball Association action.

Greg Smith came off the bench Thursday night to help the Bucks squeeze past Buffalo Braves 116-113 and tie the NBA record of 18 straight wins set last season by New York Knicks.

Tonight, the Midwest Division leaders invade Detroit in a bid for their 19th in a row. The Milwaukee-Buffalo game was the only NBA contest Thursday night.

Smith played the entire first period, then sat on the bench with a bad knee until three minutes were left in the game and a furious Buffalo rally had cut Milwaukee's lead to three points, 107-104.

Smith hit a free throw with 28 seconds left, then dropped in two more with 14 seconds remaining in the game to ice the victory.

Oscar Robertson paced Milwaukee with 32 points, his second highest game this season. To establish the record, Milwaukee will have to beat the same team that stopped the Knicks' 18-game streak, Detroit Pistons.

Province Extends Special Aid For Purchase of Older Homes

The provincial government took one of its "second looks" Thursday and extended special aid for purchase of older homes for another year.

Premier Bennett introduced a bill in the legislature to make available the $500 grants or $2,500 second mortgages to renters of two years' residence in B.C. who buy older homes before March 31, 1972.

The aid was introduced April 1, 1970, following an election promise of help for tenants by Bennett. The aid was scheduled to expire at the end of this month.

Bennett said popular demand was partly responsible for the "second look" and indicated he had learned of many people who couldn't take advantage of the special aid until later this year because of high interest rates on first mortgages and other economic causes.

The bill provides that the government may dip into its consolidated revenue to add more money to the home acquisition grant fund if necessary in the coming year.

There is already a bill before the house to add $20 million to the fund which also pays for the $1,000 grant and $5,000 second mortgage available for new home purchases as well.

Bennett said he didn't have figures on what the older home aid may cost the government in the current year but acknowledged it would be "millions and millions."

Bennett said the effective interest rate on government second mortgages currently works out to about 7½ per cent including discount for prompt payment.

The premier said he feels many of the purchases to be made under the special aid will be by tenants buying the homes they are currently renting. He repeated his frequently-expressed hope that in such cases the owners would allow reasonable terms.

Bennett said he wants as many people as possible to become eligible for the annual homeowner grant.

New Democrats Again Fight Support for CPR Extension

Government support for the Canadian Pacific Railway's bid to extend the Kootenay Elk Railway to the United States border was again attacked in the legislature Thursday by New Democrat MLAs.

During debate of Attorney-General Leslie Peterson's estimates, Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) said B.C.'s legal support for the extension was nothing more than "promoting a sellout to American interests."

The CPR wants to extend the railway to connect with a U.S. railway which would then haul coal mined in B.C.

Jury Attaches No Blames In Road Deaths

No blame was attached by a coroner's jury Thursday into an accident on West Saanich Road Feb. 4 which took two lives.

Coroner G. A. Gerrie presided at the Sidney inquest into the death of Sidney Holdridge, 75, of 1427 Malleck Crescent who was the driver of a car that collided with a truck on West Saanich near McTavish.

The driver of the truck was Alexander Painter, 4823 West Saanich Road.

A passenger in the Holdridge vehicle, Mrs. Elizabeth Darley, 75, of 1176 Yates, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Starfighter Crashes

BONN (AP) — The West German air force lost its 130th F-104G jet Starfighter in a crash in Bavaria. The pilot ejected safely.

by Kaiser Resources Ltd. to Roberts Bank.

Peterson said he would not comment on the matter because the case will be heard again on March 18 by the Canadian Transport Commission.

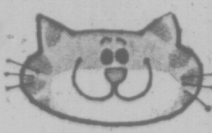

Much of the case is a jurisdictional dispute between Ottawa and B.C. over who has the authority to allow or disallow the application. Dowding said Peterson is wasting taxpayers' money in promoting a project which will take jobs away from Canadian workers.

DISAPPOINTMENT

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said he found the province's position to be a "bitter disappointment." He criticized the "devious arguments" government lawyers have used to show that the railway will be all-Canadian project.

Leo Nimsick (NDP —

Kootenay) said the government looks silly promising to create 25,000 jobs, then "giving them away" by working to allow a U.S. line to haul B.C. Coal.

Pull-Out of Troops To Continue—Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says the Laotian operation ensures continuation of U.S. troop withdrawals from Indochina, but adds there are no plans for American support of an invasion of North Vietnam.

In a televised news conference Thursday night, Nixon said a U.S. force must remain in the South as long as the North holds American prisoners. The Indochina war dominated the half-hour news session devoted to foreign affairs.

U.S. troop withdrawals have been averaging roughly 12,000 a month since Nixon began reducing the 543,500-man U.S. force in mid-1969.

"Our troop-withdrawal schedule will go forward at least at the present rate," Nixon said.

SAYS TRAFFIC OUT

Nixon said Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, reported the South Vietnamese units in Laos already have cut North Vietnamese southbound truck traffic by 55 per cent, "which means that those trucks that do not go south will not carry the arms and the men that will be killing Americans."

The aim of the Cambodian and Laotian operations had been to reduce U.S. forces and casualties and "that is exactly what this administration has done."

Nixon portrayed talk by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu of possibly invading North Vietnam as natural for the leader of a country under invasion. But he drew limits on what the United States might do.

"We will have no ground forces in North Vietnam, in Cambodia or in Laos" outside of rescuers for flyers or prisoners, Nixon said. He said U.S. airpower will be used against military targets where increased infiltration endangers remaining U.S. forces.

Nixon again steered clear of a deadline when all U.S. troops will be out of Vietnam.

Canada Plans Hero Medals

OTTAWA (CP) — Government House will start making new Canadian awards for bravery this year, Col. D. C. McKinnon, comptroller at Government House, said Thursday.

Canada no longer accepts British decorations and new Canadian medals for various degrees of heroism, military and civilian, are being struck. Prime Minister Trudeau has taken the process entirely out of political hands by transferring responsibility for awards from the state secretary's department to Government House.

Col. McKinnon told the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee that some 250 Canadians are awaiting awards. They will be the first to receive the new Canadian decorations.

He said a maximum staff of nine at Government House will process the applications for civilian awards. The military would process their own.

Families and Friends Do Most Gun Killings

DETROIT (AP) — In the first 63 days of this year, a record 132 persons were slain in this city—most of them by gunfire at the hands of friends or family members, rather than in street crimes.

By police estimate, Detroit residents possess as many as 500,000 handguns, the bulk of them illegally.

Police Commissioner John Nichols said at a news conference Thursday:

"People seem to be playing out their roles in life through violence. We've had countless people who, because of a real or imagined insult, grabbed a gun and killed someone. Friends and relatives kill each other."

Of the first 100 victims this year, 78 met death during family spats or in drinking parties with friends or relatives. Pistols killed 65 of the 100, rifles 11, shotguns 10.

CAN'T COUNT GUNS

"We don't know how many illegal guns there are in Detroit," said Nichols. "We estimate that only about 25 per cent of the handguns are registered."

"From 1961 to 1970, we registered 73,540 handguns. There probably are half a million in Detroit."

"There is a direct correlation between the number of homicides and the numbers of guns, legal or not."

about.

Consider these other benefits, too:

Waste not, want not. You pay only for the amount of carpet you buy. No useless leftovers.

No underpadding to pay for.

No installation to pay for.

Be creative. Mix 'n match them.

And perhaps best of all, if one square is attacked by a cigarette burn or a villainous stain, all you do is pull it up and replace it with a new one.

So make your own shag carpet with Armstrong carpet squares. Six dramatic colorations in high fashion nylon shag to choose from.

They're Confused

Loffmark's 'Covering Up'

The two men who took the brunt of a blast from Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Thursday for delaying expansion at St. Joseph's Hospital had identical reactions today: bewilderment.

"We just simply don't know what he's talking about," said Dr. Alec Wood, president of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society. "I really can't understand the minister at all," said Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock. "It seems to me

he's doing his best to 'blame others'... I suppose it's a natural trait... to blame others to cover up for one's own mistakes."

'RATHER NARROW'

Loffmark said Thursday the hospital society and city council were to blame for the latest delays in plans to expand St. Joseph's Hospital.

The society has taken a "rather narrow" view on who should hold title to the land needed for expansion and has rejected his compromise solution, said the health minister.

City council has "intruded" on property negotiations because it wants land it doesn't need immediately to extend Belleville Street alongside the expansion site.

Both Wood and Haddock emphatically denied the charges today.

'WHOLLY UNAWARE'

In a letter to Loffmark, Wood said the society officials "are utterly bewildered by these allegations and are wholly unaware of any foundation for them."

The society, which as been designated to take over St. Joseph's Hospital when the Sisters of St. Ann give it to the community, hasn't been involved in negotiations since last September, says Wood's letter.

In any event the society has never rejected a land leasing arrangement, in fact has never seen a proposal.

Haddock said the city's position on the extension of Belleville Street "has always been consistent and completely reasonable."

What the city wants is protection for the eventual extension. It is quite happy with an agreement already reached with the provincial government which will keep the site clear and let the province decide several years from now whether the extension is necessary.

The Hippies Do It —So Why Not You?

By Jack Scott

The three recent pieces here on the problems — and their possible solutions — of retired men and women have produced a number of comments which will wrap up the subject for the time being:

A city doctor who prefers anonymity, but is well known for his interest in the subject, comments on the suggestion of Dr. Victor Kassel, of Salt Lake City, that a form of polygyny should be legalized for those over 60.

"Dr. Kassel first advanced this plan in 1966 in the periodical Geriatrics and, needless to say, it has been the subject of much discussion by doctors," he writes.

"My own opinion is that it is an extremely practical idea that no government in power would dare to implement. But why bother? There is nothing, except possibly an outraged neighbor, to prevent a group of elderly people from joining together to rent a comfortable home and to share costs, companionship and mutual care. If the so-called hippies can do it, why not the older people?"

"There is, in fact, one such home in the James Bay area where, when I last visited, seven elderly folks, two gentlemen and five ladies, were living in harmony, proof of the fact that the image of the aged as cantankerous, set-in-their-ways and unyielding is so much nonsense."

"What is particularly interesting about Dr. Kassel's approach," the doctor goes on, "is that it is up to the retired to do something about their own problems. This is not a callous view. We all agree that our treatment of the older generation is reprehensible. But there is much, much more that they themselves, could be doing."

"Many of us agree with Dr. Kassel's assessment that there has been a regrettable change in the attitude of older people in recent years, that they have become passive except to challenge everybody else to improve their lot. Their disabilities, as he put it, have become status symbols, a means whereby they can obtain attention and control their families and gain special advantages from government."

"My hope now is that the alternative you pose will be seriously considered by those friends of yours at Silver Threads who, as you rightly observe, have great resources of experience and wisdom."

"All of the arguments that you give in favor of the older man's right to have his own harem are cancelled out by just one fact," writes Mrs. Virginia Rolfe, of Esquimalt, herself a widow. "No woman I've ever met would willingly share a husband with four other wives."

"Since I am nearing 69 and have been retired for four years I can comment forcibly on the hogwash of your Dr. Otto," writes J. P. Thornton, of Victoria. "A murrain on him and all his tribe, the professors and doctors who have infested western society these past 20 years... know-alls who can cure all the ills of mankind."

"Let me say, that had I been born with money I would happily have passed my life away without ever working. Squire Western (Fielding's Tom Jones), caricature as he may be, would have been my model in peacetime. To pass the day outdoors in exercise, to eat, drink and sleep and awake to a new day would have sufficed me all my life."

"But I was not born so. I had to go to work and so I put my heart and soul in that. Now I am retired and I can do whatever I like for ever and ever. I eat more and weigh less and sleep better. Millions pay millions for sleeping pills. Why don't they take the Duke of Wellington's advice? When someone asked him if he ever lay awake at nights he replied, 'No, I don't see it does any good. I make a point of never lying awake.'"

The one great problem with retirement, like death, is that people never really believe it will happen to them," writes R. J. Moyer, of Sooke, aged 74.

"For such people I think that the advice of Dr. Herbert Otto in your recent article was the best I have ever read. Spontaneity, the art of doing something just for the sheer joy of it, is essential, though many younger people will suspect that you have lost your mind. We are too burdened with false dignity and patriarchal demeanor. A man should whoop and holler, buy a motorbike, pick wild flowers and tell pretty girls that they are beautiful. That's the answer to happier old age."

Hydro to Wait Six Months On Bus Fare Hike Decision

It will be at least six months before B.C. Hydro decides whether to raise bus fares, Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum said Thursday.

He said it will take Hydro that long to study the economic results of the recently-instituted bus service cutbacks.

"Some of the cutbacks in Vancouver don't even go into effect until the end of this month, and then we want to see what happens (to revenues) during the summer months," he said in a telephone interview from Vancouver.

"We have to keep the deficit within limits."

Does he think bus users can afford to pay a higher fare, if Hydro decides it's necessary?

"These are about the lowest fares in North America," Shrum replied. "They do in other cities."

He said Hydro is "committed" to providing good rush-hour service "to get working people to and from their work."

What about the old people?

It doesn't make any difference to old people whether there are buses every 20 minutes or once an hour, Shrum said.

"They can find out the schedule and catch the bus when it's going."

He said suggestions that Hydro increase its electricity rates to offset losses on its bus systems are impractical.

"We can't do this because some municipalities, such as Nanaimo and West Vancouver, provide their own bus service."

SUBSIDIES

Students Censure Fine Arts Dean

Students in the University of Victoria faculty of fine arts voted 14-2 Thursday in favor of censuring fine arts Dean Peter Garvie.

There were six abstentions from the vote, which came in response to a resolution presented last month to the university's academic planning committee.

A resolution calling for Garvie's resignation was tabled so that the dean could be invited to speak to a meeting of students and faculty at some date not later than March 42.

The resolution said in preparing, writing and submitting his brief "Dean Garvie has not acted in the full interest of either the staff or students of the fine arts faculty; nor in the interest of future development of this university."

Enrolment in the fine arts faculty numbers around 265.

On Monday full-time faculty members of the department of studio visual arts declared non-confidence in the department chairman, Norman Toynon. They were supported in a near-unanimous vote by students.

Garvie said today his brief concerning future development of the fine arts faculty has been withdrawn, and that as a result of a meeting with fine arts faculty members Thursday, each department will likely draw up individual briefs.

ON THE RARE DAYS when Mount Baker sheds the cloud-cover of this uncertain season, it provides a spectacle both grand and chilly. But don't let the old rascal fool you. Beneath that frosted exterior lurks a heart of fire.

Baker's volcanic cone still leaks sulphurous fumes, and recent steamings from new locations caused a Washington State geologist who investigated to utter a double-barrelled comment.

The huffings and puffings didn't mean that Mount Baker was going to blow up, he said in effect. On the other hand, it was possible that the long-dormant volcano could erupt again.

I take this to mean that while we needn't fear a Krakatau-type bang, there's always the chance that Victoria in this her latest centennial year could be treated to a free fireworks display.

And not for the first time, either. Baker, in fact, obliged Victorians of an earlier era with more than one lurid show.

Old press accounts indicate that Beacon Hill was a favored vantage point for eruption-viewers. The last reported cork-blowing came in 1881. By all accounts, it was a tamer affair than some of its predecessors, from which we reaped an indirect benefit.

The mineral-rich ash that was wafted across the narrow waters helped make Victoria the garden city that it is today.

Here's a good word for Victoria's elder population

'LET THE LITTLE DEVELOPERS IN' Keep the Harbor 'Human'

A proposal to preserve and revitalize Victoria's old town and Inner Harbor waterfront area, rather than allow high-rise developers to move in, gained strong support after a lively public meeting Thursday night.

National Capital Commission manager and former city planner Rod Clark said today: "I agree entirely" with the basics of the proposal to save the old town, "because it is respecting the scale of Victoria and its background."

"These are very important qualities to retain in a city of this kind."

He said when he was city planner he prepared a number of background papers suggesting this kind of approach. Bastion Square was the first and so far only result.

Clark was unable to attend the public meeting but planned to confer today with the proposal's instigators, Victoria designer Jim Slank and 10 University of British Columbia architecture students.

A mixed crowd of more than 50 — businessmen, architects, homeowners, students and tenants — overflowed from an upstairs room on Government Street where the group has been working on the alternate proposal.

Their concept, which they stress is only a rough one, is for the area bounded by the harbor, Government and Pandora.

During the meeting, there were spirited comments about what was generally felt to be the folly of plunking high-rises in an historic area of "human-scale" 19th-century architecture and meandering alleyways designed for people, not cars.

One exchange: "The Reid project would be an unmitigated disaster. All your hopes and plans for the area would be completely smashed."

LBC project member Ken Lane, of Victoria: "You can't blame Reid. If you were a big-city developer — you come in and see a big chunk of land that 'the local Hicks' are too slow to —"

Perennial mayoralty candidate Bill Scott: "This isn't a monopoly of one mind, is it? Reid and Courtney Haddock

Voice: "That's only one-and-a-half!"

But there was a lot of serious discussion too. And information: there is room in the old town's buildings for close to 200 new apartments and rooms, said the architecture students.

They have found, in their month-long study of the area, some 105,000 square feet of the buildings completely vacant, mostly on second and third floors. Another 60,000 square feet is now in warehouse space, much of it barely used.

These buildings would be ideal for residences, they said, because nearly all have inner courts sheltered from the noise of the street and from the wind.

Lane summed up the economic basis of the group's proposal: "Get the big developer out and let all the little developers in."

Some comments, made after the meetings:

Al Tiedie, owner of Prince Charles motel: "It's like a breath of fresh air."

It's odd that the young have to show us old people how to do things right with old buildings.

"This is something we've got that makes Victoria distinctive."

"City hall talks about the tax dollars the Reid thing would raise, but you never hear them say what it's going to cost them, in servicing these huge projects."

He said the Reid project would escalate the tax base in the area so much that no small developers could afford to revitalize parts of the old town.

format has been under study for some time. It's expected to be in operation by the end of this year.

B.C. drivers get a five-year licence for $5, renewable on their birthday. This means the new form of licence can be phased in over a five-year period, said Hadfield.

A number of technical details involving the photo processing and issuing need to be ironed out but plans now call for the photo of the driver to be in color. No increase in the licence fee is anticipated.

Ray Hadfield, the province's superintendent of motor vehicles, said today the new one day's demonstration proceeded. It was a long time since she had seen butter in the making, she explained. But when she was young, she had made good farm butter in just such a churn as they were doing so well with.

All of which impresses me as a solid argument in favor of grandparents, or great-grandparents where such exist — the kind who have time to spare, stories to tell, and a well-ripened capacity for patience.

This hurry-up world could learn from them.

Campus literary journals come and go, fiercely championed, no less fiercely criticized, and often than not, doomed to a brief life-span. One that has lasted longer than most is The Absolute

Gannon Review, published twice each year at University of Victoria by students.

It first came off the presses in the fall of 1968 with a generous cargo of fiction, verse and views.

I like The Absolute. Canoe. It is honest and hard-trying, and it offers young talent something that every writer needs for his advancement. Space and readers, that is. Also an opportunity to evaluate the effect on hot words of cold print.

As a reader, I hope this review with the tongue-in-cheek title will continue in good health. As a journeyman reviewer, I think that those who write for it, and put it together, and pilot it from crisis to crisis, are doing a hard job very well indeed.

OAK BAY LANDS LOAN

Federal loan funds will be made available for Oak Bay's Henderson Park and a senior citizens' centre on Monterey.

The provincial municipal affairs department informed Mayor Frances Elford of the decision Thursday.

Under its make-work loan project, the federal government will allocate $198,000 for the construction of a senior citizens' centre and car park on the Monterey site. An additional provincial grant of $72,000 will be made available for the project.

A loan of $257,000 will be advanced for the construction of a pavilion, tennis courts and car park at Henderson Park.

Depending on tenders, work at Henderson Park is expected to get under way by April 30 with the completion date scheduled for Sept. 30.

The senior citizens' centre will be built alongside Oak Bay's centennial library, with work on the centre expected to begin May 15 and end Dec. 31.

Curry or Mint Jelly Flavors Frozen Peas

Frozen peas, which have been carefully stored, cooked and served, can rival the flavor and appearance of fresh green peas. Special varieties of peas, suitable for freezing, are harvested at the peak of sweetness. They are blanched before freezing then frozen before packaging. The peas are graded Canada Fancy and Canada Choice, depending on the color, uniformity of size, texture and absence of defects.

Frozen peas are packaged in the 12-ounce size which usually serves four or the 2-pound, 10 serving size. Cost per serving may be calculated accordingly. Since the peas have been partially cooked during blanching, care must be taken not to overcook them. They should be boiled in a very small amount of water for the time specified on the package.

However, frozen peas will have more flavor if cooked by either of the following methods, according to the home economists at Canada Agriculture.

For a 12-ounce package: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in top of a double boiler, add peas, sprinkle with salt then cover and cook over boiling water until tender (about 20 minutes) or place peas in a greased baking dish, sprinkle with salt and dot with 2 tablespoons butter then cover and bake 35 to 40 minutes at 325 degrees F. If desired add curry powder, savory, chopped chives or mint jelly to the cooked, buttered peas just before serving.

For an unusual way to serve frozen peas, combine cooked peas and rice together with seasoning. Place the mixture in individual molds for oven-poaching then pour a celery sauce over the molds at serving time.

sew simple

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have a slack pattern that fits me beautifully. I never even consider choosing other patterns for slacks because I don't want to take a chance. I saw a beautiful pair of slacks in an expensive shop that completely eliminated the side seams. This intrigued me but I'm afraid to look for another pattern and take a chance on the fitting. Is there anyway I can cut my favorite pattern and eliminate the side seams? — Mrs. M.K.

Dear Mrs. M.K.:

If the legs of the slacks are straight instead of belled, this is a rather simple operation. Take two pieces of your pattern and lay the two seam lines (not seam allowances) directly over each other. Your pattern should lay smoothly until you come to the area about 7 inches from the waistline. Allow your pattern to spread apart at this area so that it is absolutely flat. Now you can easily see the shape you will need for the hipline curve. This is achieved by adding a side dart that begins at the waist and tapers gradually to the hip area, usually about 7 inches below the waistline.

The first time you try your luck with this, perhaps you should use a rather inexpensive fabric to insure success. The unbroken line of the fabric can be most attractive if the cut of the slacks is right for it.

For illustrated instructions on how to make professional looking bound buttonholes send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Bound Buttonholes" to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

HAMBURG PIE . . . a pound of beef serves six

Minced Beef Pie Alternative To Hamburger or Meat Loaf

Minced beef is a frequent item on many food shoppers' lists. It is a good buy because there is little waste. One pound of minced beef will serve three or four persons depending upon the fat content, what is served with it and the size of the servings.

To protect the consumer there are regulations concerning beef in the minced form.

If minced beef is made by grinding round steak or chuck it should be labelled "minced round steak" or "minced chuck."

If the beef used is represented as being "lean," it must contain not more than 15 per cent fat. Some fat is necessary to provide flavor and prevent the minced beef from drying out in cooking.

If, on the other hand, beef in the minced form is called "hamburger" it should not contain more than 30 per cent fat. Hamburg is made by grinding together trimmings and some of the less tender cuts of beef such as shank, flank, neck, etc.

There is a wide difference in price per pound between "hamburger" and "lean minced beef," but it is wise to remember that the fat which cooks out of the hamburger is left in the pan. The true cost of the meat should always be calculated by the number of servings it will provide rather than the cost per pound.

The home economists of Canada Agriculture have used minced beef in two unusual recipes — both of them pies. In the Hamburg Cottage Cheese Pie the seasoned meat and cheese mixture is browned, placed in a baked pie shell and baked. Beef Crust Pie is unique in that the minced raw beef is combined with rolled oats and finely chopped vegetables to make the "crust" for the pie.

Victorian Was With Margaret When Trudeau Was Introduced

Margaret Sinclair was staying with other friends when she met Trudeau in Tahiti.

That's what Dorothy Fraser of Victoria thinks.

"It was all very informal, but I don't remember seeing Margaret with Trudeau. I think she was with someone else at the time," she said.

Mrs. Fraser was with Margaret and six or seven others at the Club Mediterranean on Tahiti three years ago when "someone brought the Prime Minister over and said, 'This is Trudeau'."

In a parish hall at 5:30 Thursday night, an hour and a half late for the wedding, Trudeau married Margaret Sinclair.

Conducting the ceremony was Father John

Swinkels, pastor of St. Steven's Roman Catholic "church" in North Vancouver, whose congregation built the hall with the intention of finished it later as a church.

Victorian, M. C. Hall-Patch said, "I've been in the 'church' 15 times and it's definitely not a church. There's a stage at one end and a temporary altar at the other, with pews in between. Everything's very modern — almost stark."

Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau are honeymooning at Whistler Mountain — a change of plan, judging by a 1968 story.

During his visit here at that time Trudeau told Times reporter Pat Dufour "I've never been to South America. I'm saving that for my honeymoon."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Date Sent Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I called a girl for a date and she accepted. I made dinner reservations at a high-class club that features soft lights, music and dancing. I took this girl where we were going and I also told her I was wearing a black pin-stripe suit with light blue shirt and matching tie and handkerchief so she should dress accordingly.

She lives way out in the opposite direction from where we were going so I sent a taxi to her house to pick her up. When she showed up at my place she was wearing pants, sneakers and a hippie jacket with "peace and love" all over it. I know this girl can dress nicely because I've seen her in nice clothes.

I told her I was sorry but I couldn't take her to the place where I had reservations because they wouldn't let us in the place with her dressed like that. I paid her taxi fare home, and with the time flying I quickly asked a girl in my apartment if she wanted to go out for dinner. She jumped at the chance, dressed up like a lady, and we had a wonderful evening.

My question: Was I wrong to have sent the first girl home? I don't think so, but some other people think I was. — Me.

DEAR ME: Since where you went was obviously much more important to you than with whom you went, you weren't wrong.

DEAR ABBY: About 15 months ago my husband passed away and I sold one of his suits (almost new) to one of the neighbors for $10.

Just the other day, this neighbor called me and asked me to take the suit back and give her the $10 back. So I did. She is supposed to be one of my best friends. This upset my whole family. What is your opinion about this? — Discouraged.

DEAR DISCOURAGED: I think your friend must have been desperately in need of $10.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the Indiana Mother whose child had a speech defect and was teased by the other children. You recommended a speech therapist.

No therapist works miracles in a short time. We started taking our child to speech therapists when he was three years old. Seven years later he still needs coaching. Handicapped children suffer more from unkind treatment from their peers (and often from adults) than they do from a speech defect. Despite therapy and daily coaching at home, our son is still teased by children. And I've actually seen another mother laugh and encourage her own child to call my son names! — Wisconsin Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: The mother you referred to in your letter needs more help than a handicapped child.

DEAR ABBY: If women's liberation achieves just one goal I shall forget all the others. And that is the relief from the stigma of the frequently awarded and phony label ladies. Particularly when it adorns the cubicle next to the one marked Men, and where ladyship has no standing. — R. L. Greene.

DEAR MR. GREENE: True, but while all ladies are women, not all women are ladies, if you want to get technical. Now, how about those cubicles marked Gentlemen, which are constantly used by men who don't qualify as gentlemen? Would you settle for His and Hers?

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me something that has upset me terribly. She wouldn't tell me who had told her, so there is nothing I can do about it. I suppose that is why I am so upset.

She said she had heard that my husband and I were splitting up. Abby, my husband has had to travel more lately for his business and I can't go with him, but we certainly have never been happier, and this splitting up "rumor" couldn't have shocked me more.

I know there is nothing you can do about it, Abby. I just had to tell somebody how heart sick I am. How does a person go about proving something is a lie? — Heartsick.

DEAR HEARTSICK: One shouldn't have to. But be aware that a real friend would not bring you gossip or any hurtful "sorry-I-can't-tell-you-who-told-me" tales. Since you are helpless to do anything about gossip (real or possibly dreamed up by the one who told you she had "heard" it) disregard it. A word of consolation: Carriers of such tales are usually jealous and miserable and take pleasure in chipping away at the happiness of others.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope. For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

today's recipe

SEAFOOD SUPREME

(Makes 12 to 14 servings)

2/3 cup butter
1/2 cup finely-chopped onion
4 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon salt
3 1/2 cups milk
1 pint (2 1/2 cups) light cream
1/2 cup dry sherry
2 1/2 pounds cooked seafood
1 1/2 cups coarsely crushed rice cereal
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Preheat oven to 350 deg. F.

Melt the 2/3 cup butter in a large saucepan. Add onions and mushrooms; saute until tender. Blend in flour and salt. Remove from heat and gradually stir in milk and cream. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until smoothly thickened. Stir in sherry and seafood. Turn into a 4-quart casserole. Combine cereal and melted butter. Sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake in preheated oven 45 to 50 minutes, or until heated through. (Makes 12 to 14 servings.)

Mother Martha's Worst Threat Raised a Smile

Martha Mitchell is a political legend in her own term. The strange thing is, she doesn't hold office. Her husband, John has been attorney-general of the United States for only two years.

In those two years Martha has been opening her mouth regularly and just as regularly shocking the American public. To some Americans she is a joke, an absurd brassy caricature of upper middle-class America.

To others, she is a menace.

Her latest outpourings, directed at a doctor summoned to treat her daughter Marty, are described by Maxine Cheshire, one of Washington's most outspoken columnists.

By MAXINE CHESHIRE

WASHINGTON — Dr. Henry Withers' family may own a big chunk of downtown Houston, but Martha Mitchell still has no apologies to make for calling him "a seedy-looking character" when he was called to treat her daughter at The Warwick Hotel there two weeks ago.

Dr. Withers' brother-in-law, centimillionaire John Mecom, owns the posh and expensive Warwick Hotel. Dr. Withers, who has one of Houston's largest practices, is on call for VIP guests who get sick there.

That's why he was summoned late at night when Mrs. Mitchell's 10-year-old daughter, Marty, was complaining of a fever and sore throat.

Both Dr. Withers and Mrs. Mitchell agree that she took one look at him and didn't like what she saw.

"He looked like a bus boy," Mrs. Mitchell said Wednesday. "His hair was frazzled. He had on funny-looking clothes. I said to my FBI agent: 'Who is this creature? Where did you get him?'"

According to Dr. Withers' recollection, she referred to him in the Houston hotel suite as "a seedy-looking character" and "a hotel hanger-on of a doctor."

"I thought I looked pretty nice," he said Wednesday in giving his version of the incident over the telephone. "I had showered. I had on a new sport coat, new slacks and a very nice shirt."

But Dr. Withers' attitude did not give Mrs. Mitchell confidence in his professional ability.

As soon as he walked in the door, she wanted him to consult by phone with a NASA doctor at The Houston Manned Spacecraft Centre who had looked at Marty Mitchell earlier that day.

"I refused," said Dr. Withers. "I told her I wasn't going to telephone another doctor in the middle of the night unless I examined the child and found it necessary."

"She said, 'Take this phone.' I said 'I won't.' She said 'You will, too.' I repeated myself and I repeated myself, and then she said something so funny that I smiled. She said: 'I'll call the president!'"

Mrs. Mitchell said she doesn't remember making this particular threat. "But I might have. I've never been so frantic in my life. My child was completely delirious. I'd have called anybody. Any mother who's really a mother would. She's my only little girl."

Barrage of Insults

Dr. Withers says that the barrage of insults began at this point. He picked up his bag and left the suite, escorted into the corridor by one of the FBI agents assigned to guard the attorney-general's wife and daughter.

"But I couldn't leave a sick child," he said. "So I told the agent I'd go back to examine the little girl, but I didn't want to lay eyes on that woman again."

Mrs. Mitchell was nowhere in sight when the doctor went back. She said that Marty had a temperature of 105.3 when Dr. Withers was called. He said his thermometer registered only a half-degree above normal.

"I was terrified she was going into pneumonia," said Mrs. Mitchell. "She just narrowly missed it. I put her into Children's Hospital later that night, and they gave her medication every 45 minutes for the next 48 hours."

Texas Children's Hospital in Houston confirms that Marty was admitted at 1:20 a.m. on Feb. 14 with "a viral condition and high fever."

She remained four days.

She felt Marty's health was so precarious that the child did not return to school until Wednesday.

Mrs. Mitchell is perturbed with Dr. Withers for talking about their argument, which all of Houston society is talking about.

"Can he do that?" Mrs. Mitchell asked. "Can't he get in a lot of trouble like a lawyer for talking about a client?"

Dr. Withers insisted that Marty was more sleepy than anything else. He said he asked her if she felt badly and she replied:

"No, doctor, I just want to go to sleep. If all these people would just go to bed and leave me alone. I'm so sleepy I can't stand it."

As for Dr. Withers, he has hung a large photograph of Mrs. Mitchell in his waiting room. The inscription, a forgery, reads: "For Dr. Withers, the sorriest, seediest doctor in the whole state of Texas. Love, Martha."

BOOK REVIEW

A Calm Look at Abortion

By JEAN SHARP
From CP

In the midst of all the controversy about Canadian abortion laws, Eleanor Peirine has written a calm book that takes a look at the question from all sides.

The book, Abortion in Canada, is based on the answers to 295 questionnaires, on interviews with doctors who perform abortions — and some who won't — and with women who have had abortions, as well as on research. She presents her material even-handedly, but she is in favor of taking abortion laws out of the Criminal Code and of doing away with the hospital committee system of deciding whether a woman should be allowed an abortion.

Chile Considers Legal Divorce

SANTIAGO (AP) — President Salvador Allende, a Marxist, wants to legalize divorce in Chile. This may sound new for Latin America, where the Roman Catholic Church is dominant, but it's not.

Divorce has been legal in some Latin-American countries since the end of the last century.

In Bolivia, where divorce has been legal since 1932, a couple can divorce merely by seeking a judge three times in a six-month period. If they still want to part, a divorce is granted.

Nicaragua, with a 19th century divorce law, also allows mutual-consent divorces costing as low as $50.

Mexico has put an end to quickie divorces for foreigners, but for Mexicans it is still possible to get a divorce in a matter of days.

Among other countries where divorce is legal are Venezuela, Peru, Panama and Honduras. Costa Rica has had legalized divorce since 1888.

Grounds for divorce usually run the same in all these countries: mutual consent, separation for two to five years, adultery on the woman's part; concubinage on the man's; habitual drunkenness, abandonment, permanent insanity, cruelty, and imprisonment of one of the partners.

In some countries, a serious illness of one of the partners is grounds for divorce. Peru's law provides for divorce if one of the partners contracts a venereal disease after marriage.

The Roman Catholic Church for the most part does not interfere in those countries where divorce has been legal for so many years.

It has spoken out in Chile, however. Seventeen bishops addressed to Allende the words of Karl Marx himself:

"Nobody is obliged to marry, but one who does should be obliged to observe the laws of matrimony."

The bishops said they cited Marx "with gusto, although a great distance separates his principles from ours."

The Chilean government says it wants divorce legalized because under present circumstances separation or annulment does not oblige the husband to support the wife and any children — even though remarriage is illegal.

Divorce is illegal in Brazil, largest of the Latin-American countries, but sentiment for it is growing. Like Chile, Brazil permits legal separation but not remarriage.

Colombia has perhaps the most stringent marriage laws but the younger generation is voicing disapproval. Suverys there show that many young couples prefer to live together as singles for fear of being locked into an unhappy marriage.

Summer Dresses in Sad Shape

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

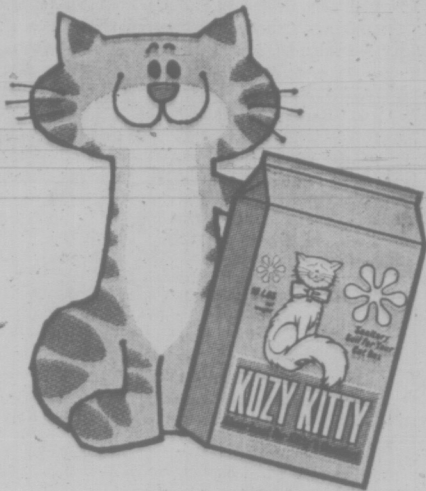

The general confusion into which fashion has been thrown can be immediately illustrated by the completely mad state of summer dress lengths. While anything short of the knee is completely out, designers seem to have become gun-shy of any length between the knee and the ankle.

Top summer collections were full of ankle-length dresses. For evening who could tell? There were so few dresses at any shorter length except at the knee, one could only conclude that ankle-length is also for daytime!

At the same time, designers have been plunged into mingled gloom and fury by what they regard as false press reports that Paris has gone back to above-knee lengths.

True, Cardin showed a very few short things, as a kind of youth fillip to a generally sophisticated collection, but the only designer who went back to above-knee was St. Laurent. As he has been the single most influential designer lately, his move caused some finger-nail biting. But his above-knee clothes were wartime '40s looks, ugly as war always is, and who needs that as a fashion?

Nevertheless, Seventh Avenue seems to have more or less given up for summer. There are lots of shorts and there are long dresses. When dress houses make shorts, desperation is in the wings. (A Fashion League Feature)

Sharp Visit Linked With Arms Hostility

LONDON (CP) — The Guardian suggests today that the coming visit of External Affairs Minister Sharp to Africa is linked with hostile reaction among some Commonwealth countries over Britain's decision to supply South Africa with helicopters.

The newspaper reports "laughter" in top British circles over Nigeria's withdrawal from the eight-nation group formed at this year's Commonwealth conference to study Indian-Ocean security.

Now, however, the Nigerian government "is seeking more tangible ways of showing... displeasure at Britain's arms trade with Pretoria."

"Pending contract is for mineral development and manufacturing in Nigeria look like going to American, Canadian and West German interests," says The Guardian.

"Hints from Lagos coincide with the departure from Ottawa of the Canadian foreign minister... on a five-nation tour of Africa."

This takes him to Nigeria next Tuesday and also includes visits to Tanzania and Zambia, where there have been further expressions of anger over the British decision.

"Not a peep from Ottawa about the timing of Sharp's trip but the message is clear enough," The Guardian comments.

CHAINS HERSELF TO CHAIR

Commons Disrupted by Woman

OTTAWA (CP) — Clair Culhane of Montreal caused only a minor stir in the Commons Thursday when she arose from her seat in the gallery and called for an end to "Canadian duplicity" in the Vietnam war.

While the question period continued, security guards easily snipped a half-inch chrome chain that bound Mrs. Culhane to her seat and hustled her to a basement room.

She was questioned there for two hours and then released. She said she expects to be charged with disturbing the peace later this month.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas was questioning Finance Minister E. J. Benson when Mrs. Culhane began shouting from her seat in the Liberal gallery and throwing leaflets to MPs. She had been admitted there with a friend, Mrs. Marie Taylor of Ottawa, after they showed a card signed by Jean Richard (L-Ottawa East).

In a voice barely heard above the proceedings of the House, Mrs. Culhane, addressing herself to Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, said:

"Why build hospitals in Vietnam while supplying bombs to the U.S.A.?"

Security guards quickly surrounded her and Speaker Lamoureux, calling for order, asked Mr. Douglas to continue his questioning.

A similar occurrence last year by women protesting Canada's abortion laws had forced the Commons to adjourn briefly.

Speaking to reporters afterwards, Mrs. Culhane said she had been trying for three years to convince the government to remove its hospital program in Vietnam from U.S. influence.

Her demonstration in the Commons came about because she had "exhausted all alternatives."

Mrs. Taylor, who also was questioned by security guards, said she didn't know Mrs. Culhane would throw leaflets.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS ATTACKED IN 2 HOUSES

By The Canadian Press

Government ventures in the business world were criticized in two Canadian legislatures Thursday.

At Regina, the worth of the federal government's proposed Canada Development Corp. was questioned. At Edmonton, an opposition member said government, where possible, should revert its departments, agencies and Crown corporations to private enterprise.

The Saskatchewan house was told by Austin Forsyth (L-Saskatoon-Nutana South) that incentives to Canadians to invest in Canadian enterprise might be a better approach than the C.D.C.

"What if the market value of the common stock in CDC goes down just before an election—will any government resist the temptation of 'buying in' to support the price?" he asked.

Reversion of government departments and agencies to private enterprise would stimulate the economy, create jobs and inject new vigor into business in Alberta, Lou Hyndman (PC-Edmonton West) told the Alberta house.

In a private-member's-day motion, he said the government gradually has taken over or moved into areas that can be handled just as effectively and inexpensively by private enterprise.

The rights of citizens received an airing at Victoria where Patricia Jordan, minister without portfolio, suggested there should be a thorough review of the role of courts, lawyers and judges in society.

She said the ordinary law-abiding citizen does not receive the protection under the law to which he is entitled because he is afraid of the courts and "the complicated legal jargon and sloppiness of lawyers."

British equivalent of Hollywood's Oscars, winning nine prizes.

But Paul Newman, one of the stars, did not get a mention.

The annual awards are presented by the Society of Film and Television Arts, about 650 of the British industry's leading technicians from director down. The awards were presented by Princess Anne.

Newman's co-star, Robert Redford, was named best actor, but his performance was linked with that in two other movies Tell Them Willie Boy is Here and Downhill Racer.

Katharine Ross, the film's leading lady, was named best actress, linked with her performance with Redford in Tell Them Willie Boy is Here.

Other awards picked up by the film included: the best film: the best direction — George Roy Hill; best screenplay — William Goldman; best cinematography — Conrad Hall; best film editing — John C. Howard and Richard C. Meyer; best sound track — Don Hall, David Dockendorf and William Edmundson.

Burt Bacharach won the special award for the best film music.

The best supporting actor and the best supporting actress were British — Colin Welland in Kes and Susannah York in They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

... AND KEEP THE CHANGE

GLASGOW, Scotland (UPI) — Royal Automobile Club patrolman Andy Brown got a shock when he went to help a member whose car had broken down.

When Brown, 46, diagnosed the trouble, the motorist, a Malayan seaman, told him: "I am off to sea shortly — you keep the car. I can't be bothered to get it fixed."

VILLAGERS GIVE VET HELPING HAND

BEIRUT (UPI) — When a hog ran amok killing six goats in a southern Lebanese village near Nabatiyah township, a hurried call went out to the local vet.

But when he got to the area with his gun, he found the villagers had killed the pig and were just sitting down to eat it.

Air Race Sets 100-Entry Limit

Organizers of B.C.'s July 1 centennial air race have decided to limit entries to 100 because of the tremendous number of inquiries being received.

But, until the limit is reached, anybody with almost any type of aircraft can qualify for the 5,851-mile race to Victoria which will have a prize list expected to exceed $175,000.

The Royal Air Force base at Abingdon, Berkshire, will be the starting point. It is 60 miles west of London, near Oxford.

The air race is expected to finish in Victoria July 7 and the over-all winner will receive the premier's trophy and a $50,000 cheque at a banquet in the Empress Hotel July 10.

Organizers say pilots in western Canada have shown the greatest enthusiasm with Ontario and Quebec next.

The race is open to individuals, groups or companies. There are four classes — single-engine aircraft powered by a piston engine with a maximum authorized takeoff weight of less than 5,000 pounds; unsupercharged twin-engine aircraft powered by piston engines with a maximum authorized takeoff of less than 12,500 pounds; aircraft powered by supercharged piston or propeller turbine engines with maximum authorized takeoff weight not exceeding 12,500

Hard Hats React

RICHMOND, Va. (CP) — Construction workers here are cashing in their U.S. government bonds in protest against President Nixon's suspension of a law requiring the government to pay workers on federal construction projects the same wages that prevail in industry. One union converted $12,000 in bonds to cash.

pounds; aircraft powered by jet engines with maximum authorized takeoff weight not exceeding 30,000 pounds.

Entry fees range from $150 to $500 depending on the class. There is no ban on entry of military personnel or on use of military aircraft provided they meet requirements.

There is no listing of the final entrants available yet.

Sunday afternoon concert series closes this weekend at the University of Victoria with a presentation of Hindemith's Marianleben, or The Life of the Virgin Mary. Catherine Young will sing the complete setting of German poet Rainer Maria Rilke's 13-poem song cycle accompanied by pianist Winifred Scott.

In an interview, Mrs. Young explained that the Marianleben song cycle was difficult and long.

"I learned it eight years ago," she said, "because I thought it was interesting vocal literature. In the process of learning it I discovered why more people didn't include it in song repertoire. It took over a year for my accompanist and me to learn it."

"It requires such precision between singer and accompanist. The music is so difficult."

LONG REHEARSALS
She added that she never did perform it with her original accompanist.

"It took us so long to master it I often wonder if he ever did perform it with someone else."

Mrs. Young continued, "Even though Miss Scott and I have had enormously long rehearsals, we haven't had

Thinning Onion Seedlings

By HILDA BEASTALL

Remember the onion seeds you sowed last fall? They germinated while the soil was still warm, grew a little and then stopped. Now they may be about four or five inches tall and ready to be thinned, and the largest are those to take out, leaving the smallest to grow.

With nearly all kinds of plant thinning we leave the strongest or largest seedlings. We figure they have a larger root system, therefore a stronger constitution and consequently a better chance of producing plants suiting our needs.

When dealing with biennial plants (onions are one of these) which have overwintered in the open we must be a bit more clever in our understanding.

Biennials will begin an attempt at flowering and seeding after receiving any kind of setback in growth, or a shock of any sort which halts normal growth temporarily.

Transplanting is a shock. Winter temperatures and low light density are shocks.

Our onion seedlings from last fall's sowing have endured the "shock" of winter, however lightly its impact has been on us. The smaller seedlings will have had less shock than the more advanced and will be less likely to rush into flower head production when they start growing again during March.

So we leave the small onion seedlings to grow undisturbed until large firm bulbs will be our reward when they finally ripen in August.

Onions are a long season crop here, requiring the extra time gained by sowing in fall, and if the winter is not severe enough to stop growth entirely we have a chance of ripening some good bulbs.

Pull out the larger seedlings to use as green onions now; few vegetables are so fresh and appetizing in smell and flavor. Allow spacings of three to five inches between those you leave.

If you find many small seedlings need removing to give this spacing, don't be afraid to transplant a batch. Mark the row as "transplanted" with the date, so you can estimate the advantages if any of not transplanting when the crop is lifted.

Onions like a richly organic soil, so take a shovelful of well rotted compost and lay along the row where you intend transplanting. Then make a hole with a small wooden dibber, deep enough to take the roots without crowding.

Don't plant too deeply; during May you begin exposing the bulbs to light and air.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Had today's deal arisen in a rubber-bridge game, it probably would have passed by unnoticed, for only the matter of an overtrick was at stake. But the deal happened to arise in a duplicate game, in which game the making of an overtrick can mean the difference between winning and losing.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

NORTH
 ♠ 7 5 2
 ♣ A Q J 9 8 6
WEST
 ♠ 10 8 4 3
 ♦ K 5 2
 ♣ K 7
EAST
 ♠ 19
 ♥ K J 7 6
 ♦ Q J 10 3
 ♣ 10 4 3

The bidding:
 North East South West
 3 ♠ Pass 3NT Pass
 Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

North's vulnerable three-club opening bid was definitely on the lighter side, but of such deviations are victories (and defeats) made.

If one were to look at all four hands, he would perceive that 10 tricks are there for the taking. Declarer wins the opening lead and takes the club finesse. And since West's club king falls on the next lead, declarer declarer promptly led his deuce of clubs at trick two. But West didn't follow suit with the seven spot. Instead, he played the king, into the jaws of dummy's A-Q-J!

Declarer now pushed for reflection. If the king were a singleton—which it certainly appeared to be—then East had started with the 10-7-4-3 of clubs. If declarer took West's king of clubs with the ace, queen, and jack, since East's (presumed) 10 would win the fourth lead of the suit.

So declarer decided not to jeopardize his contract. He allowed West's king of clubs to win. West returned the spade queen, declarer taking the trick.

South then led a club, and he was most unhappy when West followed suit. When play had ended, declarer had made just nine tricks: two spades, one heart, one diamond, and five clubs.

At none of the other tables, when the deal was replayed, did the West defender put up the club king on the initial club lead. Thus each South declarer finessed, and brought home six club tricks, and an overtrick, on the hand.

Doctor Awarded Forestry Prize For Research

Dr. Alan Orr-Ewing, 3220 Exeter, has been awarded the Distinguished Forester Award for 1970 for outstanding contributions to the science of forest genetics and the practice of forestry.

He received the award at a recent annual meeting of the Association of B.C. Professional Foresters at Williams Lake.

A member of the research division of the B.C. Forest Service, he is widely known by forest geneticists throughout the world.

He has published more than 30 papers on genetic research and had devoted most of his professional life to improving the Douglas Fir.

Born in London, England in 1915, Dr. Orr-Ewing applied for entry into the B.C. Forest Service while a prisoner of war in Germany in 1945, and eventually joined the service in 1948.

TOO MANY BIRDS ON HAND

CHELTEMHAM, England (UPI) — Pigeons perching on the hands have slowed down the clock on Holy Trinity Church. Rev. Cyril Catchpole has called in health department experts to get rid of the birds.

LADY GODIVA WALKS AGAIN

GRAVESEND, England (UPI) — The pretty blonde skipped seductively up the main road, wriggling in front of astonished motorists clad only in a tiny bra and panties.

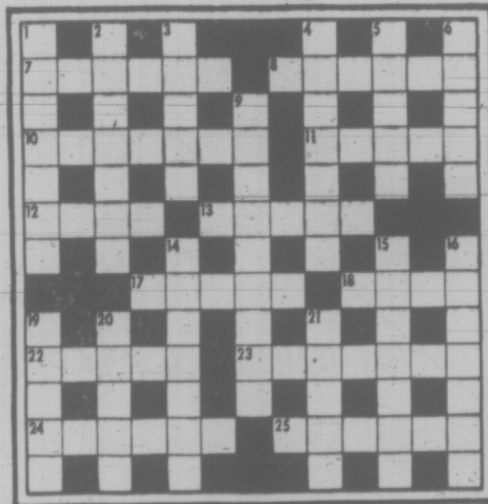

Then, as quickly as she appeared, she disappeared.

A police spokesman said: "We haven't a clue what she was up to, but we almost had a chain collision on our hands."

This Grandmother Prefers Motorbike

By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — It's a boy. No it's a girl. It's a grandma on a Yamaha!

Inge Werner of Duncan, mother of three ranging in age from nine to 23 and grandmother of a six-month old girl, found she would much rather travel on her motorbike than drive a car.

"I don't drive a car," she explained. "I renewed my learner's licence about six times but I am just too scared to drive a car. I feel I would be a hazard on the road because of my fear and there are enough poor drivers already without me."

Up until a year ago Mrs. Werner was arriving at her various janitorial and house-keeping jobs on a two-wheeler.

"Then I needed faster transportation to go to work," she said. So I bought a 100cc Yamaha bike. Now I can average about 55 miles per hour."

Since Mrs. Werner bought her bike she has put over 1,400 miles on it.

Mrs. Werner, who also has her "A" and "B" glider licences, plans a two-week trip to the U.S. this summer alone and on her bike.

Traps Found On Sanctuary For Geese

DUNCAN — "A people problem" has persuaded the Cowichan Fish and Game Association to improve a bird sanctuary on a small privately-owned island in Quamichan Lake.

Association president Walter Latter said the association has requested permission from the island owner's mother, Mrs. T. V. Sandys-Wunsch, to take steps to prevent people from landing on the island.

"There is no raccoon problem there but a people problem and several birds including Canada geese were caught in muskrat traps recently which were put on the island illegally, Latter said.

With an improved nesting area it will be possible to prosecute people who land and disturb the birds, Latter said.

It is hoped property owners around the lake will also agree to having nesting areas there improved.

The association is now looking for about 30 bales of old hay to build the nests for the Canada geese.

Laszlo Gati will conduct the orchestra.

Mother Says Son Was 'Awful Sight'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver Island woman testified in British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday that she found her allegedly kidnapped son "an awful sight" when she came to Vancouver to pay $275 for his release.

He had almost no hair and there was blood on him and his clothes, Mrs. Joyce Clark, of Duncan, told the court. "His face was swollen and his eyes were shut."

She was testifying at the trial of Michael Ronald Mifflin, Michael John McInnis, Garry Edwin Galloway, John Douglas Sykes, Edward Bond Glaser and William D. Blacquire, charged with kidnapping and assaulting David Clark, 18, and with intent to extort money by threats on his life.

Clark previously testified that he owed one of the accused $235 and was ordered under duress to repay it.

His mother told the court she received a phone call the night of Oct. 17 telling her to wire the money to Vancouver if she wanted to see her son alive again. She said the demand was originally for $250, but that it was later increased to $350 because she had "talked too long."

The trial continues.

SPECIAL RCMP FORCE

Indians to Police Reserves

Special Indian police constables will be used to fight drug and liquor abuses on reserves, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson told the legislature Thursday.

Frank Calder (NDP-Atlin) asked Peterson if the province could adopt a program of creating this special kind of police, because a similar scheme for three Indian bands in the Nass

River valley in his riding had proved successful.

Peterson said his department is working with the RCMP to enlarge the program for other reserves and told the NDP member the first would begin in Bella Bella.

Calder said drug and liquor abuses on reserves at times have created chaotic conditions sometimes resulting in murders.

Calder said an RCMP program of auxiliary constables off reserves does not have enough power to care for problems on reserves.

In addition to Bella Bella, he said, reserves at Port Simpson, Kitimat, Cape Mudge and Cowichan need attention. Calder said village councils would be prepared to supply men for training as special constables.

Home Guard Regulations Sought

Tight regulations on private home guard companies were proposed in the legislature Thursday by Liberal Leader Pat McGeer.

McGeer said a Victoria firm which has employed several ex-convicts is competing with an established, respected company, Western Home Guard Patrol; and several complaints against the new company have been lodged with the Better Business Bureau.

The Liberal leader said employees of the new firm are signing contracts with people who think they are buying the services of Western Home Guard Patrol.

Home patrol employees, he said, should be bonded, fingerprinted, known to the local police and investigated by the RCMP.

McGeer did not name the other company.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson criticized McGeer for stirring the reputation of men who are trying to rehabilitate themselves. He said the matter would best be brought before local councils if complaints exist.

McGeer said it would be better for provincial regulations to be set down.

GILMOUR TEAMSTER MEDIATOR

VAN COUVER (CP) —

Clark Gilmour has been appointed mediator in the British Columbia Teamsters dispute and both sides have agreed to meet with him Monday.

Mediation Commission chairman John Parker said Gilmour was appointed at his own request Thursday, the day after talks broke off between the Teamsters' union and the Automotive Transport Labor Relations Association. The Teamsters have always attended meetings where a mediator only has been involved. But the union states they will not attend any Mediation Commission hearings.

Neither side, however, was optimistic that the meeting would help break the deadlock over what the union calls a struck-goods clause and the association calls a hot cargo clause.

Union negotiator Blair Whitlock said the struck-goods clause involves the refusal by members to handle goods from behind picket lines. Hot cargo is that handled by non-union workers.

The dispute led to a strike-lockout which ended after 10 days on a provincial government order.

First N-Sub For Victoria

The first nuclear-powered American submarine to dock in Esquimalt was due to be up at a dockyard jetty at 2 p.m. today.

She is the attack vessel USS Scamp, based in San Diego and commanded by Cmdr. D. M. Smith.

The submarine will not be open to the public. A naval spokesman says she will be here on "operational" duties and will leave Monday.

Although this is the first time such a vessel has docked at Esquimalt, nuclear submarines have operated with Canadian naval forces before in the Nanos area, using the up-island firing range.

The Scamp is 251 feet long, has a beam of 31 feet and draws 28 feet. She has a ship's complement of 114 and was commissioned in New London, Conn., in 1961.

Believed to be on post-retreat trials, the Scamp is not equipped with nuclear missiles.

'My God Not Him!'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The only woman member of the House of Commons said Thursday night she thought the institution of marriage was under threat until she heard of the marriage of Prime Minister Trudeau.

"My God I didn't think he was the marrying kind," said Grace MacInnis, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Vancouver-Kingsway, when told the news.

"I think we'll all be waiting to see whether this will make a difference in him and also whether his wife will have a political role to play or just attend tea parties. But I do congratulate him."

The executive was to have met in Ottawa Thursday but West Coast representatives were reportedly stranded by weather in Winnipeg.

The 2,900 employees, including 1,200 at Esquimalt, voted 75 per cent in favour of strike action after rejecting a federal treasury board wage offer which would have differentials.

Dock Strike Word Due

There was no definite answer today whether the Esquimalt and Halifax dockyards will be hit by a strike this Sunday.

The Halifax Dockyard Trades and Labor Council has set this date for a walkout but official approval has yet to come from the council's national executive.

The executive was to have met in Ottawa Thursday but West Coast representatives were reportedly stranded by weather in Winnipeg.

The 2,900 employees, including 1,200 at Esquimalt, voted 75 per cent in favour of strike action after rejecting a federal treasury board wage offer which would have differentials.

City 'Depressed Area' in Theatrical Sense

Victoria is a depressed area theatrically, Victoria aldermen were told Thursday.

Appealing for financial assistance from the city, for Bastion Theatre, A. G. Coning said the theatre group cannot afford to stage the type of production that would attract a large gate.

Coning told council's finance committee: "From the Canada Council point of view, we are a depressed area, theatrically."

The committee balked at the request, however, and called for a review of all theatre groups in the city at Mayor Courtney Haddock's request.

GRANT WOULD HELP

Coning said an increase in civic grants of $3,000 to $4,000 would enable the theatre to produce more attractive plays.

Aldermen Robert Baird, Peter Pollen and Percy Frampton said Bastion should be helped. Pollen reminded the committee the city has received $63,000 in rental fees from Bastion for use of the McPherson Theatre, while grants amounted to about $30,000.

Bastion received $9,645 last year from intermunicipal councils.

Ald. Tom Christie told Coning: "I have been to some of your plays and, frankly, sir, I felt like walking out."

"I dare say there are other people who feel like this," Coning replied.

Ald. Percy Frampton said, "I think this is one cultural group we can help."

'ROUGH SHAPE'

Comptroller Jim Brainley later told the committee the city could afford to make a grant, but "they are in pretty rough shape financially."

The grant they requested "won't go too far to meet liabilities," which he said totalled about $40,000.

"Even with the money they ask, they are in trouble."

Christie added that he has "a feeling we are subsidizing a group of professional actors."

$156,439 Converted To Own Use

A 30-year-old Saanich notary public pleaded guilty Thursday in Victoria provincial court to two charges of theft by conversion involving 42 counts totalling $156,439.66.

Judge William Ostler remanded William Edward Williams, 3115 Parlow, in custody until March 18 for pre-sentence report and sentence. Amounts in the 42 counts ranged from $28.77 to $23,463.40. The thefts occurred between November, 1969, and Feb. 16, 1971.

In a statement read to court by Saanich police detective Frank Briers, Williams said he opened his notary business at 3204 Douglas Feb. 1, 1969. As a result of financial difficulties and a lack of business volume he began to misuse the trust funds to pay current operating expenses, loan repayments and living expenses.

LACK OF EXPERIENCE

"Due to my lack of experience in operating a business on my own, office expenses often exceeded income," the statement continued.

Briers, looking at one of the counts, explained the accused's method of theft.

The detective said Williams registered a conveyance Feb. 8 regarding a purchase of property whose buyers gave the man $23,463.40 to close the deal.

Briers said Williams placed the money in trust fund and used it for his own use.

Briers said Williams came to the Saanich police station with his lawyer Feb. 16 and explained his situation.

Defence counsel Robert Heath said the man came to his office because "he had lived with this burden long enough."

HELPED POLICE

Heath said his client had virtually helped police "draw up the first two charges" against him in describing the openness of Williams when he gave himself up.

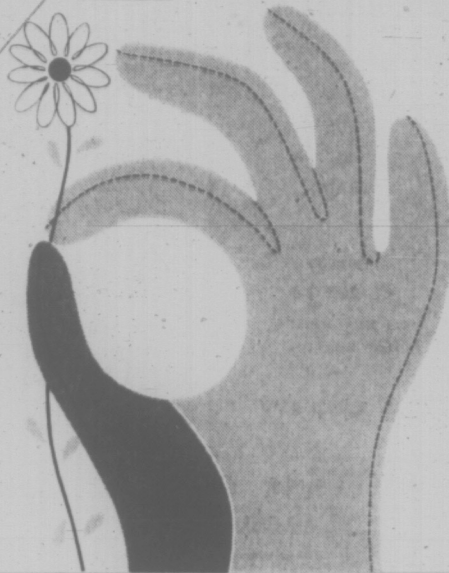

The Crown withdrew two earlier charges of fraud Thursday when entering the theft by conversion counts.

Heath said there was $80,000 in assets that could be recoverable.

Also involved are Handyman Renovations, Genevieve Holdings Ltd. and Williams Insurance Consultants Ltd.

The defence lawyer arguing in a bail application said fees would be substantially lower if Williams were able to stay out of custody until sentence and help in the process of recovering as much money as possible.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre, while agreeing with Heath's point that the man had been helpful to police since giving himself up, opposed the bail application.

A MAN AND HIS WIFE bowing in prayer at their wedding Thursday are Prime Minister Trudeau and the former Margaret Sinclair, 22, of West

Vancouver. Couple were wed in private ceremony in North Vancouver with only immediate family attending. (Fred Schiffer photo.)

Trudeau Marries B.C. Girl In Super-Surprise Wedding

By DAVE STOCKAND

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a private man with a flair for the dramatic, is honeymooning today with his 22-year-old bride after a wedding that caught an entire country by surprise.

Canada's 51-year-old leader, one of North America's most eligible bachelors, took as his bride Thursday Margaret Sinclair, a leggy, almond-eyed beauty — and a university graduate in political science and sociology.

The marriage of the millionaire swinger-thinker and the auburn-haired beauty took place Thursday evening in St. Stephen's Roman Catholic church, a modest one-storey establishment with an austere modern interior.

Only immediate family attended — and there was no announcement until the ceremony was over.

The wedding plans were kept so secret that two of the bride's four sisters didn't know of the wedding until they arrived at the church. They thought they had been called home for a family party marking their father's 60th anniversary of his arrival in Canada from Scotland.

The newly-marrieds — who met three years ago while both were vacationing in Tahiti — will have a honeymoon in the dramatically beautiful ski country in the Garibaldi Park area north of Vancouver and will head for Ottawa next week to set up housekeeping at the prime minister's official residence on Sussex Drive.

Here is the sequence that led up to and followed the thunderbolt announcement that Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the kissing campaigner and dater of entertainer Barbra Streisand, among many others, had settled into the marriage fold.

Earlier Thursday, Mr. Trudeau was reported to be in the Vancouver area on a skiing holiday, expected by all but the most intimate insiders to be just another of the prime minister's attempts to gain a little hard won privacy and get away briefly from his recent impish interjections in parliamentary debate.

Mr. Trudeau arrived in the afternoon aboard a transport department jet plane which was late arriving, it was understood, because of storm conditions in the east.

Nothing more was heard until Trudeau aide Gordon Gibson called The Canadian Press with his bombshell announcement in the form of a "statement on behalf of James Sinclair and Mrs. Sinclair."

The statement said:

"Pierre Elliott Trudeau married Margaret Sinclair this evening at St. Stephen's Church, North Vancouver, in a quiet ceremony attended only by members of the two families.

"... Charles Trudeau was best man for his brother and Rosalind Sinclair bridesmaid for her sister.

"After a wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau leave for a short honeymoon before returning to Ottawa next week."

From the church service, the Trudeaus went to a wedding dinner at the Capilano Golf and Country Club in North Vancouver where a dinner was served for an exclusive sitting of 13.

Smoked salmon capilano was on the wedding-dinner menu along with turtle soup, roast filet of beef, asparagus with lemon butter, and pears flambe.

In making the arrangements, a fictitious name was used for the prime minister. The priest

She Has Talent and Brains And Shares PM's Pastimes

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, the fourth of James Sinclair's five bright and beautiful daughters, grew up in an atmosphere of politics.

Her father is a Privy Councillor and a former Liberal fisheries minister, with a record of 17 years as a Liberal member of Parliament.

Margaret, 22, has all the attributes of a beauty: she's a blue-eyed, auburn-haired and a slim five-foot-six but she has talent and brains as well.

She is a graduate of Simon Fraser University in the Vancouver suburb of Burnaby, where she studied political science and sociology, and worked for a time last year with Canada Manpower in Ottawa as a sociologist.

She's an ardent skier and skin diver—two of her husband's favorite pastimes—but she's also at home in the kitchen or sewing room. She made her own wedding gown and three-tier wedding cake.

The wedding gown she designed and made was of a loose-weave Finnish wool with long sleeves and a hood.

Margaret was an Anglican but recently became a Roman Catholic. They had the full Catholic wedding service, performed by Father John Swinkels.

The bride and groom met for the first time in 1967, in Tahiti, where the Sinclairs were on a family holiday while James Sinclair thought about the upcoming battle for leadership of the Liberal party.

"It's quite a joke that I was a John Turner man at the time, but my wife and daughters were all for Trudeau," he said Thursday night.

MEET TRUDEAU'S MOTHER
The prime minister invited Margaret to Ottawa to meet his mother at Christmas, 1969. The following Easter, Mr. Trudeau came to West

Vancouver to "meet" her parents.

"We're more or less known since then that they'd get married," Mrs. Sinclair said.

Pierre and Margaret saw each other often last year while she worked in Ottawa. In the past six months, with Margaret living at home in the exclusive British Properties district of West Vancouver, their meetings have been secret.

"She's really been preparing for this day all the time," her mother said. "She's been learning French and it has been a lot of fun having her at home."

KEPT DATES SECRET

Margaret has always kept her outings with the prime minister secret, as he had requested, and even two of her own sisters and her grandmother thought they were coming to an anniversary party Thursday instead of to a wedding reception.

Margaret's 23-year-old sister, Rosalind, a radio technician, was bridesmaid and she

QUEBEC STORM KILLS AT LEAST 11 PERSONS

(Times News Services)

MONTREAL — At least 11 persons are dead from heart attacks and carbon monoxide poisoning and this city has been brought to a standstill by a record 20-inch snowfall.

The swirling, driving storm which set a 24-hour record in Montreal swung into the Maritimes today dumping up to 20 inches in northern New Brunswick and piling up huge drifts with the help of 75-mile-an-hour winds.

Belfast Riot Follows Kidnap

BELFAST (AP) — A major riot swept through Roman Catholic Falls Road district of this Northern Irish capital today during an army search for two Protestants kidnapped at gunpoint.

Roaming mobs of teenagers hijacked buses for use as barricades and hurled waves of gasoline bombs and missiles at army riot squads. The riot broke out after soldiers searched the Long Bar in Leeson St., an unofficial headquarters for many Irish nationalists.

Soldiers arrested several men. Women of the neighborhood hurled missiles and thumped ash can lids.

Detectives from Scotland Yard began investigating the kidnapping of the Protestants, believed a reprisal for the alleged Protestant theft of Roman Catholic arms recently.

Three masked, armed men drove up to a house in the Protestant Sandy Row area and forced three Protestant men into a car at gunpoint.

ONE RELEASED

One later was dumped unharmed in the same area later. With him was a message that the other two men would be shot dead unless the arms were returned.

A barrage of gasoline bombs and paving stones met army riot squads on long stretches of the Falls Road. The barrage came from behind blazing barricades of overturned trucks. Troops in riot gear scrambled from armored cars under strong attack and sealed off areas in a methodical search for rioters.

Consultation On Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers has agreed to consult the Canadian government before approving an oil pipeline across Alaska linked to a shipping route down the British Columbia coast to Washington State, the Commons was told today.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Rogers' agreement indicated that the U.S. government has not reached a decision on the pipeline-tanker route.

He expected the talks to start "very soon."

NDP Chief Defied Speaker Ruling

By PETER McNELLY and BRUCE YEMEN

A young widow's fight for a compassionate grant of insurance benefits was pushed to the breaking point early today when Opposition Leader Dave Barrett was "named" and barred from the legislature for a week.

The suspension for defiance of supply committee chairman Herb Bruch climaxed a test of political wills in which Barrett asked the same question 67 times in 90 minutes to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

Peterson Moved Motion

Peterson refused to say he would write to insurance companies asking them to consider granting a compassionate payment of $12,000 in death benefits for a widow.

Bruch "named" Barrett for defiance of his ruling to stop asking the same question and Peterson followed it up with a motion to bar Barrett from the house for a week.

Liberal MLAs in the house voted against the motion along with New Democrats as the 29 government members voted to suspend Barrett at 1:10 a.m.

On two previous occasions MLAs have been suspended from the B.C. legislature.

Gordon Dowding (NDP, Burnaby Edmonds) was censured for breach of parliamentary privilege and suspended in the final moments of the 1969 legislative session.

The motion was based on allegations by Speaker Herb Capozzi that partners of Dowding's law firm earned fees three years previously for passage of a bill through the legislature setting up an insurance company.

Dowding said he had declared his firm's interest and refrained from voting or dealing with the bill as an MLA.

Gordon Gibson, Liberal member for Lillooet in 1955, was expelled from the legislature for refusing to withdraw his "money talks and has talked" remarks in connection with the issuing of forest management licenses.

Eileen Dailly Interim Leader

Deputy NDP leader Eileen Dailly will be the leader of the opposition until Barrett returns to the house a week from today.

Barrett, announcing the decision this morning, said Mrs. Dailly is "very capable."

In reply to a question, he said he believes it is the first time in the history of the Commonwealth that a woman has been leader of the opposition.

Barrett expressed no regrets over his suspension early this morning and said he would do it all over again. Barrett said he does not know if he can sit in the public galleries during his suspension.

The climax of the political battle came amid silence in the house.

It started about 3:12 hours

earlier with William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) relating the case of a 22-year-old widow whose husband, Jack Taylor, was seriously injured in a car accident near Trail, Jan. 22, 1970.

He died in hospital on Sept. 9, two months after the 180-day "limit" allowed by the government's insurance law for traffic victims to be eligible for death benefits.

Hartley said the law was wrong and the woman, who has a child, deserves a compassionate payment of the death benefits which would total about $12,000.

Peterson in reply said the question of the 180-day limit is under study but gave no indication that he favored making an exception to the existing law to help the woman.

'Had Bad Driving Record'

He pointed out that the victim, according to his information, had a bad driving record which had resulted in his being insured by the "facility," an insurance industry arrangement to cover high risks.

About $1,800 in insurance payments had been made to the woman, he said.

The New Democrats said they were not satisfied with the answer.

Barrett made an impassioned appeal for the attorney-general to show some compassion in the case as he felt sure that Premier Bennett would have shown in the same circumstances. Bennett was out of the house at the time.

Peterson sat silently as Hartley resumed questioning in an effort to get a commitment from Peterson on the case.

Bruch finally called Speaker William Murray in to the chamber after Hartley persisted in his efforts in spite of warnings about "tedious repetition" being against the rules.

Hartley said he had a

"moral duty" to fight for the woman in question.

Murray told Hartley he must obey the chairman, and the supply committee resumed with Hartley persisting.

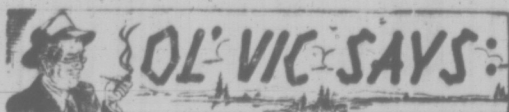

Over a period of several minutes, the now-retired Premier Bennett, cooled-off angry Socialists who were calling for Bruch to face action against Hartley.

At 11:45 p.m. Barrett took the floor and began to read, for the fourth time, a letter to Pierre Fortier, manager of the new venture, says the move makes the Provincial Bank the first bank in Canada to enter the travel business.

The credit union and bank on the new travel agency on a 50-50 basis because, said Mr. Fortier, the Bank Act "precludes such undertakings by a bank alone."

The agency has handled group fares for such places as Uruguay, Argentina, Greece, England and South Africa.

Mr. Fortier said he hopes to expand to Quebec City and then, "This is not the same charter flights where people must be from one organization."

They're Confused

Loffmark's 'Covering Up'

The two men who took the brunt of a blast from Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Thursday for delaying expansion at St. Joseph's Hospital had identical reactions today: bewilderment.

"We just simply don't know what he's talking about," said Dr. Alec Wood, president of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society.

"I really can't understand the minister at all," said Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock. "It seems to me

'RATHER NARROW'

Loffmark said Thursday the hospital society and city council were to blame for the latest delays in plans to expand St. Joseph's Hospital.

The society has taken a "rather narrow" view on who should hold title to the land needed for expansion and has rejected his compromise solution, said the health minister.

City council has "intruded" on property negotiations because it wants land it doesn't need immediately to extend Belleville Street alongside the expansion site.

Both Wood and Haddock emphatically denied the charges today.

'WHOLLY UNAWARE'

In a letter to Loffmark, Wood said the society officials "are utterly bewildered by these allegations and are wholly unaware of any foundation for them."

The society, which has been designated to take over St. Joseph's Hospital when the Sisters of St. Ann give it to the community, hasn't been involved in negotiations since last September, says Wood's letter.

In any event the society has never rejected a land leasing arrangement, in fact has never seen a proposal.

Haddock said the city's position on the extension of Belleville Street "has always been consistent and completely reasonable."

What the city wants is protection for the eventual extension. It is quite happy with an agreement already reached with the provincial government which will keep the site clear and let the province decide several years from now whether the extension is necessary.

The Hippies Do It — So Why Not You?

By Jack Scott

The three recent pieces here on the problems — and their possible solutions — of retired men and women have produced a number of comments which will wrap up the subject for the time being:

A city doctor who prefers anonymity, but is well known for his interest in the subject, comments on the suggestion of Dr. Victor Kassel, of Salt Lake City, that a form of polygyny should be legalized for those over 60.

"Dr. Kassel first advanced this plan in 1966 in the periodical Geriatrics and, needless to say, it has been the subject of much discussion by doctors," he writes.

"My own opinion is that it is an extremely practical idea that no government in power would dare to implement. But why bother? There is nothing, except possibly an outraged neighbor, to prevent a group of elderly people from joining together to rent a comfortable home and to share costs, companionship and mutual care. If the so-called hippies can do it, why not the older people?"

"There is, in fact, one such home in the James Bay area where, when I last visited, seven elderly folks, two gentlemen and five ladies, were living in harmony, proof of the fact that the image of the aged as cantankerous, set-in-their-ways and unyielding is so much nonsense."

"What is particularly interesting about Dr. Kassel's approach," the doctor goes on, "is that it is up to the retired to do something about their own problems. This is not a callous view. We all agree that our treatment of the older generation is reprehensible. But there is much, much more that they, themselves, could be doing."

"Many of us agree with Dr. Kassel's assessment that there has been a regrettable change in the attitude of older people in recent years, that they have become passive except to challenge everybody else to improve their lot. Their disabilities, as he put it, have become status symbols, a means whereby they can obtain attention and control their families and gain special advantages from government."

"My hope now is that the alternative you pose will be seriously considered by those friends of yours at Silver Threads who, as you rightly observe, have great resources of experience and wisdom."

"All of the arguments that you give in favor of the older man's right to have his own haven are cancelled out by just one fact," writes Mrs. Virginia Rolfe, of Esquimalt, herself a widow. "No woman I've ever met would willingly share a husband with four other wives."

"Since I am nearing 60 and have been retired for four years I can comment forcibly on the hogwash of your Dr. Otto," writes J. P. Thornton, of Victoria. "A murrain on him and all his tribe, the professors and doctors who have infested western society these past 20 years . . . know-alls who can cure all the ills of mankind."

"Let me say, that had I been born with money I would happily have passed my life away without ever working. Squire Western (Fielding's Tom Jones), caricature as he may be, would have been my model in peacetime. To pass the day, outdoors in exercises, to eat, drink and sleep and awake to a new day would have sufficed me all my life."

"But I was not born so. I had to go to work and so I lost my heart and soul in that. Now I am retired and I can do whatever I like for ever and ever. I eat more and weigh less and sleep better. Millions pay millions for sleeping pills. Why don't they take the Duke of Wellington's advice? When someone asked him if he ever lay awake at nights he replied, 'No, I don't see it does any good. I make a point of never lying awake.'"

"The one great problem with retirement, like death, is that people never really believe it will happen to them," writes R. J. Moyer, of Sooke, aged 74.

"For such people I think that the advice of Dr. Herbert Otto in your recent article was the best I have ever read. Spontaneity, the art of doing something just for the sheer joy of it, is essential, though many younger people will suspect that you have lost your mind. We are too burdened with false dignity and patriarchal demeanor. A man should whoop and holler, buy a motorbike, pick wild flowers and tell pretty girls that they are beautiful. That's the answer to happier old age."

OAK BAY LANDS LOAN

Federal loan funds will be made available for Oak Bay's Henderson Park and a senior citizens' centre on Mottery.

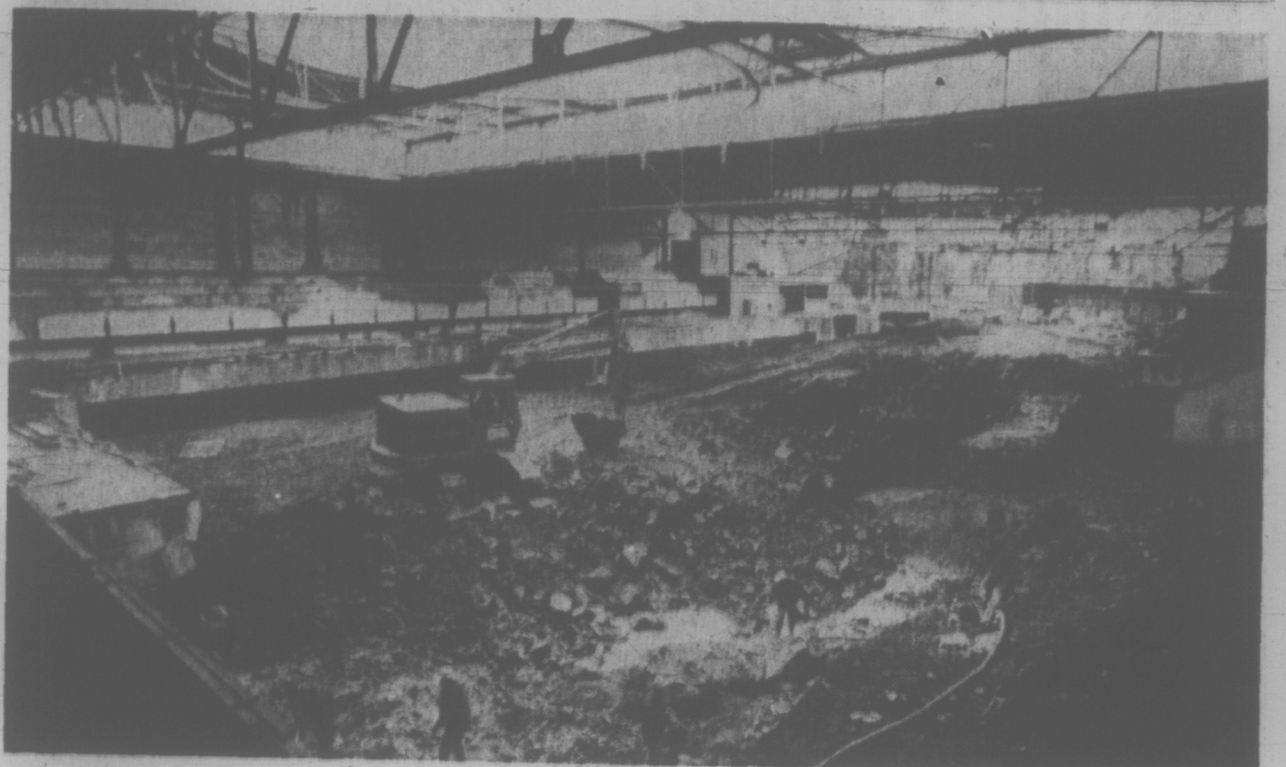

The provincial municipal affairs department informed Mayor Frances Eilford of the decision Thursday.

Under its make-work loan project, the federal government will allocate $198,000 for the construction of a senior citizens' centre and car park on the Mottery site. An additional provincial grant of $72,000 will be made available for the project.

A loan of $237,000 will be advanced for the construction of a pavilion, tennis courts and car park at Henderson Park.

Depending on tenders, work at Henderson Park is expected to get under way by April 30 with the completion date scheduled for Sept. 30.

The senior citizens' centre will be built alongside Oak Bay's consular library, with work on the centre expected to begin May 15 and end Dec. 31.

WORKMEN DIG IN at the site of Victoria's new swimming pool in Central Park which is now scheduled to be open in mid-September. Work on the $1,750,000 pool began in January last year but was delayed by a labor dispute and other problems. It had been hoped at one time the new pool would be ready for the Canadian national swimming championships in June. (Bill Halkett photo.)

'LET THE LITTLE DEVELOPERS IN'

Keep the Harbor 'Human'

A proposal to preserve and revitalize Victoria's old town and inner harbor waterfront area, rather than allow high-rise developers to move in, gained strong support after a lively public meeting Thursday night.

National Capital Commission manager and former city planner Rod Clark said today: "I agree entirely" with the basics of the proposal to save the old town, "because it is respecting the scale of Victoria and its background."

"These are very important qualities to retain in a city of this kind."

He said when he was city planner he prepared a number of background papers suggesting this kind of approach. Bastion Square was the first and so far only result.

Clark was unable to attend the public meeting but planned to confer today with the proposal's instigators, Victoria designer Jim Starch and 10 University of British Columbia architecture students.

A mixed crowd of more than 80 — businessmen, architects, homeowners, students and tenants — overflowed from an upstairs room on Government Street where the group has been working on the alternate proposal.

Their concept, which they stress is only a rough one, is for the area bounded by the harbor, Government and Pandora.

During the meeting, there were spirited comments about what was generally felt to be the folly of plunking high-rises in an historic area of "human-scale" 19th-century architecture and meandering alleyways designed for people, not cars.

One exchange: Elderly man: "The Reid project would be an unmitigated disaster. All your hopes and plans for the area would be completely smashed."

UBC project member Ken Lane, of Victoria: "You can't blame Reid. If you were a big-city developer — you come in and see a big chunk of land that 'the local hicks' are too slow to —"

Perennial majority candidate Bill Scott: "This isn't a third floors. Another 60,000 square feet is now in warehouse space, much of it barely used."

These buildings would be ideal for residences, they said, because nearly all have inner courts sheltered from the noise of the street and from the wind.

Lane summed up the economic basis of the group's proposal: "Get the big developer out and let all the little developers in."

Some comments, made after the meeting:

Al Tuerie, owner of Prince Charles motel: "It's like a breath of fresh air."

"It's odd that the young have to tell us old people how to do things right with old buildings."

"This is something we've got that makes Victoria distinctive."

"City hall talks about the tax dollars the Reid thing would raise, but you never hear them say what it's going to cost them, in servicing these huge projects."

He said the Reid project would escalate the tax base in the area so much that no small developers could afford to revitalize parts of the old town.

'The Young Tell Us Old People'

monopoly of one mind, is it? Reid and Courtney Haddock

Voice: "That's only one-and-a-half!"

But there was a lot of serious discussion too. And information: there is room in the old town's buildings for close to 200 new apartments and rooms, said the architecture students.

They have found, in their month-long study of the area, some 105,000 square feet of the buildings completely vacant, mostly on second and

Hydro to Wait Six Months On Bus Fare Hike Decision

It will be at least six months before B.C. Hydro decides whether to raise bus fares, Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum said Thursday.

He said it will take Hydro that long to study the economic results of the recently-instituted bus service cutbacks.

"Some of the cutbacks in Vancouver don't even go into effect until the end of this month, and then we want to see what happens (to revenues) during the summer months," he said in a telephone interview from Vancouver.

"We have to keep the deficit within limits."

Does he think bus users can afford to pay a higher fare, if Hydro decides it's necessary?

"These are about the lowest fares in North America," Shrum replied. "They do in other cities."

He said Hydro is "committed" to providing good rush-hour service "to get working people to and from their work."

What about the old people? It doesn't make any difference to old people whether there are buses every 20 minutes or once an hour, Shrum said.

"They can find out the schedule and catch the bus when it's going."

He said suggestions that Hydro increase its electricity rates to offset losses on its bus systems are impractical.

SUBSIDIES

Students Censure Fine Arts Dean

Students in the University of Victoria faculty of fine arts voted 14-2 Thursday in favor of censuring fine arts Dean Peter Garvie.

There were six abstentions from the vote, which came in response to a brief Garvie presented last month to the university's academic planning committee.

A resolution calling for Garvie's resignation was tabled so that the dean could be invited to speak to a meeting of students and faculty at some date not later than March 12.

The resolution said in preparing, writing and submitting his brief "Dean Garvie has not acted in the full interest of either the staff or student of the fine arts faculty; nor in the interest of future development of this university."

Enrollment in the fine arts faculty numbers around 265.

On Monday full-time faculty members of the department of studio visual arts declared non-confidence in the department chairman, Norman Toymon. They were supported in a near-unanimous vote by students.

Garvie said today his brief concerning future development of the fine arts faculty has been withdrawn, and that as a result of a meeting with fine arts faculty members Thursday, each department will likely draw up individual briefs.

ON THE RARE DAYS when Mount Baker sheds the cloud-cover of this uncertain season, it provides a spectacle both grand and chilly. But don't let the old rascal fool you. Beneath that frosted exterior lurks a heart of fire.

Baker's volcanic cone still leaks sulphurous fumes, and recent steamings from new locations caused a Washington State geologist who investigated to utter a double-barrelled comment.

The huffings and puffings didn't mean that Mount Baker was going to blow up, he said in effect. On the other hand, it was possible that the long-dormant volcano could erupt again.

I take this to mean that while we needn't fear a Krakatau-type bang, there's always the chance that Victoria in this her latest centennial year could be treated to a free fireworks display.

And not for the first time, either. Baker, in fact, obliged Victorians of an earlier era with more than one lurid show.

Old press accounts indicate that Beacon Hill was a favored vantage point for eruption-viewers. The last reported cork-blowing came in 1881. By all accounts, it was a tamer affair than some of its predecessors, from which we reaped an indirect benefit.

The mineral-rich ash that was wafted across the narrow waters helped make Victoria the garden city that it is today.

Here's a good word for Victoria's elder population

Drivers to Get Mug Shots

A color picture of the driver will be a new feature of drivers' licences, likely by the end of this year.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, responding to comments by George Mussailem, B.C. — Dewdney in the legislature Thursday, said the government intends to include the photos on drivers' permits as soon as an economical photographing system can be established.

Ray Hadfield, the province's superintendent of motor vehicles, said today the new format has been under study for some time. It's expected to be in operation by the end of this year.

B.C. drivers get a five-year licence for $15, renewable on their birthday. This means the new form of licence can be phased in over a five-year period, said Hadfield.

A number of technical details involving the photo processing and issuing need to be ironed out but plans now call for the photo of the driver to be in color. No increase in the licence fee is anticipated.

Arthur Mayse . . .

from Mrs. Marion Phillips, George Jay elementary school teacher whose Grade 1 class added an unusual project to Education Week.

While shoppers at Woodward's passed or paused, the kids tried their hands at butter-making.

Some toiled at a big old glass churn, others attempted the process with hand-beaters, and still others took turns at shaking cream-rich milk in a bottle.

"The older people were the ones who took an interest," says Mrs. Phillips. "They would stop and watch, and ask questions. The way they brought the children out was wonderful."

Sample scene: an ancient lady who won't see 90 again watching absently while one day's demonstration proceeded. It was a long time since she had seen butter in the making, she explained. But when she was young, she had made good farm butter in just such a churn as they were doing so well with.

All of which impresses me as a solid argument in favor of grandparents, or great-grandparents where such exist — the kind who have time to spare, stories to tell, and a well-ripened capacity for patience.

This hurry-up world could learn from them.

Campus literary journals come and go, fiercely championed, no less fiercely criticized, and often than not, doomed to a brief life-span. One that has lasted longer than most is The Absolute Cannon Review, published twice each year at University of Victoria by students.

It first came off the presses in the fall of 1968 with a generous cargo of fiction, verse and views.

I like The Absolute Cannon. It is honest and hard-trying, and it offers young talent something that every writer needs for his advancement. Space and readers, that is. Also an opportunity to evaluate the effect on hot words of cold print.

As a reader, I hope this review with the tongue-in-cheek title will continue in good health. As a journeyman scrivener, I think that those who write for it, and put it together, and pilot it from crisis to crisis, are doing a hard job very well indeed.

Curry or Mint Jelly Flavors Frozen Peas

Frozen peas, which have been carefully stored, cooked and served can rival the flavor and appearance of fresh green peas. Special varieties of peas, suitable for freezing, are harvested at the peak of sweetness. They are blanched before freezing then frozen before packaging. The peas are graded Canada Fancy and Canada Choice, depending on the color, uniformity of size, texture and absence of defects.

Frozen peas are packaged in the 12-ounce size which usually serves four, or the 2-pound, 10-serving size. Cost per serving may be calculated accordingly. Since the peas have been partially cooked during blanching, care must be taken not to overcook them. They should be boiled in a very small amount of water for the time specified on the package.

However, frozen peas will have more flavor if cooked by either of the following methods, according to the home economists at Canada Agriculture.

For a 12-ounce package: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in top of a double boiler, add peas, sprinkle with salt then cover and cook over boiling water until tender (about 20 minutes) or place peas in a greased baking dish, sprinkle with salt and dot with 2 tablespoons butter then cover and bake 35 to 40 minutes at 325 degrees F. If desired add curry powder, savory, chopped chives or mint jelly to the cooked, buttered peas just before serving.

For an unusual way to serve frozen peas, combine cooked peas and rice together with seasonings. Place the mixture in individual molds for oven-poaching then pour a celery sauce over the molds at serving time.

PEAS AND RICE MOLDS
1 12-ounce package frozen peas
1 cup cooked rice
2 tablespoons chopped green onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup chicken bouillon
1/4 cup milk
2 beaten eggs

Cook peas according to package directions. Drain. Add rice, onion, parsley and seasonings. Combine bouillon, milk and eggs. Add to rice and mix lightly. Fill buttered custard cups with mixture and oven-poach at 350 degrees F until set (about 45 minutes). Serve with Celery sauce. (Makes six servings)

To make celery sauce — Combine one 10-ounce can condensed cream of celery soup with one-third cup milk and two tablespoons chopped green onions, and heat.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I have a slack pattern that fits me beautifully. I never even consider choosing other patterns for slacks because I don't want to take a chance. I saw a beautiful pair of slacks in an expensive shop that completely eliminated the side seams. This intrigued me but I'm afraid to look for another pattern and take a chance on the fitting. Is there anyway I can cut my favorite pattern and eliminate the side seams? — Mrs. M.K.

Dear Mrs. M.K.:

If the legs of the slacks are straight instead of belled, this is a rather simple operation. Take two pieces of your pattern and lay the two seam lines (not seam allowances) directly over each other. Your pattern should lay smoothly until you come to the area about 7 inches from the waistline. Allow your pattern to spread apart at this area so that it is absolutely flat. Now you can easily see the shape you will need for the hip curve. This is achieved by adding a side dart that begins at the waist and tapers gradually to the hip area, usually about 7 inches below the waistline.

The first time you try your luck with this, perhaps you should use a rather inexpensive fabric to insure success. The unbroken line of the fabric can be most attractive if the cut of the slacks is right for it.

HAMBURG PIE . . . a pound of beef serves six

Minced Beef Pie Alternative To Hamburger or Meat Loaf

Minced beef is a frequent item on many food shoppers' lists. It is a good buy because there is little waste. One pound of minced beef will serve three or four persons depending upon the fat content, what is served with it and the size of the servings.

To protect the consumer there are regulations concerning beef in the minced form.

If minced beef is made by grinding round steak or chuck it should be labelled "minced round steak" or "minced chuck."

If the beef used is represented as being "lean" it must contain not more than 15 per cent fat. Some fat is necessary to provide flavor and prevent the minced beef from drying out in cooking.

If, on the other hand, beef in the minced form is called "hamburger" it should not contain more than 30 per cent fat. Hamburg is made by grinding together trimmings and some of the less tender cuts of beef such as shank, flank, neck, etc.

There is a wide difference in price per pound between "hamburger" and "lean minced beef" but it is wise to remember that the fat which cooks out of the hamburger is left in the pan. The true cost of the meat should always be calculated by the number of servings it will provide rather than the cost per pound.

The home economists of Canada Agriculture have used minced beef in two unusual recipes — both of them pies. In the Hamburg Cottage Cheese Pie the seasoned meat and cheese mixture is browned, placed in a baked pie shell and baked. Beef Crust Pie is unique in that the minced raw beef is combined with rolled oats and finely chopped vegetables to make the "crust" for the pie.

BEEF CRUST PIE Meat Mixture

1 pound minced beef
1/2 cup rolled oats
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1/4 cup diced green pepper
1/4 cup shredded carrot
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon savory
1 beaten egg
1/2 cup tomato juice
1 tablespoon tomato catsup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Mix beef, oats, vegetables and seasonings. Combine egg with remaining ingredients. Add to beef and mix well. Press mixture on bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate, and flute edge.

Filling
2 cups cooked rice
1 7/8-ounce can tomato sauce
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon basil
1 cup (4 ounces) grated cheddar cheese
Combine rice, tomato sauce, seasonings and 1/4 cup of the grated cheese. Spread filling in meat shell, cover and bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees F. Uncover, sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup cheese. Bake uncovered until cheese melts (10 to 15 minutes). (Six servings.)

Victorian Was With Margaret When Trudeau Was Introduced

Margaret Sinclair was staying with other friends when she met Trudeau in Tahiti.

That's what Dorothy Fraser of Victoria thinks.

"It was all very informal, but I don't remember seeing Margaret with Trudeau. I think she was with someone else at the time," she said.

Mrs. Fraser was with Margaret and six or seven others at the Club Mediterranean in Tahiti three years ago when "someone" brought the Prime Minister over and said, "This is Trudeau".

In a parish hall at 6:30 Thursday night, an hour and a half late for the wedding, Trudeau married Margaret Sinclair.

Conducting the ceremony was Father John

Swinkels, pastor of St. Steven's Roman Catholic "church", in North Vancouver, whose congregation built the hall with the intention of finishing it later as a church.

Victorian, M. C. Hall-Patch said, "I've been in the 'church' 15 times and it's definitely not a church. There's a stage at one end and a temporary altar at the other, with pews in between. Everything's very modern — almost stark."

Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau are honeymooning at Whistler Mountain — a change of plan, judging by a 1968 story.

During his visit here at that time Trudeau told Times reporter Pat Dufour "I've never been to South America. I'm saving that for my honeymoon."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Date Sent Home

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I called a girl for a date and she accepted. I made dinner reservations at a high-class club that features soft lights, music and dancing. I took this girl where we were going and I also told her I was wearing a black pin-stripe suit with light blue shirt and matching tie and handkerchief, so she should dress accordingly.

She lives way out in the opposite direction from where we were going so I sent a taxi to her house to pick her up. When she showed up at my place she was wearing pants, sneakers and a hippie jacket with "peace and love" all over it. I know this girl can dress nicely because I've seen her in nice clothes.

I told her I was sorry but I couldn't take her to the place where I had reservations because they wouldn't let us in the place with her dressed like that. I paid her taxi fare home, and with the time flying I quickly asked a girl in my apartment if she wanted to go out for dinner. She jumped at the chance, dressed up like a lady, and we had a wonderful evening.

My question: Was I wrong to have sent the first girl home? I don't think so, but some other people think I was. — Me.

DEAR ME: Since where you went was obviously much more important to you than with whom you went, you weren't wrong.

DEAR ABBY: About 15 months ago my husband passed away and I sold one of his suits (almost new) to one of the neighbors for $10.

Just the other day, this neighbor called me and asked me to take the suit back and give her the $10 back. So I did. She is supposed to be one of my best friends. This upset my whole family. What is your opinion about this? — Discouraged.

DEAR DISCOURAGED: I think your friend must have been desperately in need of $10.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the Indiana Mother whose child had a speech defect and was teased by the other children. You recommended a speech therapist.

No therapist works miracles in a short time. We started taking our child to speech therapists when he was three years old. Seven years later he still needs coaching. Handicapped children suffer more from unkind treatment from their peers (and often from adults) than they do from a speech defect.

Despite therapy and daily coaching at home, our son is still taunted by children. And I've actually seen another mother laugh and encourage her own child to call my son names! — Wisconsin Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: The mother you referred to in your letter needs more help than a handicapped child.

DEAR ABBY: If women's liberation achieves just one goal I shall forget all the others. And that is the relief from the stigma of the frequently awarded and phony label ladies. Particularly when it adorns the cubicle next to the one marked Men, and where ladyship has no standing. — R. L. Greene.

DEAR MR. GREENE: True, but while all ladies are women, not all women are ladies. If you want to get technical. Now, how about those cubicles marked Gentlemen, which are constantly used by men who don't qualify as gentlemen? Would you settle for this and Hers?

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me something that has upset me terribly. She wouldn't tell me who had told her, so there is nothing I can do about it. I suppose that is why I am so upset.

She said she had heard that my husband and I were splitting up. Abby, my husband has had to travel more lately for his business and I can't go with him, but we certainly have never been happier, and this splitting up "rumor" couldn't have shocked me more.

I know there is nothing you can do about it, Abby. I just had to tell somebody how heartick I am. How does a person go about proving something is a lie? — Heart-sick.

DEAR HEARTSICK: One shouldn't have to. But be aware that a real friend would not bring you gossip or any hurtful "sorry-I-can't-tell-you-who-told-me" tales. Since you are helpless to do anything about gossip (real or possibly dreamed up by the one who told you she had "heard" it) disregard it. A word of consolation: Carriers of such tales are usually jealous and miserable and take pleasure in chipping away at the happiness of others.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

SEAFOOD SUPREME

(Makes 12 to 14 servings)

1/2 cup butter
1/4 cup finely-chopped onion
4 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
1/2 cup flour
1 tablespoon salt
3/4 cups milk
1 pint (2 1/2 cups) light cream
1/2 cup dry sherry
2 1/2 pounds cooked seafood
1 1/2 cups coarsely crushed rice cereal
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Preheat oven to 350 deg. F.

Melt the 1/2 cup butter in a large saucepan. Add onions and mushrooms; saute until tender. Blend in flour and salt. Remove from heat and gradually stir in milk and cream. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until smoothly thickened. Stir in sherry and seafood. Turn into a 4-quart casserole. Combine cereal and melted butter. Sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake in preheated oven 45 to 50 minutes, or until heated through. (Makes 12 to 14 servings.)

This Grandmother Prefers Motorbike

By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — It's a boy. No it's a girl. It's a grandma on a Yamaha!

Inge Werner of Duncan, mother of three ranging in age from nine to 23 and grandmother of a six-month old girl, found she would much rather travel on her motorbike than drive a car.

"I don't drive a car," she explained. "I renewed my learner's licence about six times but I am just too scared to drive a car. I feel I would be a hazard on the road because of my fear and there are enough poor drivers already without me."

Up until a year ago Mrs. Werner was arriving at her various janitorial and house-keeping jobs on a two-wheeler.

"Then I needed faster transportation to go to work," she said. So I bought a 100cc Yamaha bike. Now I can average about 55 miles per hour."

Since Mrs. Werner bought her bike she has put over 1,400 miles on it.

Mrs. Werner, who also has her "A" and "B" glider licences, plans a two-week trip to the U.S. this summer — alone and on her bike.

With her hard hat, black leather jacket, leather pants and high-boots Mrs. Werner said people usually grin when they see her riding. "At first when people see me they just think I am a motorcycle driver under a hard hat. Then when they see I am a female there usually is a reaction."

Traps Found On Sanctuary For Geese

DUNCAN — "A people problem" has persuaded the Cowichan Fish and Game Association to improve a bird sanctuary on a small privately-owned island in Quamichan Lake.

Association president Walter Latter said the association has requested permission from the island owner's mother, Mrs. T. V. Sandys-Wunsch, to take steps to prevent people from landing on the island.

"There is no raccoon problem there but a people problem and several birds including Canada geese were caught in muskrat traps recently which were put on the island illegally, Latter said.

With an improved nesting area it will be possible to prosecute people who land and disturb the birds, Latter said.

It is hoped property owners around the lake will also agree to having nesting areas there improved.

Mother Says Son Was 'Awful Sight'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver Island woman testified in British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday that she found her allegedly kidnapped son "an awful sight" when she came to Vancouver to pay $275 for his release.

He had almost no hair and there was blood on him and his clothes, Mrs. Joyce Clark, of Duncan, told the court. "His face was swollen and his eyes were shut."

charged with kidnapping and assaulting David Clark, 18, and with intent to extort money by threats on his life.

Clark previously testified that he owed one of the accused $235 and was ordered under duress to repay it.

His mother told the court she received a phone call the night of Oct. 17 telling her to wire the money to Vancouver if she wanted to see her son alive again. She said the demand was originally for $250, but that it was later increased to $350 because she had "talked too long."

The trial continues.

Indians to Police Reserves

Special Indian police constables will be used to fight drug and liquor abuses on reserves, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson told the legislature Thursday.

Frank Calder (NDP-Adin) asked Peterson if the province could adopt a program of creating this special kind of police, because a similar scheme for three Indian bands in the Nass

River valley in his riding had proved successful.

Peterson said his department is working with the RCMP for other reserves and told the NDP member the first would begin in Bella

Bella. Calder said drug and liquor abuses on reserves at times have created chaotic conditions sometimes resulting in murders.

Calder said an RCMP program of auxiliary constables off reserves does not have enough power to care for problems on reserves.

In addition to Bella Bella, he said, reserves at Port Simpson, Kitimat, Cape Mudge and Cowichan need attention. Calder said village councils would be prepared to supply men for training as special constables.

Barrett Expelled From Legislature

QUEBEC STORM KILLS AT LEAST 11 PERSONS

(Times News Services)

MONTREAL — At least 11 persons are dead from heart attacks and carbon monoxide poisoning and this city has been brought to a standstill by a record 20-inch snowfall.

The swirling, driving storm which set a 24-hour record in Montreal swung into the Maritimes today dumping up to 20 inches in northern New Brunswick and piling up huge drifts with the help of 75-mile-an-hour winds.

NDP Chief Defied Speaker Ruling

By PETER McNELLY and BRUCE YEMEN

A young widow's fight for a compassionate grant of insurance benefits was pushed to the breaking point early today when Opposition Leader Dave Barrett was "named" and barred from the legislature for a week.

The suspension for defiance of supply committee chairman Herb Bruch climaxed a test of political wills in which Barrett asked the same question 67 times in 90 minutes to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

Peterson Moved Motion

Peterson refused to say he would write to insurance companies asking them to consider granting compassionate payment of $12,000 in death benefits for a widow.

Bruch "named" Barrett for defiance of his ruling to stop asking the same question and Peterson followed it up with a motion to bar Barrett from the house for a week.

Liberal MLAs in the house voted against the Socred motion along with New Democrats as the 29 government members voted to suspend Barrett at 1:10 a.m.

On two previous occasions MLAs have been suspended from the B.C. legislature. Gordon Dowding (NDP Burnaby-Edmonds) was censured for breach of parliamentary privilege and suspended in the final moments of the 1969 legislative session.

The motion was based on allegations by Socred Herb Capozzi that partners of Dowding's law firm earned fees three years previously for passage of a bill through the legislature "setting up an insurance company."

Dowding said he had declared his firm's interest and refrained from voting or dealing with the bill as an MLA.

Gordon Gibson, Liberal member for Lillooet in 1955, was expelled from the legislature for refusing to withdraw his "money talks and has talked" remarks in connection with the issuing of forest management licences.

Eileen Daily Interim Leader

Deputy NDP leader Eileen Daily will be the leader of the opposition until Barrett returns to the house a week from today.

Barrett, announcing the decision this morning, said Mrs. Daily is "very capable."

In reply to a question, he said he believes it is the first time in the history of the Commonwealth that a woman has been leader of the opposition.

Barrett expressed no regrets over his suspension early this morning and said he would do it all over again.

Barrett said he does not know if he can sit in the public galleries during his suspension.

The climax of the political battle came amid silence in the house.

It started about 3 1/2 hours

earlier with William Hartley (NDP Yale-Lillooet) relating the case of a 22-year-old widow whose husband, Jack Taylor, was seriously injured in a car accident near Trail Jan. 22, 1970.

He died in hospital on Sept. 9, two months after the 180-day limit allowed by the government's insurance law for traffic victims to be eligible for death benefits.

Hartley said the law was wrong and the woman, who has a child, deserves a compassionate payment of the death benefits which would total about $12,000.

Peterson in reply said the question of the 180-day limit is under study but gave no indication that he favored making an exception to the existing law to help the woman.

'Had Bad Driving Record'

He pointed out that the victim, according to his information, had a bad driving record which had resulted in his being insured by the "facility," an insurance industry arrangement to cover high risks.

About $1,800 in insurance payments had been made to the woman, he said.

The New Democrats said they were not satisfied with the answer.

Barrett made an impassioned appeal for the attorney-general to show some compassion in the case as he felt sure that Premier Bennett would have shown in the same circumstances. Bennett was out of the house at the time.

Peterson sat silently as Hartley resumed questioning in an effort to get a commitment from Peterson on the case.

Bruch finally called Speaker William Murray in to the chamber after Hartley persisted in his efforts in spite of warnings about "tedious repetition" being against the rules.

Hartley said he had a

Belfast Riot Follows Kidnap

BELFAST (AP) — A major riot swept through Roman Catholic Falls Road district of this Northern Irish capital today during an army search for two Protestants kidnapped at gunpoint.

Roaming mobs of teenagers hijacked buses for use as barricades and hurled waves of gasoline bombs and missiles at army riot squads. The riot broke out after soldiers searched the Long Bay on Leeson Street, an unofficial headquarters for many Irish nationalists.

Soldiers arrested several men. Women of the neighborhood hurled missiles and flung ash can lids.

Detectives from Scotland Yard began investigating the kidnapping of the Protestants, believed a reprisal for the alleged Protestant theft of Roman Catholic arms recently.

Three masked, armed men drove up to a house in the Protestant Sandy Row area and forced three Protestant men into a car at gunpoint.

ONE RELEASED

One later was dumped unharmed in the same area later. With him was a message that the other two men would be shot dead unless the arms were returned.

A barrage of gasoline bombs and paving stones met army riot squads off long stretches of the Falls Road. The barrage came from behind blazing barricades of overturned trucks. Troops in riot gear scrambled from armored cars under strong attack and sealed off areas in a methodical search for rioters.

ROGERS
ponders risks

Consultation On Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers has agreed to consult the Canadian government before approving an oil pipeline across Alaska linked to a shipping route down the British Columbia coast to Washington State, the Commons was told today.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Rogers' agreement indicated that the U.S. government has not reached a decision on the pipeline-tanker route.

He expected the talks to start "very soon."

Trudeau Marries B.C. Girl In Super-Surprise Wedding

By DAVE STOCKAND

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a private man with a flair for the dramatic, is honeymooning today with his 22-year-old bride after a wedding that caught an entire country by surprise.

Canada's 51-year-old leader, one of North America's most eligible bachelors, took as his bride Thursday Margaret Sinclair, a leggy, almond-eyed beauty — and a university graduate in political science and sociology.

The marriage of the millionaire swinger-thinker and the auburn-haired beauty took place Thursday evening in St. Stephen's Roman Catholic church, a modest one-storey establishment with an austere modern interior.

Only immediate family attended — and there was no announcement until the ceremony was over.

The wedding plans were kept so secret that two of the bride's four sisters didn't know of the wedding until they arrived at the church. They thought they had been called home for a family party marking their father's 60th anniversary of his arrival in Canada from Scotland.

The newly-marrieds — who met three years ago while both were vacationing in Tahiti — will have a honeymoon in the dramatically beautiful ski country in the Garibaldi Park area north of Vancouver and will head for Ottawa next week to set up housekeeping at the prime minister's official residence on Sussex Drive.

The statement said:

"Pierre Elliott Trudeau married Margaret Sinclair this evening at St. Stephen's Church, North Vancouver, in a quiet ceremony attended only by members of the two families."

"... Charles Trudeau was best man for his brother and Rosalind Sinclair bridesmaid for her sister."

"After a wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau leave for a short honeymoon before returning to Ottawa next week."

From the church service, the Trudeaus went to a wedding dinner at the Capilano Golf and Country Club in North Vancouver where a dinner was served for an exclusive sitting of 13.

Smoked salmon capilano was on the wedding dinner menu along with turtle soup, roast filet of beef, asparagus with lemon butter, and pears flambe.

In making the arrangements, a fictitious name was used for the prime minister. The priest

She Has Talent and Brains And Shares PM's Pastimes

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, the fourth of James Sinclair's five bright and beautiful daughters, grew up in an atmosphere of politics.

Her father is a Privy Councillor and a former Liberal fisheries minister, with a record of 17 years as a Liberal member of Parliament.

Margaret, 22, has all the attributes of a beauty — she's a blue-eyed, auburn-haired and a slim five-foot-six but she has talent and brains as well.

She is a graduate of Simon Fraser University where she studied political science and sociology, and worked for a time last year with Canada Manpower in Ottawa as a sociologist.

She's an ardent skier and skin diver — two of her husband's favorite pastimes — but she's also at home in the kitchen or sewing room. She made her own wedding gown and three-tier wedding cake.

The wedding gown she designed and made was of a loose-weave Finnish wool with long sleeves and a hood.

Margaret was an Anglican but recently became a Roman Catholic the faith of her husband. They had the full Catholic wedding service, performed by Father John Swinkels.

The prime minister invited Margaret to Ottawa to meet his mother at Christmas, 1969. The following Easter, Mr. Trudeau came to West Vancouver to "meet" her parents.

"She's really been preparing for this day all the time," her mother said. "She's been learning French, and it has been a lot of fun having her at home."

Margaret has always kept her outings with the prime minister secret, as he had requested, and even two of her own sisters and her grandmother thought they were coming to an anniversary party Thursday instead of to a wedding reception.

Margaret's 23-year-old sister, Rosalind, a radio technician, was bridesmaid and she

SURPRISE MARRIAGE GRABS U.K. HEADLINES

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau's surprise marriage swept banner headlines in both London evening newspapers today.

The Evening News, under a banner streamer mentioning "Playboy Trudeau," said "news of the marriage stunned Canada."

The Evening Standard, under its banner headline, said the marriage bore out a fortune-teller's prediction in Singapore in January "that the millionaire premier would marry this year."

FOUR RESCUED BY FERRY

Four men were taken aboard the Queen of Sidney at 1:30 this afternoon after the ferry received a distress call from a sailing boat off Roberts Bank.

Sherry Stacey of Sidney, a passenger aboard the Tsegwassen-bound ferry, identified the disabled boat as the Tyee. Its masts were down.

The boat was taken in tow.

I knew all along that some folks w'd say "I knew all along"

Namun, Mister Barrett is one thing — describin' him w'd be somethin' else.
